JOHNSON TRIAL DEFENSE SEEKS SKIDMORE LINK

Moves to Show His Share in Gambling.

BY FRANK CIPRIANI.

The defense strategy of William R. Johnson, alleged gambling boss who is on trial in Federal District court on charges of income tax evasion, became apparent yesterday.

Thru isolated bits of testimony presented yesterday and earlier it was indicated that Johnson's lawyers aim to link William (Billy) Skidmore with Johnson in the ownership of gambling houses and thus reduce Johnson's culpability. This maneuver was evidenced by the following developments:

1. The focusing of attention on a memorandum in Skidmore's handwriting implying ownership of a half interest in the Club Western, a gambling place at 9730 South Western avenue.

2. Testimony that two of Johnson's lieutenants—who are among the eight co-defendants on trial with him on charges of conspiracy to evade payment of $1,887,864 in income taxes—talked with a government witness over the week-end and that one of them reminded the witness Skidmore had paid for part of the Club Western.

3. Subsequent testimony by the witness that Skidmore had paid him for work not only at the Club Western but also for work at the Bon Air Country club, a gambling casino in Lake county.

Long a Figure in Gambling.

The projection of Skidmore into the case began Friday. Skidmore, for many years a much publicized figure in the political end of the Chicago gambling racket, originally was indicted in the Johnson case. Skidmore was dismissed by the government on the opening day of the trial, along with three other defendants, one of them William Goldstein, attorney for the reputed Skidmore-Johnson gambling empire. Skidmore faces a separate trial on income tax charges and Goldstein is under a separate indictment charging perjury in his grand jury testimony.

It was reported in some quarters last night that the move to depict Skidmore as a partial owner of various gambling houses presaged a rupture in the friendship between Skidmore and Johnson. The reports also had it that Johnson and his co-defendants were stunned when the charges against Skidmore were dropped.

There was no definite reaction, however, until the government had piled up considerable evidence indicating Johnson owned or controled a string of properties in some of which gambling was carried on. Up until then Johnson's predicated defense had been that he never owned or ran a gambling dive—that he merely gambled in them as a big-time dice shooter.

Property Purchases Told.

Then on Friday Goldstein was called as a government witness. He told of buying various properties for Johnson. Some became gambling places, including the Club Western and the Bon Air club. The tenor of this testimony was that Johnson was sole owner.

Then came the quick shift in defense tactics. Floyd E. Thompson, attorney for Johnson, suddenly produced a yellow sheet of paper filled with handwritten notations. These indicated that Skidmore had spent $22,000 on the Club Western and that Johnson had paid Skidmore $10,000 and still owed him $1,000 to complete his half interest. Goldstein identified the handwriting as Skidmore's.

Yesterday the defense carried on where it had left off Friday, but with a new witness. He was Joseph J. Nadherny, an architect at 1518 Roosevelt road. During 1938 and 1939 he had worked as an architect and construction supervisor for both Johnson and Skidmore. He had met Johnson thru Skidmore.

Casino Conversation Described.

Nadherny had been listed as a government witness, but when court convened yesterday E. Riley Campbell, assistant United States attorney, addressed Judge John P. Barnes, who is hearing the trial with a jury.

"Just an hour ago," said Campbell, "I was advised that on Saturday night Mr. Nadherny visited the Bon Air club and talked with two of the defendants, Ed Wait, and An-

Fugitives Slay Warder, Seize Guns and Cars

Pine Bluff, Ark., Sept. 2 [Special].—Two convicted murderers and two other felons, who had been appointed trusties and supplied with saddle horses and guns by prison authorities, led 32 other prisoners today in a wild west break from the Cummins state prison farm, 25 miles southeast of here.

One of six loyal trusties who refused to join in the break was killed when he tried to shoot it out with the escaping prisoners. He was Claude Martin, 41 years old, who was serving 15 years for murder.

The convicts made off with four high powered rifles and six sawed-off shotguns—their own prison weapons and those obtained by disarming the other guards.

Steal Horses and Cars.

The fugitives were in a crew of 150 prisoners working in a pea patch on the 8,000 acre farm. Six of the guards were armed with shotguns and four—all mounted on horses—were armed with rifles.

The Arkansas trusty guard system, which is nonexistent in northern prisons, where armed guards are not permitted to associate with prisoners, allows "good prisoners" to be armed and serve as guards on prison farms. Prison officials said this system has prevailed for 30 years in Arkansas.

Guards Refuse to Fire.

Two of the armed guards, described as ringleaders in the plot, were Percy Loftin, 25 years old, serving sentences of life and 52 years for murder, robbery, and kidnaping, but described by prison authorities as having a good prison record, and W. E. Barner, 31, serving 15 years for murder.

They were joined in the break by Guard Dirg Harvey, serving six years for robbery, and Guard Walter Magby, serving seven years for burglary.

As the convicts silently picked the peas, there was a sudden commotion and a small group of men burst out of the patch and headed for the guards. Loftin and Barner, instead of firing at the men, spurred about on their horses, keeping the loyal guards from interfering with the plot.

Loyal Guards Overpowered.

Quickly, the rebelling convicts overpowered the loyal guards. When Martin, a loyal trusty, tried to halt the escape by opening fire, he was killed by a hail of bullets.

Riding their prison horses, the four ringleaders and another convict made their way to the nearby town of Gould, where they held up a Negro motorist and took his car. The automobile broke down near Dumas and the convicts commandeered a second car occupied by Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Baker of Beaumont, Tex., forcing the couple to accompany them.

A blowout near Portland, Ark., 50 miles south of Dumas, again interrupted their flight. They seized a third car, occupied by two Negroes, and when it ran out of gasoline with-ing half a mile, the convicts commandeered a fourth car. Later tonight, officials received word the convicts had made a fifth automobile switch near Rayville, La.

In Battle with Officers.

Advices from Columbia, La., stated that one deputy sheriff was wounded as officers exchanged shots with men believed to be a group of the fleeing felons. It was said that officers were hampered in the attack because the fugitives were holding as hostages Anna Laura Diamond, daughter of the Rayville, La., marshal; Voinciele Williams, and Jerry Harnigle, all about 17 years old. From Garland City, Ark., came another report state police were engaged in a gun battle with another group of the felons.

Several hours after the break two runaways surrendered to authorities.

BANK BANDITS CAN'T TAKE IT! INSURANCE CUT

The bank robbers can't take it any more—at least they haven't lately in very large quantities. As a result, bank robbery insurance rates have been reduced by 12.5 to 45 per cent in 36 states.

The reduction was reported yesterday by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. States once roamed by the James boys, Billy the Kid, and the Barker and Dillinger gangs were affected by the cuts.

Passing of the two gun desperadoes was marked by the bureau in the laconic statement that reductions were made possible "by material improvement in the experience for this type of insurance in the affected territories."

In Illinois the reduction is 16.7 per cent for the first $5,000 of insurance and approximately 25 per cent for insurance in addition to that amount.

Plan to Create Army of Jews to Fight Hitler

Bloom Fights Plan

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2 (AP).—Chairman Sol Bloom [D., N. Y.] of the house foreign affairs committee tonight termed the plan announced in London for a Jewish national army to fight against Germany and Italy "a fantastic idea." Bloom, who is Jewish himself, said:

"I think I speak for the majority of the Jews in this country in saying that if the Jews join an army they will do so as Americans, not as Jews. I don't believe the Jews as a class want to segregate themselves in an isolated branch of anything."

United States laws would prohibit recruiting and enlistment here in such an army. American Jews might leave this country and enlist abroad without penalty, however, provided they did not swear allegiance to a foreign power. The law does not specifically prohibit the urging of others to go abroad and enlist.

LONDON, Sept. 2 (AP).—Plans were announced tonight for assembling a world-wide Jewish army to fight beside the British against the racial arch foes of Jewry headed by Adolf Hitler's Nazi legions.

Under the project most recruiting for a crack at Hitlerian anti-Semitism and Italy would be done in America.

The army's minimum strength, according to A. Abrahams, head of the political department of the new Zionist organization, who discussed its formation at a conference today, is to be 100,000 men apart from troops recruited in Palestine.

Propose British Equipment.

The "first hundred thousand," he said he hoped, would be quickly mustered by recruiting in all parts of the world.

The new army, it was proposed, would be equipped by the British government altho an effort will be made to have Jews provide financial support themselves.

It also was hoped to have a Jewish branch of the British air force which would attract Jewish pilots and wireless operators in the United States.

Report Measure of Success.

Delegations which have gone to United States, Canada and South America seeking support for the project were said to have achieved a certain measure of success.

Individual members of parliament and the cabinet were said by Abrahams to have given the proposal their support, but the government has raised certain objections which, it is believed, can be overcome.

Creation of the Jewish army, Abrahams added, would provide the first practical move against the Hitlerist view of the Jewish problem and its solution and would remove any suggestion that Jews were not taking their place in the fight against Nazism.

BRITISH PLANES AND GUNS REPEL FOUR ASSAULTS

LONDON, Sept. 3, Tuesday (AP).—The German air force held London under a 4 hour and 21 minute alarm until early today after three futile attempts by four motored "flying barns" and swarming fighter escorts to penetrate the iron ring of the capital's defenses during Monday.

The overnight alarm, from 10:35 p. m. Monday to 2:55 a. m. today, was London's 36th of the war. Comparatively little activity was seen or heard in the London area, but the Nazis fanned out in raids over all of England.

300 Planes in One Raid.

It was estimated the Nazis hurled about 700 planes against Britain in three attempts during the day to bring destruction upon London. An air ministry bulletin said 300 bombers and fighters were used in the last daylight attack.

The air ministry announced that "during the night enemy activity was widespread, but reports indicate general damage was slight." Continuing it said, "towns in the Midlands appear to have been the main objectives of the raiders, but little damage was done by the few bombs dropped. A few bombs also were dropped on the outskirts of London, and on three south coast towns."

The Germans, while seeking to hold London under air siege, apparently concentrated more on airdromes and aviation plants in an attempt to knock out the royal air force as an essential preliminary to invasion.

Scan Sea with New Vigilance.

With less than three weeks remaining before the customary onset of bad weather, the British fought back the air raiders and scanned the seas with new vigilance.

They continued, too, their nightly bomber excursions deep into German territory and struck repeated new blows at the German bases around Boulogne, France, historic spot from which Caesar launched his invasion of Britain nearly 2,000 years ago.

No Alarm for One Raid.

The German daylight raids directed at London were turned back—once without even an alarm being sounded—by the teamwork of British air force fighters and antiaircraft gunners.

The four motored 40 passenger "flying barns," which were hurled at

Britain, are known as Junkers 90's, the large military planes used by the Nazi as troop transports in Norway. However, the British said there was no evidence they were on such service over England. Rather, they suggested, other types of German bombers are becoming scarcer.

3 Bombers Downed.

The fighter planes darted out of a blinding sun and battered and smashed the closely packed waves of German invaders. Bombs were dropped in the metropolitan area, but antiaircraft fire kept the Nazis from the heart of London, and aircraft guns shot down three Nazi bombers—within two minutes—over the outskirts of the city late in the day.

The huge Junkers bombers were used in the first attack, which caused an alarm of 46 minutes in London.

Late last night the air ministry said 42 German planes had been shot down to 13 for the British.

[In Berlin German sources said 86 British planes were destroyed at a cost of 83 German planes.]

MARTIN DEMANDS HATCH QUIZ ON PRESIDENT'S TRIP

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—Replying to President Roosevelt's "nonpolitical" dedication of the Tennessee Valley authority's new Chickamauga dam near Chattanooga, Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican national committee, today demanded a congressional investigation to determine whether Mr. Roosevelt's campaign expenditures are being paid out of the United States treasury in evasion of the Hatch clean politics act.

Chairman Martin also served notice on the Democratic party that the G. O. P. will demand for its Presidential nominee, Wendell L. Willkie, an equal amount of free radio time as that provided for the President's address.

"At last Mr. Roosevelt has abandoned his pretense of aloof statesmanship and has decided that it has become necessary for him openly to participate in this year's Presidential campaign," Chairman Martin said.

Debate Challenge Stands.

"Mr. Roosevelt apparently realizes that Ed Flynn, Harold Ickes, and Harry Hopkins are not equal to the job of combatting Wendell Willkie, and that his strategy of making national defense inspections as a means of campaigning has fooled nobody. So he has, at least for today, laid aside the pretense of statesmanship and mounted the political rostrum.

"We welcome joyously this decision on the part of the President because we believe the people of our country have a right to hear the issues of this campaign thoroly discussed—not by seconds, but by the two candidates for President. Wendell Willkie's challenge to debate these issues with Mr. Roosevelt face to face still stands and now there seems to be no good reason why it should not be accepted since the President today publicly donned his political clothes."

Willkie's Pledge Cited.

However, Martin continued, the political nature of Mr. Roosevelt's speech raises the question of who paid for the "excursion" to Tennessee, the tressury or the Democratic national committee.

"If the sizable items of the expense of a campaign train are charged to the United States treasury, then the Democrats have found a way not only to evade the Hatch act but also to force every taxpayer to contribute to their campaign expenses," the chairman asserted.

"This is a matter which merits the immediate attention of Senator [Guy M.] Gillette's committee for the investigation of campaign expenditures. Senator Gillette and his associates immediately should ascertain whether the cost of Mr. Roosevelt's political sally into the Tennessee valley is being paid out of public money.

Raises Radio Question.

"If the radio time used by Mr. Roosevelt today was given to him free—as I understand it was—then the Republican national committee demands that equal radio facilities be made available to Wendell Willkie without cost. There is no doubt whatever that Mr. Roosevelt used the radio facilities provided for him to make a political speech. The law forbids discrimination by radio networks and stations between candidates for the same office."

PRESIDENT RINGS ALARM OF FEAR IN PARK SPEECH

Indicates He Alone Can Avoid Perils.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 2.—Standing where his eyes could sweep the misty green heights of the Great Smoky mountains of Tennessee, President Roosevelt today sounded the theme upon which he stakes his bid for the first third term in American history.

That theme was fear—fear of the consequences if he is not returned to office to continue the program of national defense. He spoke in ominous tones of an invader at the door, warned grimly of enemies at home, accused the American people of growing soft, and called for a return of the spirit of the frontiersmen.

He used his surroundings to summon up comparisons between the dangers which faced the American pioneer of a century and a half ago and the American citizen today. The latter faces perils far more deadly than the frontiersman had to face, he declared.

Speeches Called Nonpolitical.

This speech, at which he dedicated the new Great Smoky Mountain National park and an earlier one at Chickamauga dam, near Chattanooga, were ostensibly "nonpolitical." The President did not state specifically that he was the sole person capable of fighting off the dangers that menace the nation.

But the candidate for a third term was there in practically every sentence uttered. Speaking of his defense program and conscription, he declared it was not a change from "the American way of life" [a favorite Willkie phrase] to advocate or legislate "a greater and speedier preparedness." Nor will social improvements be abandoned in preparing for national defense, he asserted.

Sharp Emphasis on Pronoun.

"We need not swap the gain of better living for the gain of better defense," he shouted. "I propose to retain the one and gain the other!" There was sharp emphasis under the pronoun.

"The earth has been so shrunk by the airplane and the radio that Europe is closer to America today than was one side of these mountains to the other when the pioneers toiled thru the primeval forests," he asserted again. "The arrow, the tomahawk, and the scalping knife have been replaced by the airplane, the bomb, the tank, and the machine gun. Their threat is as close to us today as was the threat to the frontiersman when hostile Indians were lurking in the other side of the gap."

The President spoke at times as if an invading fleet were off American shores and bombing planes were about to launch an attack.

Urges Preparedness Now.

"The greatest attack that has ever been launched against freedom of the individual is nearer the Americas than ever before," he asserted, solemnly. "To meet that attack we must prepare beforehand—for preparing later may and probably would be too late."

Lifting his eyes to the hills, he warned that "destruction" was at hand "if the spirit of God is not in us and if we will not prepare to give all that we have and all that we are to preserve Christian civilization in our own land."

He spoke of an enemy at home—"the mean and petty spirit that mocks at ideals, sneers at sacrifice, and pretends the American people can live by bread alone."

Warns of Danger Without.

But the second danger is from without, he continued. He hoped, for example, that the park he was dedicating, would not in a hundred years "be in the hands of some strange kind of government puppet subject to an overseas landlord."

"We are free today," he concluded. "If we join together now men, women, and children and face the common menace as a united people, we shall be free tomorrow."

In his earlier speech at Chickamauga dam, Mr. Roosevelt defended the Tennessee Valley authority experiment. He noted with sorrow that many people had put a "misplaced emphasis" upon the government's objectives in the valley. The TVA would be worth 100 million dollars a year to the people of the watershed, he asserted, and its cost no more than half a billion dollars. [He departed from his text to note that these figures were several years old.]

The President was en route tonight to South Charleston, W. Va., where tomorrow morning he will inspect a naval ordnance plant. He is expected back at the White House late Tuesday night, but will stay there only two or three days before returning to his mother's summer home on the Hudson river at Hyde Park, N. Y.

THE PARK SPEECH

New Found Gap, Tennessee-North Carolina border, Sept. 2 [Special].—President Roosevelt began his speech at the dedication of Great Smoky National park here today with a compliment to the states of Tennessee and North Carolina for their cooperation in establishing the park. He mentioned national parks elsewhere in the nation which soon will be dedicated. Then he continued:

"The old frontier, that put the hard fibre in the American spirit and the long muscles on the American back, lives and will live in these untamed mountains to give future generations a sense of the land from which their forefathers hewed their homes.

"The hewing was hard. The dangers were many. The rifle could never be far from the ax. The pioneers stood on their own feet, shot their own game, and fought off their own enemies. In time of accident or misfortune, they helped each other. In time of Indian attack, they stood by each other.

"Today we no longer face Indians and hard and lonely struggles with nature—and also—we have grown soft in many ways.

"If we are to survive, we cannot be soft in a world in which there are dangers that threaten Americans—dangers far more deadly than were those the frontiersmen had to face.

"The earth has been so shrunk by the airplane and the radio that Europe is closer to America today than was one side of these mountains to the other when the pioneers toiled thru the primeval forest. The arrow, the tomahawk, and the scalping knife have been replaced by the airplane, the bomb, the tank, and the machine gun.

Explains Conscription Move.

"Therefore, to meet the threat—to ward off these dangers—the congress and I are establishing by law the obligation inherent in our citizenship to serve our forces for defense thru training in many capacities.

"It is not in every case easy or pleasant to ask men of the nation to leave their homes and women of the nation to give their men to the service of the nation. But the men and women of America have never held back even when it has meant personal sacrifice on their part if it is sacrifice for the common good.

"The greatest attack that has ever been launched against freedom of the individual is nearer the Americas than ever before.

"We must prepare in a thousand ways. Men are not enough. They must have arms. They must learn how to use those arms. They must have skilled leaders—who must be trained. New bases must be established to enable our fleet to defend our shores. Men and women must be taught to create the supplies that we need. And we must counter the agents of the dictators within our country.

Says Liberty Is in Danger.

"There is, moreover, another enemy at home. That enemy is the mean and petty spirit that mocks at ideals, sneers at sacrifice, and pretends the American people can live by bread alone. If the spirit of God is not in us and if we will not prepare to give all that we have and all that we are to preserve Christian civilization in our own land, we shall go to destruction.

"It is good and right that we should conserve these mountain heights of the old frontier for the benefit of the American people. But in this hour we have to safeguard a greater thing: the right of the people of this country to live as free men."

The President then said that both public and government had in recent years become concerned over the waste of natural resources which had occurred in the days of the country's expansion and said that conservation now had become an accepted principle.

Danger from Without.

"But there is a second danger—a danger from without. I hope, for example, that 100 years from now the Great Smoky National park will still belong in practice, as well as in theory, to the people of a free nation," he continued.

"It is not a change from the American way of life to advocate or legislate a greater and a speedier preparedness. It is a positive protection to the American way of life. We know that in the process of preparing against danger we shall not have to abandon and we will not abandon the great social improvements that have come to the American people in these later years. We need not swap the gain of better living for the gain of better defense. I propose to retain the one and gain the other.

Unity for Defense.

"In hours of peril the frontiersmen, whatever their personal likes and dislikes, whatever their personal differences of opinion, gathered together in absolute unity for defense. We, in this hour, must have absolute national unity for total defense.

"What shall we be defending? The good earth of this land, our homes, our families—and far more. We shall be defending a way of life which has given more freedom to the soul and body of man than ever has been realized in the world before, a way of life that has let men scale whatever heights they could scale without hurting their fellows, a way of life that has let men hold up their heads and admit no master but God.

"That way of life is menaced. We can meet the threat. We can meet it in the old frontier way. We can forge our weapons, train ourselves to shoot, meet fire with fire, and with the courage and the unity of the frontiersmen.

"It is our pride that in our country men are free to differ with each other and with their government, and to follow their own thoughts and express them. We believe that the only whole man is a free man. And we believe that in the face of danger, the old spirit of the frontiersmen which is in our blood, will give us the courage and unity that we must have.

"We need that spirit in this hour. We need a conviction, felt deep in us all, that there are no divisions among us. We are all members of the same body. We are all Americans.

"The winds that blow thru the wide sky in these mountains—the winds that sweep from Canada to Mexico, from the Pacific to the Atlantic—have always blown on free men. We are free today. If we join together now—men, women, and children—and face the common menace as a united people, we shall be free tomorrow.

"To the free people of America I dedicate this park."

MEXICANS READY TO REVOLT, SAYS ALMAZAN IN N. Y.

New York, Sept. 2 (AP).—Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan, independent candidate in the recent Mexican Presidential election, today said "the people of Mexico are sick of racketeer government—sick to the point of revolt with or without my leadership." He declared that "at the heart of Mexican unrest lies the conviction, firmly held by every Mexican man and woman, that the recent presidential election was a farce and a fraud."

The people, he said, "did vote for the entire Almazan ticket, forcing the administration gang to announce Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho's victory without counting the ballots. Mexicans are not in doubt as to the reason for this brazen fraud. The gangsters surrounding [President] Lazaro Cardenas did not dare run the risk of an honest president, who would examine the books and institute prosecution for the return of stolen money and punishment for the thieves."

Almazan did not elaborate on what steps he would take if there were an uprising in Mexico, but said, "at the proper time I will return to Mexico and claim the high office to which I am entitled by an overwhelming vote of the people."

CLIPPER FLYING TYPHOID SERUM TO 'FREE' FRANCE

New York, Sept. 2 [Special].—The Yankee Clipper of Pan-American Airways carried 221 pounds of typhoid serum when it took off today for Lisbon. Enough to immunize 8,000 persons, the serum is to be used to combat typhoid fever which is reported spreading thru unoccupied France.

An American Red Cross official said the organization had received requests from its agents in France for enough to immunize 24,000. Today's shipment was the first of three that will be shipped by the Red Cross.

Also aboard the Clipper were 150 pounds of cod liver oil and enough iodine crystals to make 2,000 pounds of iodine. Roland Gadola, returning home after acting as secretary for the French purchasing commission, said malnutrition also was a serious problem in unoccupied France. He said the cod liver oil would temporarily be enough for 5,000 French children.

Acting Mayor Slain While Robbing Town's Tax Office

HAVANA, Sept. 2.—Domingo Carlos Ramos, acting mayor of Guanabacoa, across the bay from Havana, was shot and killed today in a gun battle with military authorities as he was trying to rob the tax collecting office of the town, the police reported. A companion, Daniel Garcia Lierena, was arrested and police said he confessed planning the robbery.

TVA IS PRAISED BY ROOSEVELT AS ACHIEVEMENT

Hails Project as an Aid to National Defense.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 2 [Special].—President Roosevelt opened his speech at Chickamauga dam here today with a comparison of the scene before the Tennessee valley project was started and the changes wrought by the erecting of the series of dams in the TVA system, of which Chickamauga dam is one. He took cognizance that it was Labor day with a tribute to the workers who had been engaged on the construction of the project. There had been no serious interruptions of work and the completed structures were a monument to their labors, he said.

"The only note of sorrow that can properly be sounded on a great day like this lies in the misplaced emphasis which so many people have put on the objectives of the government in building up this great Tennesee valley project," he continued. "It was at a press conference, which I held at Warm Springs, Ga., in January, 1933, after visiting the valley with that splendid fighting American, Senator George Norris of Nebraska, that I put his vision and mine into words."

Mr. Roosevelt asserted he had observed the effects of floods in the Tennessee river watershed.

Asks Figures on Losses.

"Being of a practical turn of mind, I asked for figures relating to losses and figures to show the cost of stopping these losses," he said.

"My memory is that the engineers told me that from floods alone the average annual damage in the Tennessee valley was about 25 million dollars; that the top soil carried to the sea by annual floods averaged another 25 million dollars' worth, that better farming and forestry could produce at least 25 million dollars a year more, and, finally, that a saving of 25 million dollars could be made by providing for and insisting on cheaper electric rates and a wider distribution of power.

Figures Cost of Construction.

"On the other side of the ledger—the cost side—we would have to figure on a total final investment of about 500 million dollars, including, of course, the taxes and amortization of the amount spent through a series of years—and including, incidentally, no watered stock.

"This total sum of dollars was to be spent for three major benefits.

"The first related to the control of the water for better navigation, for the building of lakes, for the prevention of erosion and for the development of power.

"The second objective we had was the building back of soil fertility thru research into phosphate fertilizers, the use of nitrate plant life and the diversification of crops, and the reforesting of millions of acres of land.

"The third objective was to improve the social and economic life of these citizens with their coöperation—to plan with them for a greater diversification of human effort, to make a richer farm life, to add new industries, to give employment, and to bring a larger return in cash each year to the average of our families."

The people of the vast area affected by the TVA project have cooperated, the President said, and this without compulsion.

"There were and are those who maintain that the development of this enterprise that lies largely in this state is not a proper activity of government," he continued. "As for me, I glory in it as one of the great social and economic achievement of the United States.

Importance of Defense.

"Today we are facing a time of peril unmatched in the history of the nations of all the world. And because we are undertaking the total defense of our nation, the Tennessee valley region has assumed, in addition to its own domestic betterment, its share of responsibility of national defense.

"We understand now what we did not understand in 1917 and 1918—that the building up of army and navy equipment and the training of men to use it ought not to result in a waste of our natural resources, and at the same time ought not to break down the gains of labor or the maintenance of living wages.

"We are seeking the preparedness of America, not against the threat of war or conquest alone, but in order that preparedness be built to assure American peace that rests on the well-being of the American people.

"Let us, therefore, today dedicate this dam and these lakes to the benefit of all the people, the prosperity they have stimulated, the faith they have justified, the hope they have inspired, the hearts that they encourage—the total defense of the United States of America."

Youth Shot, 5 Captured as Prison Break Is Foiled

Chillicothe, O., Sept. 2 (AP).—William Glenn Sullivan, 18 years old of Chattanooga, Tenn., was shot and wounded critically tonight during what Warden F. Lovell Bixby said was a futile attempt by six inmates to escape the United States reformatory. Sullivan is serving a term for auto theft. Bixby said the youths, all between 18 and 20 years of age, broke from a column while returning from an institution theater. Five cleared the walls but were rounded up within 10 minutes.

EX-CONVICT GOES ON 3 DAY SPREE; CAR KILLS BOY, 16

In a Haze for Hours After Fatal Accident.

A drunken ex-convict in a speeding car wound up a three day spree yesterday by killing a high school boy and critically injuring a girl. His car smashed into a group of eight youths as they bicycled along Marine drive, bound for a wiener roast. The death car then hit two other autos, overturning the second, before it was halted by a police squad. Police were unable to sober up the driver enough for a coherent statement until more than eight hours after the accident.

The dead youth was William Duclos, 16 years old, a Carl Schurz High school junior, of 1734 Roscoe street. The injured girl is Miss Kathe Zoder, 16, of 1717 Henderson street, who attends Lake View High school. A third member of the party of eight was grazed by the weaving car but unhurt. She is Miss Margaret Korngiebel, 16, of 1726 School street.

Drives $55 Car.

The death driver is Erwin Boeglin, 34, of 3901 Sheridan road, a trucker for a candy company, who was driving a 1930 model car which he bought two weeks ago for $55. Witnesses said he was going about 35 or 40 miles an hour. The speed limit in the 4100 block on Marine drive is 25.

Miss Korngiebel said she first realized her danger when the car turned into Marine drive from Irving Park road and brushed the handlebars of her bike as it passed. She said it then struck the bicycle on which Duclos was riding, throwing him and Miss Zoder to the street. The injured girl was on the frame of Duclos' bike.

A moment later Boeglin's auto crashed into the rear of a car driven by Edmund Sullivan, 757 Montrose avenue, then swerved west into Buena avenue, hitting and overturning a parked car in front of 716 Buena. Here Boeglin stopped and was arrested by Policemen Roy Coutrie, John McNellis, and Oscar Hanson.

In Alcholic Haze, Says Hanson.

Hanson said Boeglin was in an alcoholic haze so thick he didn't even know he was being arrested. An empty whisky bottle was on the seat beside him.

The accident happened at 2:45 p. m. It was not until about 10:30 that Boeglin's brain had cleared enough to permit questioning him. By this time, thru his fingerprints, police had learned that he was paroled from the Pontiac reformatory in Nov., 1929, after serving two years on a robbery charge, and that he was fined for disorderly conduct in 1938.

Boeglin admitted that he had a police record. He said he was married and divorced, and that he had a son, 7 years old, whom he had last seen Thursday as he drove past his former wife's home.

Tells of Drinking Spree.

He said he finished work at 1 a. m. Saturday morning with the intention of going fishing with friends later in the day. Instead, he said, he got up and went to a tavern near Broadway and Irving Park road, where he got drunk. He went to bed drunk Saturday night, he said, and got drunk again when he got up Sunday morning.

Sunday night, he said, he bought a half pint of whisky, which he drank before leaving home yesterday morning and going again to the tavern on Broadway. There he stayed, drinking 12 or 15 Mickey Mouses, a whisky drink, he said. Boeglin told police he could not remember leaving the tavern and didn't remember being on Marine drive, altho he did have a faint recollection of an overturned car.

"Don't you know you hit some kids and killed one?" a policeman asked suddenly.

Boeglin began to tremble.

"Then it's manslaughter this time," he said.

The inquest will be today.

One Dead; 11 Injured.

A small boy's interest in a passing train cost him his life yesterday and resulted in injury to 11 other persons in a three car crash at Funk's Grove, near Bloomington. The boy, Joseph Lopeparo, 2½, was riding with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lopeparo, 1117 Chestnut street, when he called to his father to look at a train running parallel to the highway. Lopeparo turned his head, swerved into the left hand lane, struck another car, then glanced back into his own lane and struck another.

An unidentified man was killed by a truck at 16th and Canal streets last night. Joseph Forbes, 32 years old, 4401 South Union avenue, the truck driver, was held by Maxwell street police.

Illinois led all other states in traffic deaths over the three day week-end, with a total of 27, according to a survey by the Associated Press. New York reported 24 deaths, Ohio 20, and Michigan 17. The total killed in traffic thruout the nation for the holiday period was 281. This was well below the 375 which the National Safety council said might have been expected for such a period.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 559 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 412 were killed in Chicago, where 15,492 were injured in the same period.

WARREN LAMSON, BROKER, 58, DIES OF HEART ATTACK

End Comes Suddenly in Presbyterian Hospital.

Warren A. Lamson, president of Lamson Brothers and company, grain and security brokers, with offices at 141 West Jackson street, died suddenly last evening in the Presbyterian hospital.

Warren Lamson.

Hospital attachés said death apparently was caused by a coronary occlusion.

Mr. Lamson had suffered a heart attack yesterday morning while in his home at 940 Sheridan road, Winnetka. His physician, Dr. Stuyvesant Butler, 714 Park Lane, Winnetka, was called. Mr. Lamson recovered quickly from this attack and was driven to the hospital yesterday afternoon. A second attack, a few hours later, was fatal.

Prominent in La Salle Street.

Mr. Lamson, who was 58 years old, was a prominent figure in La Salle street. He was a member of the board of governors of the Chicago Stock exchange and a member of the executive committee of the exchange at the time of his death. Two years ago he was chairman of the executive committee. He had served continuously as a governor of the Chicago exchange since 1906 and had been a member of the New York Stock exchange since 1917.

Lamson Brothers and company is one of the largest securities and commodities brokerage concerns in the country. The company has 26 branches thruout the country. It was established in 1874 by Mr. Lamson's father, Lorenzo J., and an uncle, S. Warren Lamson.

Active in Philanthropic Work.

Mr. Lamson had been active in philanthropic work in Chicago for many years. In 1928 he was elected president of the United Charities, serving in that capacity until 1931.

In 1937 he was one of five Chicago stock brokers who sued to restrain the county assessor from assessing as personal property their seats on the New York Stock exchange.

Survivors are his widow, Marguerite Pratt Lamson, and three daughters, Mrs. Warner M. Washburn of Highland Park, Mrs. Richard Searles of Winnetka, and Mrs. Henry E. Hebbin of San Francisco, Cal. Funeral arrangements are pending.

BRITISH BOMBERS ATTACK MUNICH; FIRES REPORTED

Raid Foe from North Sea to Lombardy's Plains.

LONDON, Sept. 2 (AP).—The British air force described tonight its first devastating raid on Munich, birthplace of Naziism, as part of a wide sweeping attack from the North sea to the plains of Lombardy in Italy.

A news bulletin declared that a force of heavy bombers attacked the airplane engine factory of the Bayerische Motorenwerke company at Munich last night and early today.

Important buildings were reported hit, along with a testing track and railway junction points. Many fires were seen to break out.

Gunners in the tails of the British bombers "discouraged" enemy fighter planes, the bulletin said.

Two Flank Attack.

This was only one point in the newly extended attacks, of which the left flank struck at Emden and Nordenham on the North sea, and the right at Turin and Milan in Italy.

Another new objective was the Bosch ignition plant at Stuttgart, which was heavily defended by anti-aircraft batteries.

Fires and explosions were started. A second wave of planes arriving 10 minutes later was guided by the flames.

At Mannheim, pilots said, they saw bomb bursts on railway sidings, and at Ludwigshaven they hammered hard at a group of oil tanks. Haze prevented accurate observation of results there.

In the Emden and Nordenham dock areas, fires were started and one direct oil tank hit was noted.

At Marnheim, 20 miles from Mannheim, the flyers attacked industrial buildings and reported that a great bluish network lit up like a plan on a drafting board, suggesting that a large electrical installation had been short circuited.

Attack Fiat Plant.

In the latest attack on northern Italy, the report said, the first planes descending on the Fiat airplane plant at Turin set off an explosion so heavy that a bomber several thousand feet high was tossed about by the detonation.

Flaring fires were declared to be visible for a half-hour after the planes turned homeward.

Turin railway sidings also were blasted, and many bombs struck the Po river railway bridge about five miles north of Alessandria.

Bombs were reported to have caused immediate explosions at the Marelli Magneto works at Milan. The British then followed up by scattering incendiary bombs over the same target.

Drops Bomb on Airport.

One bomber, thwarted by the weather in efforts to soar over the Alps, deposited its bombs on the Beauvais airport en route home.

Blenheim bombers of the coastal command bombed shipyards at L'Orient, France, described as a German U-boat and E-boat [speedboat] base. Ground fog and darkness made details uncertain, but several hits on shipyards, followed by explosions and fires, were observed.

BOY FALLS OFF BRIDGE; HURT.

Logansport, Ind. Sept. 2 [Special].—William Green, 15 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Green, suffered a skull fracture and severe burns today when he fell from a bridge over Eel river. He struck high tension wires as he fell. The boy was said to be in critical condition.

BERNE'S GUNS FIRE ON PLANES DURING 3D AIR RAID ALARM

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 3, Tuesday (AP).—Antiaircraft artillery roared into action in Berne at 2:03 a. m. today as the third air alarm of the night sounded.

The first alarm lasted from 10:35 to 11:03 p. m. Monday. The second came at 11:17 p. m.

Alarms, occasioned by British planes bound to and from Italian objectives, have become almost a nightly commonplace in this Alpine country.

U. S.-AUSTRALIA PACT HINGES ON WAR, SAYS PAPER

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 2 (AP).—The Melbourne Herald, discussing the suggestion of Attorney General William M. Hughes that a defense pact with the United States would be advantageous to both countries, said today that Washington, D. C., "naturally received it with cautious reserve, for this kind of coöperation must await the march of events."

Australia lies so far from the United States, the newspaper said, that Americans have hardly begun to think about her or to envisage emergencies that may arise before the fighting in Europe and the far east is over.

Nevertheless, "time will quicken American interest in Australia," the Herald said.

Bomb Airports; Report 86 Planes Shot Down.

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, Sept. 3, Tuesday (AP).—Three British planes were shot down over German territory last night, informed sources said today. Antiaircraft guns shot down two of the planes and a German fighter plane the third, it was said. No military objectives were hit during the night raid, Nazis reported, and the planes were declared not to have penetrated deeply. The British did not come "anywhere near Berlin," it was added.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—With the days becoming shorter and winter fogs drifting closer to blanket England, Germany's air force is redoubling its efforts to force a quick military decision.

Air battles raged thruout today and for the first time in weeks the German high command withheld its evening communique until late tonight, with authorized sources stating that important messages would be forthcoming later.

At 10 p. m. the first communique was issued by the German air force. It stated that bombers, escorted by fighter squadrons, again attacked airfields and hangars of the royal air force in southeast England. A number of hangars and barracks were said to have been destroyed and others set afire.

Report 86 Planes Downed.

The Germans said 86 British planes were shot down, while admitting the loss of 23.

The Nazis gave no details of the raids on British air fields, but it was understood that bombers attacked London's main airport, Croydon.

The raids were preceded by air bombardments of British ports, particularly Liverpool, Chatham, on the Thames estuary, Bristol, and Swansea, in southwest England, Sunday night.

In normal times, Liverpool is rated as Britain's second biggest port, with London first. With the mouth of the Thames lying close to German controled air bases in Holland, Belgium, and northern France, Germans expressed the belief that Liverpool is now England's most important harbor, handling the bulk of English seaborne trade.

Bomb Outskirts of Berlin.

British bombers, it was said, bombed the outskirts of Berlin Sunday night, but did not fly over the center of the capital. The Germans said that, due to the reënforcements of Berlin's antiaircraft guns, the bombers were unable to cross the dense barrage.

The German war communique announced that two British destroyers were torpedoed and sunk by submarines in the North sea. The communique added that the mining of British ports was continued. Since Aug. 11 the mining of British harbors has been carried out by parachute mines.

OUT OF COFFEE! PARIS DRINKS ENGLAND'S TEA

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 28 [Via Berlin] [Delayed].—"No coffee today."

For the first time since the German occupation of Paris, I was told this today in a little cafe near the Paris Opera. To all customers the announcement was catastrophic.

Until now, it has been difficult and sometimes impossible, to buy unground coffee at the grocer's, but cafes always served a hot, blackish liquid called coffee. In fact, one reason given for the scarcity of coffee in the stores has been that stocks were reserved for the cafes.

The average Parisian thinks that being without his morning coffee at home is only a slight handicap compared with not getting it in his favorite cafe. For, in spite of the talk now about the extreme alcoholism of the French people, coffee was the beverage chiefly consumed in the cafes.

Among the customers annoyed in the little cafe were three German officers. Their faces expressed no less disappointment than the Parisians'. Like the others, they had to content themselves with tea, which the French make badly, and for which they have little taste. Ironically, the tea served to the Germans and others was a British brand. The little tags on the tiny sacks put in the teapot revealed this fact.

REPORT JAPAN DEMANDS USE OF INDO-CHINA

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 2.—A virtual ultimatum that Japanese troops be permitted to pass thru Indo-China for military operations against China, has been delivered to the authorities of the French possession, according to information received today by a foreign embassy.

The report said the Japanese had asked for an "immediate reply." It is believed the reported Japanese insistence is connected with the critical situation facing Japanese troops in Lungchow, on the Indo-China border.

Surrounded by Chinese, a Japanese contingent of a few thousand men is said to be heavily besieged, and it is believed the Japanese may wish to extricate or reënforce them thru Indo-China. Diplomatic sources in Hanoi say that Japanese wounded soldiers from Lungchow already are being brought into Indo-China.

FRANCE CLAIMS GABON, IN AFRICA, REMAINS LOYAL

VICHY, France, Sept. 2 (AP).—The Gabon region of French Equatorial Africa remains loyal to the Vichy government, the ministry of colonies declared today.

[This conflicts with an assertion made at London by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, self-designated leader of all "free Frenchmen," that Gabon had joined other French African possessions, as well as French Indo-China in Asia, in support of French forces still fighting at Britain's side.]

Gov. Gen. Boisson of French West Africa, the ministry said, telegraphed that Gabon had decided to support the Vichy government.

Report Caribbean Isles Plan Plebiscite

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Sept. 2 (AP).—The French island possessions of Martinique and Guadeloupe in the Caribbean sea intend to hold a plebiscite to determine whether to continue under the Vichy government or switch to Gen. Charles de Gaulle's forces, according to reports reaching here tonight.

BRITISH COUNT UP YEAR'S BAG: 1,967 GERMAN PLANES

Claim 750 More Probably Were Destroyed.

LONDON, Sept. 2 (AP).—Nearly 2,000 German warplanes were shot down by British fighter planes and antiaircraft defenses in the first year of the war against Germany, the air ministry reported tonight. The ministry said the fighters shot down 1,771 and the antiaircraft guns 196, a total of 1,967.

In a review of the air war, the ministry indicated the bulk of the German losses came in the last two and one-half months. It reported 1,500 German planes were destroyed since the large scale raids on England were begun on June 18. The bag in August was put at 967.

Probably 750 more German aircraft "will never fly again," the ministry added, contending that "day by day our fighters have proved more than equal to the enemy."

Own Losses "Considerable."

British losses were admitted to be "considerable," but the ministry said the ratio was in Britain's favor and that many British pilots are saved even when their machines are lost.

Interception of German night raiders presents many problems, the ministry acknowledged, but declared these were being met "with increasing success."

Germany never has placed much reliance on night bombing, the ministry observed, yet it foresaw the possibility that night attacks will be increased.

Leaflet Raids Praised.

The royal air force's "steady night bombing of Germany," was declared to have been successful, and this was attributed largely to the much criticized leaflet raids early in the war to points as distant as Prague and Vienna. These, the ministry said, gave the British flyers an "invaluable knowledge of Germany and an ability to navigate over the country successfully in the worst weather."

The air force's mileage in the year was reported as 17,000,000 miles, the equivalent of 700 times around the world.

RUMANIA FACES GERMAN THREAT OF OCCUPATION

Seeks to Curb Outbursts Against Axis.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 2 (AP).—A semiofficial German threat to occupy all Rumania with Nazi troops unless antiaxis agitation is curbed spurred Rumanian authorities today to hustle hundreds of demonstrators off to concentration camps.

A government announcement said 25 "alarmists" already had been sentenced and two former cabinet officials were under arrest for outbursts against the German and Italian-dictated surrender of northern Transylvania to Hungary. German officials here threatened the occupation after Berlin demanded Bucharest to explain the attacks on Germans.

One former cabinet member, an Iron Guardist whose name was not disclosed, was under "house arrest" and former Minister of Culture Chita was jailed on a charge of delivering an inflammatory speech.

Armed Resistance Likely.

Armed resistance to Hungarian occupation of Transylvania was reported likely in high official circles. Gen. Ion Gargolina has sent word to Bucharest from the Transylvania frontier that he and his men would resist, and Gen. Mihai Corniciu, former minister of war, informed the general staff that his men on the border were eager to fight.

Juliu Maniu, Rumanian peasant leader, and close friends are reported now in Cluj, ancient capital of Transylvania, organizing for military resistance.

One important Rumanian official said such resistance might mean Hungary would call in the German army to effect the transfer of the territory and it then would go down in history as a military seizure, which would permit Rumania to argue at some future peace conference that the area was not voluntarily relinquished.

Report Nazis at Border.

At the same time, unconfirmed reports circulated in government quarters that two units of German motorized troops had arrived at the border town of Sighet, where Hungarian residents already were said to have taken over communications transportation services, military posts, and other strategic points.

[In Budapest the official Hungarian news agency said the mixed Hungarian-Rumanian commission agreed the occupation of northern Transylvania would begin next Thursday, with Magyar troops to take over the entire ceded territory by Sept 13. A German radio report from Bucharest said Rumania had rejected a Bulgarian demand for removal of the population of southern Dobruja.]

Bucharest generally appeared calmer following Sunday's turbulent mob demonstrations. Military and civil authorities said they believed the situation was under control tonight.

Call Protest Meeting.

Defying government orders against further demonstrations, leaders in Transylvania called a protest meeting for next Sunday at Brasov, where Nazi flags were torn down over the vehement protest of German officials.

King Carol's palace, all public buildings and the Italian and German legations in Bucharest remained under heavy guard.

The massed guards were augmented by armored cars patroling the streets with machine guns protruding from their turrets.

The disorders at Brasov, where the crowds shouted "Down with Hitler! Down with Mussolini!" forced cancellation of German automobile races for which German minister Wilhelm Fabricius and other Nazi dignitaries were present.

Sees Soviet Envoy.

Fabricius later conferred with the new soviet minister, Arkedy I. Lavrentiev. It was reported unofficially that they discussed a secret note which Russia is said to have sent to Berlin asking "clarification" of a German guarantee to protect Rumania militarily.

BRITISH BLAST ITALIAN PORT IN DAY-LONG RAIDS

Claim Many Hits Scored on African Harbor.

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 2 (AP).—Day long British air raids on the port of Assab, Eritrea, yesterday were reported by a Royal Airforce communique tonight.

Port buildings and warehouses were hit in "a series" of attacks, it said, on the Italian port near the narrow strait of Bab el Mandeb, opposite the British protectorate of Aden.

Bomb Italian Areas.

ROME, Sept. 2 (AP).—British aircraft carried the war to Italy's northern industrial Piedmont and Lombardy again today, but the high command announced they were scattered by vigorous Italian ground and air defenders.

Only the village of Varesotto was hit by bombs, a communique said, and no great damage was caused, altho the British dropped flares in an effort to locate their "presumed objectives." The loss of two Italian planes was admitted.

A raid on Sardinia also was described by the high command, which said the British scattered explosives at random over the rugged countryside.

Claim Plane Downed.

British planes attempting to blast Italian islands in the Red sea off the Eritrean shore lost one of their number, the Italian communique said, at Harmil Island, 80 miles from Massaua.

Italy said the British at Maman, Sudan town on the road between Kassala and the Red sea near the Eritrean border, were "bombed and machine gunned successfully."

Meanwhile, an authoritative source denied reports that Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano would go to Tirana, capital of Italian conquered Albania, to address the assembly this week.

50 BOMBS FALL ON DIGNE, CITY IN FREE FRANCE

VICHY, France, Sept. 2 (AP).—Digne, capital of the Basses-Alpes department in unoccupied southeastern France, was heavily bombed early this morning, the official Havas news agency announced tonight.

Fifty bombs were dropped on the important communications center, which is about 50 miles northwest of the Riviera city of Cannes and approximately 40 miles from the Italian border.

There was heavy damage but no casualties, the agency said. Several fires were started and burned for nearly an hour.

500 NAZI PLANES CROSS SKY OVER DOVER IN A DAY

Give No Hint That Hitler Is Easing Blows.

BY GUY MURCHIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 2.—Whatever Fuehrer Adolph Hitler has in mind in his aerial offensive against Britain, he has not yet shown any sign of slackening, or even levelling off, his crescendo of attack.

The Tribune correspondent today saw more than 500 German planes passing over the Dover area on their way to the interior of Britain—twinkling specks against the deep blue sky, like sixth magnitude stars on the borderline of visibility—arranged in beautiful patterns of 18, 36, and 54, but so high that it was impossible to see them until one methodically scanned the whole sky in the direction of the steady drone of their motors. Noticeable thru a telescope was the fact that the escorts of fighters protecting the bombers seemed to be slightly larger than formerly.

Dog Fights by the Dozen.

Tho dozens of dog fights began high over Dover and the diving and screeching of falling planes could be heard at intervals all day, only four planes actually fell within sight of Dover. From reports from surrounding towns, however, the southeast countryside is well spotted with the wreckage of planes shot down during the last few days' tremendous air battles.

The Germans avoid fighting; they let the British planes do the attacking. The Nazi formations kept deliberately flying to the westward and northwest, even while royal air force machines bore down on them. Only when the British were about to open fire with machine guns did the Nazis break up their formations and begin swarming around the sky like skilled boxers in the prize ring seeking an opening.

Balloon Busters Fail to Call.

A striking feature of Dover's day was the failure of balloon busters to make their customary visits. The Nazis seem not to have gained from their balloon attacks, except possibly in the acquisition of valuable knowledge. Some believe they have decided to cease the balloon attacks because they do not pay, even if they could shoot down 20 balloons for every Messerschmitt lost. Actually, the balloons have proved more valuable in luring Messerschmitts within easy range of antiaircraft guns than as defense against dive bombers. The dive bombers have rarely been used in the battle of Britain, even after a balloon barrage has been cleared out of the way.

Ships Sail from Canton as Japanese Lift Ban

HONGKONG, Sept. 2 (AP).—British and Japanese merchant ships arrived here tonight from Canton after the Japanese lifted a ban, imposed on Aug. 30, on all commercial navigation in the Pearl river during disembarkation of Japanese troops. Advices from Macao, Portuguese colony near the mouth of the river, said strong Japanese units landed on Chinese territory near there and were restoring control after a defeat suffered by Chinese mercenaries hired by the Japanese.

RIVIERA SPRAWLS IN SUN AND WAITS WAR'S BAD TIMES

Nice Loses Its Tourists; Distress Feared.

[This is the fourth of a series of articles by a Tribune correspondent who is making a tour of unoccupied regions of France.]

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NICE, France, Sept. 2.—Along the sunny stretch of shore between Monte Carlo and Toulon everything remains unchanged. War hardly touched this section of France. Some bombs were thrown at an air field near Cannes and the inhabitants of Nice could hear cannon fire during an attack on Menton in June.

But that was a brief interlude in a hot summer and now, except for the lack of the usual summer visitors, prohibition of auto traffic, food restrictions, and thinner crowds of bathers along the beaches, one finds no difference between this summer and last.

At noon, and again late in the afternoon, thousands of people at scores of beaches all along the coast swim in the sea, sprawl on the hot sands, paddle boats, and eat ice cream cones amid a flowery setting of mimosa and oleanders.

Distress in Winter Feared.

This section of the world, however, lives on its tourist traffic, and there is fear that winter may bring distress when the full effect of the stoppage of visitors is felt.

[Nice normally expects 300,000 visitors in the winter and 100,000 in the summer.]

Mayor Jean Medicin of Nice has been to Vichy to confer with Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, chief of state, about the situation, which involves a question of supplies as well as money.

The refugee problem here has been less acute than elsewhere because the Italian border is near and fewer persons fled in this direction as France was invaded. Hotels and restaurants have plenty of room in comparison with those in central part of the country.

Business Good at Shops.

Stores, shops, movies, and casinos, however, have plenty of customers, and goods seem to change hands freely. While private cars have been practically forced off the road in this section, and entirely forbidden to circulate on Sundays, there is a 15 minute bus service between Nice and Monte Carlo, besides trains.

The Monte Carlo casino yesterday was flourishing briskly with plenty of gamblers for small stakes. Seven roulette tables were working, three baccarat games were in progress, and one chemin de fer game was going, with 1,000 franc chips circulating freely.

Posted in the entrance of the casino is a large picture of the duke and duchess of Windsor shown entertaining guests at dinner.

Play in the casino is permitted from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 11:30 at night. This week, in fact, the 11:30 o'clock closing has been established along virtually the entire coast.

Public Works Planned.

The Riviera having practically no industry, the unemployment problem hits this region hard when there is no tourist business. Public works programs are being planned to take care of the increased unemployment expected to develop when winter comes and the demobilization is completed.

The coast is crowded with cinema artists and this has led to consideration of a project to center French movie industries here and to turn Nice and Cannes into a sort of Hollywood, abandoning the present studios in Paris. Lack of money is an obstacle to the plan.

Altho Nice is heavily populated with Italians, there seems to have been little disturbance after Italy declared war. Some arrests were made, but for the most part no political agitation took place and only a few Italians left for Italy.

Stores of Jews Smashed.

Recently, however, there have been strong anti-Semitic outbreaks. A few nights ago, this correspondent saw crowds of young toughs smashing windows of Jewish owned stores in the principal street until they were rounded up by the police. Another window smashing outbreak occurred later that night.

While not exaggerated, one effect of the war has been to bring a small wave of moral and other restrictions. Bathers no longer are permitted to parade in the streets in their bathing costumes or to sprawl in unorthodox attitudes on the sand, but aside from that the whole coast leads its lazy life, not worrying much about what is going to happen to this region, politically, when the peace treaties are negotiated after the war.

Starlet Is Wed

ARLENE WHELAN.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 2 [Special].—Making up their minds in a cafe last night, Arlene Whelan, Titian-haired film starlet, and Alexander D'Arcy, actor, eloped to Las Vegas, Nev., early today. They were accompanied by Jimmie Fidler, Hollywood columnist, and Mrs. Fidler.

Miss Whelan, who was a film discovery of 1937, when a director found her working as a manicure in a Hollywood barbershop, has been seen in D'Arcy's company for the last year and a half. Miss Whelan was a success in her first picture, "Kidnaped," in which she was cast opposite Warner Baxter. Her studio is preparing her for a series of films. D'Arcy has appeared in numerous supporting rôles, one being in "The Prisoner of Zenda." The actress gave her age as 23, D'Arcy his as 31.

Son Is Born to Widow of Co-Pilot Killed in Crash

Beaver, Pa., Sept. 2 (AP).—Just 36 hours after her husband died in the crash of an air transport in Virginia, Mrs. Louise Moore, 25 years old, gave birth today to a son. Her husband, J. Paul Moore, 30, was co-pilot of the Pennsylvania-Central air liner that fell Saturday, killing 25 persons.

FARDY ASSUMES POST AS CHIEF OF CRIMINAL COURT

Successor to Prystalski; Officials at Ceremony.

Judge James F. Fardy took office as chief justice of the Criminal court yesterday in a courtroom thronged with attorneys and public officials. He succeeded Chief Justice John Prystalski, who was master of ceremonies at the ceremony.

The new chief justice was praised by Judge Michael L. McKinley, who has served two terms as chief justice. Judge McKinley said Chief Justice Fardy is a brilliant and conscientious jurist who never shirked a case.

Judge Fardy replied in an address thanking the judges of the Superior and Circuit courts, from whose ranks the Criminal court judges are chosen, for the confidence they reposed in him when they elected him chief justice. Judges who will serve with him in the Criminal court are Joseph A. Graber, John A. Sbarbaro, John F. Bolton, Julius Miner, and Walter J. La Buy.

Officials at Ceremony.

Among those present to congratulate the new chief justice were Thomas J. Bowler, clerk of the court; Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien; Benjamin Bachrach, public defender; Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, who represented State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney; Coroner A. L. Brodie and State Senator A. L. Marovitz. Bowler presented an oil portrait of the new chief justice, done without his knowledge from photographs, by Frank Alberts, the official jail photographer.

The ceremonies were witnessed by Chief Justice Fardy's sister, Mrs. Sadie Callahan; his aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Perkins, and his nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. William Callahan.

Chief Justice Prystalski filed a report of his stewardship for the year upon retiring. It showed that 1,963 defendants, or 88 per cent of those tried, were convicted. Of these, 314 were given a second chance thru court probation.

Returns to Circuit Court.

Judge Prystalski will return to the common law branch of the Circuit court after a vacation. According to custom a judge holds the post of chief justice one year at a time. Judge Prystalski was chief justice twice in the last eight years and during his previous term started a crime war which cleaned up the docket.

Judge Prystalski's report showed that 2,231 defendants stood trial during the court year, of which 268 were acquitted.

The report showed that 228 defendants were tried by jury and that 129 were convicted and 99 acquitted. Of 1,400 defendants tried by the judges without a jury, 1,231 were convicted and 169 acquitted. Six hundred and three defendants appeared on pleas of guilty.

COURTS REOPEN TODAY; HEAVIEST CALL SINCE 1937

The civil branches of the Circuit and Superior courts open their fall terms today with the heaviest call since 1937. The two courts are confronted with a total call of 27,275 cases, of which 15,865 are in the Superior and 11,410 in the Circuit court.

Nineteen judges will sit in the Superior court and 17 in the Circuit, including five downstate judges in the Circuit branches. They are City Judges William F. Borders of East St. Louis, John T. Cummings of Kewanee, and Robert A. Meier of Chicago Heights, and Circuit Judges Lloyd M. Bradley of Carbondale and George W. Bristow of Paris.

There are 7,100 divorce cases on file in the two courts. The balance of the cases are chancery matters, appeals from decisions in the Probate and Justice courts, the Illinois Commerce commission, the state industrial commission, and similar regulatory bodies.

The Appellate court, consisting of nine judges, also convenes today, but no rulings are to be handed down until Oct. 1. The pending call of 414 cases is a record low total.

HALLECK PASTES 'UNFIT!' LABEL ON NEW DEALERS

Can't Take Country Thru Stress, He Says.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Congressman Charles A. Halleck of Indiana yesterday labeled the Roosevelt administration incompetent. He told the annual Republican picnic crowd at Riverview park that those now in power are incapable of handling the situation now confronting the United States.

Halleck, who won recognition as one of the outstanding younger Republicans in congress long before he attained his present distinction as the nominator of Wendell Willkie at Philadelphia, joined with Dwight H. Green, nominee for governor, and Wayland Brooks, nominee for United States senator, in praise of Willkie and the Republican platform, but his attack on the New Deal brought the most applause.

Tell Labor's Prospects.

All speakers, and particularly Judge Oscar F. Nelson, nominee for state's attorney of Cook county, contended that labor will receive better treatment from a Republican administration than it has under the Roosevelt régime.

After his discussion of the long failure to provide jobs for the jobless, Congressman Halleck turned to the international situation.

"There is yet another reason," he said, "why the inefficiencies and general failures of the New Deal must be stopped and a real administration put in power.

"We are now menaced by the danger of attack from foreign powers. That danger to some is so real that we are embarking on one of the greatest programs of national defense that the world has ever seen.

Cites Business Experience.

"We are all for national defense, but right here let me say that does not include sending a single American boy to fight again on the battlefields of Europe.

"Who is going to build the airplanes, guns, and other machines of war? Do you think the New Dealers, the Corcorans, and the Cohens can do it? Of course not! They have never had any business experience just as Mr. Roosevelt has never had any business experience.

"Wendell Willkie and a Republican administration will do that job. They will bring order out of chaos, start the factories going, provide jobs—real jobs—for the people who want to work, and get the airplanes and guns rolling off the production lines.

"We are beset with the ravages of a continuing depression and the threat of aggression from without. We must put our house in order and do it quickly. It is a real challenge to all of us."

Condemns Dictator Bill.

Dwight Green discussed his attitude toward labor and what his labor policy will be if he is elected governor and specifically condemned the Overton-Russell amendment to conscript business.

"Under this amendment the President is given greater power—in peace or wartime—than ever has been granted to the chief executive.

"Its threat to labor lies in the power given the President to take immediate possession of any plant or facility and operate it with federal employés. They will be deprived of the right of collective bargaining.

Fears Losses by Labor.

"By the President's own commitment, such employés will not have a right to strike. Unions can be abolished. That is what happened in Germany as a republic under similar provisions of its constitution. Industry was conscripted and unions were abolished."

Senatorial Nominee Brooks condemned what he described as the present administration's continued promotion of antagonism between employé and employer, branding it a menace to American progress and prosperity. He charged the New Deal with complete responsibility for the present unpreparedness of the United States.

Judge Nelson, who for 25 years before he went on the bench was a vice president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, said:

"Now, in 1940, with 11 millions unemployed, labor's patience is completely exhausted. Wage earners, like all other citizens, view with alarm the efforts of the head of the New Deal to assume additional power. They are alive to the fact that in the last year he has made direct efforts to involve us in the European war."

FLAMING PLANE IN 2,000 FOOT DIVE; 2 BURNED

Wichita Falls, Tex., Sept. 2 (AP).—Two Oklahoma City, Okla., men rode a flaming airplane in a 2,000 foot dive to earth today and escaped with burns.

V. V. Van Landingham, 29 year old salesman, the pilot, suffered second and third degree burns on his limbs, face, and back. Officials reported his condition serious. His passenger, W. L. Barnett, 24, was burned about the hands.

Witnesses said the ship caught fire and Van Landingham immediately put it into a dive and whipped out the flames.

The fuselage covering was completely burned away and the control stick handles burned off. Only the wings remained covered as the plane landed.

Guards His Painting

Ralph Emerson Whitney, 1116 Ainslie street, painted a picture Saturday of Wendell Willkie and placed it in the front window of his home. Yesterday he received a telephone call in which he was advised to take the picture down or else the window would be smashed. Mr. Whitney warned the callers—or any one else who tries to break the window—that he's prepared for them. He is going to sit up day and night with a gun and guard the portrait of the Republican Presidential nominee. Whitney is the father of Emerson Whitney, 48th ward Republican committeeman.

WARNS AGAINST CENTRALIZATION OF GOVERNMENT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2 (AP).—Declaring that totalitarianism was the challenge of the day, Senator James J. Davis [R., Pa.] told a radio audience today that a "bloodless revolution" in this country had resulted in a rapid "pyramiding of governmental power."

"Wherever centralized government has become supreme," he continued, "it has been necessary to increase military power in order to maintain the authority of the government. We are moving thru the cycle of power government such as has been seen in every other part of the world."

Davis declared that new social and labor legislation could be turned against democratic processes.

"This legislation is not self-operative," he said. "Its significance depends chiefly on the purposes of those to whom its administration is entrusted.

"The experience of other lands shows conclusively that fascism can use labor unions, social legislation, and all forms of voluntary organization as a front for its sinister power, deceiving people and lulling them into the false belief that they are still the rulers of their government."

WILLKIE SPENDS MUCH OF HOLIDAY IN PORCH SWING

Waves to Sightseers, but Performs Little Work.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rushville, Ind., Sept. 2.—Wendell Willkie observed the spirit of Labor day with a schedule which was, for him, fairly restful. The Republican Presidential nominee made no statements nor public appearances, save to wave occasionally to the crowds of visitors that formed periodically on the sidewalk in front of his rented home.

Willkie saw a few visitors, took care of some correspondence and worked on the series of speeches he will deliver on his western tour, starting September 14. It is understood that he listened to President Roosevelt's TVA dedication speech at Chattanooga, but he made no comment.

Nominee and Wife Applauded.

Today, as yesterday, hundreds of persons came to Rushville hoping to see the nominee or Mrs. Willkie. Cars bearing license plates from a score of states were parked beyond the barricades which keep traffic from passing the Willkie home, while their occupants walked past seeking a glimpse or a snapshot of the nominee.

Since Willkie likes to sit on the porch in a comfortable swing, many of those who came by had their wish gratified. As the crowds grew in size, some one generally started applause and the nominee would rise, wave to them, and sometimes say a few words of thanks. When Mrs. Willkie came on the porch, she also was applauded.

Important Parley Thursday.

Willkie has an important round table scheduled for Thursday when he will be host to Republican national committee members and state chairmen of 22 states north of the Mason-Dixon line at a luncheon and conference.

This gathering can be described as a precampaign pep meeting.

If congressional duties permit, Joseph W. Martin Jr., chairman of the Republican national committee, will be here Thursday. Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota is expected. He had planned to come to Rushville last night but was held in St. Paul by the death of Senator Ernest Lundeen, who was killed Saturday in the crash of an air liner near Lovettsville, Va.

TWO FIRST VOTERS WIN TRIPS TO CAPITAL WITH G. O. P. ESSAYS

Two first voters yesterday were awarded trips to Washington, D. C., in an essay contest conducted by the Cook County Young Republicans. The two winners, whose names were announced at the Republican picnic in Riverview park, are Robert F. Jefferies, 21 years old, 4817 Montana street, and Miss Gail Smith, 25, of 2648 North Mozart street. The subject of their essays was "Why I will vote Republican in November." One hundred and sixty essays were entered in the contest.

Jefferies' essay said: "There is nothing to indicate that if my vote were for the Democratic party, with its dictatorial fashions, such as was exemplified at the recent Democratic convention, I would ever have a chance to vote again."

Miss Smith's said: "World situations demand our leaders have ability to face facts, deny self, and work hard, if the American way of living continues, and there is little evidence we can expect such qualities from the Democrats."

WALLACE SPEECH OF 1940 DEBATES HIS BOOK OF 1936

His Views on Religion and Democracy Differ.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—Interest in a book published in 1936 by Henry A. Wallace, the New Deal nominee for Vice President, has been revived by the emphasis he placed on religion and democracy in his speech of acceptance.

In his acceptance speech, Wallace depicted the campaign as a struggle for supremacy between President Roosevelt and Hitler, strongly suggesting that a vote against Mr. Roosevelt is a vote for Hitler. He portrayed Mr. Roosevelt as "the symbol of democracy" to all the nations of this hemisphere and in the opinion of the world. Against the dark and bloody faith of Hitlerism, the New Deal, according to Wallace, sets "the faith of Americanism, of Protestantism, of Catholicism, of Judaism."

Democracy is the very heart of these religious, and democracy and Americanism are identical, Wallace said.

Wallace vs. Wallace.

Republican leaders in Washington have dug up what Wallace said about democracy and religion in his 1936 book, "Whose Constitution?" and more will be heard about the subject in this campaign. They will contend that Wallace, as President Roosevelt's handpicked running mate, was debating with the real Wallace, who expressed his views in 1936 when he was secretary of agriculture and not running for office.

In his book Wallace frankly advocated for the United States an adaptation of Marxian socialism [communism] which he called the "coöperative commonwealth."

In discussing Protestantism as a contributing factor in the growth of the United States, Wallace declared: "The people have largely discarded a belief in the supernatural and a future life, from which they originally obtained much of their driving power."

Weakness Found in Plan.

"The dominant contribution of the Protestant concept in the world of affairs," Wallace wrote, "was a strong emphasis on the idea that the individual best worships God by regular labor, frugal living, and careful saving. . . . Iron men, resolute women, able to bear hardship and endless toil because they thought they were carrying out God's will, laid down the outlines of a structure which made it possible to conquer a continent in record breaking time, and always they carried their families with them, built their school houses and churches, and imbued the next generation with the principles of industry and thirift."

But the weakness of such habits of life, according to Wallace, was the accumulation of riches. He said in his book that "the Protestant ethics, freed from the restraints of the Roman church, failed to develop an effective discipline for the social administration of great accumulations of property."

Adaptability Is Questioned.

Concluding his treatment of religion as a factor in the development of the country, Wallace said: "The strengths and the weaknesses of the United States are undoubtedly in considerable measure the outgrowth of the fervent concepts of such men as Martin Luther, John Calvin, and John Knox. Probably no mental approach to reality was better adapted to rapidly expanding wealth production than the Protestant approach. Unfortunately, it has not been quite as well adapted to wealth distribution and wealth consumption in line with the doctrines of the New Testament."

Wallace declared that the dominant idea of the future "will probably have to do with the discovery of more adequate methods of attaining unity in diversity." He stated that "the totalitarian or corporate state represents the ultimate in unity but it also represents the loss of democratic privileges which we hold so dear."

Wallace made it clear, however, that the coöperative commonwealth he had in mind for America would have no place for the profit system or free, competitive enterprise.

"In the economic world," he wrote, "is is inevitable that more and more emphasis is going to be laid on the idea of coöperation as distinguished from free competition. The only way in which democracy can survive the logical onslaught of the dictator-state aspect of communism or fascism is to develop the genuine coöperative ideal to the limit.

Coöperative Way Defended.

"Producers' coöperatives are not enough. For the most part they merely take the place of middle men, and while in many cases they save a substantial part of the middle man's profit for the producer, they do not have any very profound effect on the people whom they serve.

"The coöperative way of life must pervade the community, and this means there must be consumers' coöperatives as well as producers' coöperatives."

Wallace did not say that the new American system of government should not draw inspiration from Europe, even from Marxian ideas with suitable modifications.

"Insofar as our problems are the same as the overseas problems, and insofar as other nations, because they are older, have gained experience which should be of service to us, there is every reason for studying that which they have learned," Wallace wrote. "We are a part of the human race and cannot stand completely apart from any profound spiritual or philosophic doctrine."

REPUBLICAN

No Third Term

(Provided by the National Committee of Democrats-for-Willkie.)

This Democrats-for-Willkie column has a healthy respect for the able, well written Democrats-for-Roosevelt column next door. On Nov. 5 most of us Democrats-for-Willkie will be voting the same Democratic state and local tickets as the Democrats-for-Roosevelt. Since we are Democrats, this will be our pleasure and privilege. We may almost say it will be our duty. But since we are Democrats, we also believe it will be our duty to vote for Mr. Willkie, because he strikes us as much more democratic than Mr. Roosevelt.

We respect the opinion of those who think Mr. Roosevelt is still a Democrat. We trust they respect our honest conviction that he is not.

In fact, we don't see how they can well do otherwise, if they respect the principles of Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland, Wilson, and other historic leaders of the Democratic party.

It is these principles, with few exceptions, that Mr. Roosevelt has thrown out on the scrap heap.

Two Terms Enough for Any Man.

One of the greatest of these principles, and the latest to be scrapped by Mr. Roosevelt, is the outstanding democratic tradition that eight years in the presidency are enough for any man.

Belief in the tradition is so deep-seated in the Democratic party, and indeed in the country, that it is worth asking why this unwritten law has almost the force of an article of the constitution.

Jefferson knew the answer, and Jackson and Cleveland and Wilson. Mr. Roosevelt knew it once when he said, "There is no indispensable man."

That answer, of course, is that Americans have a healthy, instinctive distrust of keeping the great powers of the presidency too long in the hands of any individual. They have never failed to rebuke and defeat attempts to hold those powers more than eight years.

They refused to give Grant a third term. They even refused to give such a dynamic liberal as Theodore Roosevelt a third term. And our guess is that they feel the dangers of breaking this long tested principle are greater than ever before.

President's Powers Are Growing.

Under Mr. Roosevelt the powers of the presidency have grown far beyond those of any other peacetime administration, and in many respects beyond those of any wartime administration. They're still growing.

Mr. Roosevelt's attitude in setting himself apart and refusing to discuss crucial defense measures seems to us to be just a little too high and mighty. We Americans have always liked to think that a President was one of us and had confidence in us. And the Presidential intimation that his opponents are playing politics with defense whenever they raise a question about his program does not sit gracefully with us. Patriotism and concern for our national safety are not confined to Mr. Roosevelt or those who see eye to eye with him. Mr. Willkie and his supporters are as sincerely interested as Mr. Roosevelt and his supporters.

The practice of politics and the practice of patriotism are about evenly divided between the two parties. No party leader, not even if he happens to be President as well, is justified in cloaking himself in the claim that he is the patriot and the other fellow is the politician. That's an old [to use a big word for us] totalitarian tactic.

There's No Indispensable Man.

We said yesterday that we took little stock in the charge that Mr. Roosevelt wanted to make himself a dictator. We'll need more evidence of the Roosevelt ambitions before we do. Yet there is something disturbingly familiar in the steady centralization of authority in the "chief of state," in the steady increase of government employés whose interests are linked with his, in the steady barrage of propaganda that he is "the indispensable man." We have noted similar goings on across the Atlantic, and we don't like to think of anything that remotely resembles them happening here.

Some of our readers will say we're all wet. They'll tell us that we're living in a different world from Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland, and even Wilson, and that it's sheer nonsense to judge the third term issue or any issue in the light of these "old fogy" democratic principles.

It's a different world, all right. But human nature is the same as it always was, and Presidents are human, too.

The unconscious appetite for power, the conviction that "I am the indispensable man," can operate as strongly today in the White House as it could when the nation was founded.

That's why we think Jefferson's warning about continuing a President in office more than two terms is as sound, sensible, and timely as it was then. And more so.

With this said, we adjourn until next Monday, when we Democrats-for-Willkie will have some more to say on the third term branch of our party. Meanwhile, let's not forget that in these troubled times "country before party, no third term" is something all of us ought to think about seriously.

DEMOCRATIC.

Willkie Ignores Party Pledges

(Provided by the Democratic National Committee.)

Wendell Willkie's "front porch" campaign against the Russell-Overton amendment to the conscription bill has widened the breach between him and the Republican leaders in congress.

A feeling of antagonism between the nominee and his nominal spokesmen in congress developed shortly after the Philadelphia convention when Willkie decided to go it alone without benefit of advice from party leaders. He runs the party, or attempts to, like a corporation head handing down orders to subordinates. On questions of policy he asks neither advice nor counsel.

Now Willkie has seriously embarrassed his most sincere senate supporters, many of whom must run on the same ticket with him this fall. It is the kind of split which so often has brought disaster to the party in past campaigns.

In supporting the provision to draft man power, while condemning the amendment to take over industrial plants if the owners refuse to coöperate in the defense program, Willkie has completely reversed the stand taken by senate Republicans. A majority of the G. O. P. senators voted against drafting men and an even larger majority voted in favor of the Russell-Overton amendment. Even those who voted against the latter position did so because they are opposed to conscription of any kind.

The Party Platforms.

The position of this group was well stated by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, an opponent of conscription in any form. Said he:

"Before I vote to conscript men I shall certainly vote to conscript property. I have more respect for a human life than I have for a lathe. . . .

"There are plenty of defenders of private property in the senate, and I am one of them, but property cannot claim a sanctity which is refused to human life."

In his repeated roars from Rushville, asserting that the power to conscript industrial plants will "sovietize" American economy, Candidate Willkie is evidently unaware that the Republican platforms of 1924 and 1928 specifically indorsed the wartime drafting of "material resources," a much wider power than the one conferred on the government by the Russell-Overton amendment. These platform planks, identical in language, said:

"We believe that in time for war the nation should draft for its defense not only its citizens but also every material resource which may contribute to success. The country demands that should the United States ever again be called upon to defend itself by arms the President be empowered to draft such material resources as may be required. . . ."

In Time of Peace.

It may be objected that the country is not at war. The modern blitzkrieg, however, is launched without a formal declaration of war and the setting up of defense machinery after fighting has started might be too late. If the current emergency justifies the drafting of man power, as Mr. Willkie seems to think, it certainly justifies whatever else defense measures may be necessary.

The 1932 Republican platform stated that it is the duty of government "in time of peace" to perfect plans for adequate defense. The wording of that plank seems especially well adapted to the present situation.

Congress may deem it advisable to reword the Russell-Overton amendment or, in the light of existing circumstances, it may decide that the power is unnecessary at this time. But Candidate Willkie has gone far beyond that. He has condemned totally a principle of defense for wartime which has behind it the complete indorsement of successive Republican platforms and the indorsement of every responsible Republican leader in congress.

The charge that such a power, used merely as "birch rod in the cupboard" to protect the nation's vital interests, would stagnate industry and lead to dictatorship, is so much poppycock. In exploding that specious argument, Columnist Walter Lippman, a Willkie supporter, said:

"For the power of government to acquire private property for public purposes thru condemnation proceedings is as old as the common law. It is a power exercised somewhere in the United States every day in the week to build highways, school houses, parks, and other public facilities." He might have added that the condemnation power has been used for private utilities, like the one headed by Mr. Willkie before he became a Presidential candidate, and no one ever claimed that it was destroying the basic rights of free Americans.

Offending Munitions Makers.

Mr. Willkie says that several years ago the same "catch words" were used to drive American industry out of the production of high explosives. Perhaps so, but he failed to add that the senate investigation which angered the du Ponts and other munitions makers was carried on by two of his own most active supporters, Senators Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota and Vandenberg of Michigan. The lone Democrat on the committee has never been known as a Roosevelt follower.

9,152 CITY SHOPS JOIN IN RELIEF STAMP PROGRAM

A new list of surplus foods which reliefers may purchase with blue food stamps will go into effect today, Ellsworth F. J. Reilly, representative of the Surplus Marketing administration, said yesterday. Fresh carrots were added to the list and fresh snap beans were removed from it.

Reilly said the new list will continue in effect thru Sept. 30. The blue food stamps, which are distributed to reliefers free in the amount of 50 cents for each $1 worth of orange food stamps purchased, may be used only to buy surplus foods.

At the end of August 9,152 retail food outlets in the city were participating in the program. Reilly estimated they represent 75 per cent of the city's retail food outlets. Estimates on the total number of outlets run as high as 17,000, he said, but they include many duplications of meat markets and groceries combined.

WALLACE TALKS AT CLOSING DAY OF NEGRO FAIR

Labor day crowds packed the Coliseum yesterday on the closing day of the American Negro Exposition, which has been in progress since July 4. On the final program were Henry A. Wallace, Democratic nominee for Vice President, who made a nonpolitical address; Paul Robeson, famous baritone, and the J. Wesley Jones chorus. The afternoon attendance was estimated at 12,000.

Mr. Wallace, who as secretary of agriculture sponsored the largest exhibit in the exposition—that of the United States department of agriculture at a cost of $25,000—devoted his address to the subject of national unity.

"One of the most effective ways to fight Fascism and Nazism in this country," he said, "is to fight class, religious, and race discrimination in the United States.".

THE SECOND YEAR.

The war enters its second year for Great Britain, now on its island fortress behind its navy and its air force. It was Sept. 3 a year ago when Mr. Chamberlain made his announcement to parliament to be followed in a few hours by the French declaration. There is still a bit of mystery in the French delay. The war trial in what is left of France may clear it up. One story is that the appeasers in France had not yet abandoned hope and that Italy was still trying to arrange a compromise.

A year of war has not meant 12 months of fighting. The changes which have taken place in Europe were imposed upon the vanquished nations in much less fighting time than that. The story of mistakes tragically suffered goes back several years. After several full dress rehearsals of the German strategy and tactics the blow upon no competent a military nation as France found it unprepared.

The new map of Europe cannot be ratified until after the Battle of Britain. September, it is generally regarded as certain, will bring the war to the climax. By all calculations the Germans are behind schedule. That may be because they found that more time would be needed in preparation or because they found that the British defense presented new problems. The British are confident and that does not seem to be a pose. They have met the testing out and know that they have not felt the full attack. If they can beat the grand attack off and throw back the invaders Herr Hitler will have a new problem to meet in his chancellory—the problem of having been checked and defeated in the thrust which should have delivered victory.

Then the winter will march on the scene, an ally, it is to be supposed, of the island fortress.

WHY LA GUARDIA WAS APPOINTED.

The satisfaction we feel as our policy for an alliance with Canada, urged for three years, takes the form of an accomplished fact has to swallow hard on the appointment of La Guardia as head of the American representation on the joint board. It was characteristic of Mr. Roosevelt's use of the war for his third term.

Mayor La Guardia has no qualifications for place or leadership on an international defense board. No one but a politician would have thought of him. A politician did think of him. Mr. Roosevelt wasn't sure he had him. He wanted to make sure. He did not want to miss a bet in New York City. La Guardia was delighted when this prostituted defense appointment was given him for political purposes. It may have accomplished just what Mr. Roosevelt intended.

Mr. Roosevelt never takes his eyes off the third term. That's the victory he sees in this war. It is what the war is all about.

SOUTH CAROLINA VOTES DRY.

Last week the voters of South Carolina asked the legislature to adopt prohibition. They did it in a referendum taken in connection with the holding of a primary election. The vote was 3 to 2 against liquor. The referendum is merely advisory and does not bind the state legislature.

However, due to the decisiveness of the vote, the general assembly which meets next year is likely to take action. Despite southerners' reputation for the use of mint julep, planters punch and New Orleans fizz, they have often voted to deprive themselves of alcoholic refreshment. When the 18th amendment to the constitution became effective in 1919, prohibition had already been in effect for 12 years in Alabama and Georgia, 11 years in Mississippi and North Carolina, 10 years in Tennessee, 5 years in Virginia, and 4 in South Carolina. All of these states quickly ratified the amendment.

When it was found that prohibition actually was unworkable and that there was more drinking of the moonshine in the Volstead era than there had been of the McCoy when the sale of liquor was legal, a widespread demand swept the country to repeal the 18th amendment. Ratification of the repealer was quickly brought about once congress had submitted an amendment and some of the southern states joined in. After constitutional repeal, all of the states except three adopted some form of licensing. South Carolina chose a system of independently owned liquor stores. The state is unable to find enough revenue to balance its budget, and it has been able to come within 2 millions of that objective by collecting 3 million dollars of liquor revenue.

From this distance the reason for the South Carolinians' strong desire for prohibition is not apparent. The sentiment of the state as to strong drink was not evident among its representatives who were recently here on party business. A possible explanation is state pride; why keep expensive stores open to sell Peoria and Louisville commodities fit for pantywaists, with all the talent in the hills capable of turning out a good and powerful grade of cawn. Some must also have figured that if the liquor stores are closed, thar's gold in them thar stills.

"UNWISE, UNPATRIOTIC."

Some of the New Deal editors have worked themselves into a lather of delight at their own cuteness in offering a reward to any one who can dig up a statement by Washington opposing the third term.

They evade the issue. It was not what Washington said but what he did that counted. He was the only man in our history who could have had a third term without serious opposition, and he did not take it. He did not push temptation aside. He was not tempted. He did not have to wrestle with his conscience because the thought of a third term never entered his mind.

While they profess to place great store on the fact that Washington did not say something, the New Dealers would prefer that no one mention what the founder of their party, Thomas Jefferson, did say. The most disgraceful scene of their disgraceful convention in the Chicago Stadium was when they booed Jefferson and the venerable Democrat, Carter Glass, who reminded them that Jefferson had said: "If some termination to the services of the chief magistrate be not fixed by the constitution or supplied by practice, his office, nominally for four years, will in fact become for life, and history shows how easily that degenerates into an inheritance."

Jefferson made that statement in a letter to the Vermont legislature more than a year before his second term expired. Two other Presidents of whom the Democrats boast were Madison and Monroe. Both made formal disclaimers of third term ambitions. Andrew Jackson, whose name is still so powerful with Democrats that the New Dealers have used it as a front for shaking down office holders by charging them $100 for a $2 dinner, set himself resolutely against a third term a few months after he started his second.

While the good sense of the Republicans was the force that eventually prevented the attempts of President Grant's followers to put him forward for a third term, every Democrat sitting in the house voted for the Springer resolution which in 1876 declared a third term "unwise, unpatriotic, and fraught with peril to our free institutions."

When identical language was presented to the senate in the La Follette resolution in 1928, after President Coolidge had already said he did not choose to run, a dozen or more Democrats still sitting in the senate joined in passing it. One of those senators was Dear Alben Barkley, who was the front man for the phony draft at the Stadium.

Today the country finds Barkley, McKellar, Pittman, Neely, Wagner, and others seeking to foist on it what only 12 years ago they termed "unwise, unpatriotic, and fraught with peril to our free institutions."

GOLD STILL COMES.

Gold continues to flow into the United States, last week's receipts amounting to 105 million dollars. Some that is dribbling in from such countries as Sweden, Netherland East Indies, and Portugal is being brought here obviously for safekeeping. But the bulk now comes from Canada, and apparently constitutes British remittances for their purchases in this country.

A chart in the financial section has shown how the stock of gold held by other countries has dwindled. There has been a drop from 13 billion dollars in 1933 to less than 5 billions in June. And of this amount 3¼ billions belonging to France, Netherlands, and Belgium has disappeared and may have fallen into the hands of the Germans. We now own 90 per cent of the world's stock of gold and 6 per cent is here for safekeeping.

If the present rate of inflow is maintained, we will have drained the other countries of all their gold in another year. This is a situation which has never before existed. During the world war the other countries added to their gold holdings.

The gold which has come to us has to a considerable extent been used to pay for our exports. It has therefore stimulated foreign trade. Soon there will be no more gold available for this purpose. Then it will be necessary, if we adhere to our traditional tariff policy, to accept some other commodity in payment for our goods. What else would we be willing to accept in unlimited quantities to be held out of use? For a while possibly tin, magnesium, rubber, but not billions of dollars' worth.

The other alternatives seem to be to reverse the gold flow and buy great quantities of foreign goods with our metal, or to redistribute the gold by extending long term credits. To take either of these steps it would be necessary to overcome tremendous opposition in the United States. Gold is a problem for which the future will have to find a sclution.

STOP SQUABBLING AND TRAIN MEN.

[Philadelphia Inquirer.]

A local labor leader tries to explain the scarcity of skilled mechanics for the Frankford arsenal by making the charge that employers have failed to train apprentices for a long period. To some extent, and for various causes, that is true.

But it is quite as true, as charged frequently by employers and employers' organizations, that certain unions, believing in a prosperity of scarcity, have long discouraged or even blocked apprentice training.

All this is water over the dam. Squabbling about who is at fault gets nowhere in the direction we have to go. How soon are industry and labor, working together, going to overcome the situation?

The bottleneck in the tool trade would be obvious without citing the fact that in the Frankford arsenal case only 160 skilled workers were found available out of 3,000 needed. This is extremely serious in view of our defense program's immediate requirements.

The American Society of Tool Engineers has worked out a plan for industry itself to train men already employed in less skilled work but who have the bent for mechanics and the intelligence to learn rapidly.

This plan will need the wholehearted coöperation not only of employers but of labor organizations, notably in adjusting working regulations and other factors. It should be started at once.

In any event there will be an appreciable delay before sufficiently trained men are ready, but nothing comes of bemoaning an inevitable delay. The real need is to get going and to make the time consumed as short as possible.

For saying that "the Dover docks have been blown to hell" a British bus inspector has been fined 68 and ordered to pay 380 court costs. The use of profanity evidently is frowned on by British courts.—Kansas City Star.

Mr. Roosevelt's own voice on a public platform, defending his own policies and performances, would carry infinitely more dignity and conviction than the voice of a sewer commissioner down in a Chicago cellar.—The Tulsa Tribune, Tulsa, Okla.

LITTLE SUMMER CABIN.

Other glad vacationers enjoy your shelter now,
But we own a part of you that no one else can take,
Days of precious memories of lake and leafy bough.

Other folks may sputter at your dim and smoky lamps;
Probably they tinker with the damper on the range;
Maybe they regret there are no waterworks in camps,

They'll find entertainment at your hospitable door;
Marveling at Northern Lights, listening to rains,
Feeding tiny chipmunks living underneath the floor.

Huckleberries succulent they'll find not far away;
Rowing, they will mark you by your birches on the bank;
Nightly they'll admire your vast celestial display,

Bring new love of Nature when they presently awake—
But two precious weeks of you in memory we keep,

PEACE COMES WITH RAIN.

How dear the privacy of rain!
The sheer, protecting, heavenly sheets
That shut out ugly houses and streets.
The world's harsh noises merge in a dream
And are drowned in the downward rushing stream.
I love the privacy of rain.

What sanctuary we attain
From mad pursuit of outward things.
A rainy day rare leisure brings
For logs white ashed, aglow; to read,
Or follow flitting fancy's lead.
I love the privacy of rain.

"POLIO" MAY START AS A MILD UPSET.

In many respects infantile paralysis remains today as much of an enigma as when it was first described a century ago. We fear its coming because it is so likely to result in physical crippling.

It is unfortunate that there is no test now known which will distinguish its onset from that of many other childhood afflictions. All too often the youngster is thought to be suffering from a cold or a mild infection. The temperature may not be high and there may be nothing immediately alarming about the picture. One factor, however, may be emphasized—namely, the victim is usually far more prostrated than with the average type of upset. At any rate, when drowsiness is extreme—particularly if accompanied by vomiting or intense headache—"polio" should be considered.

Other symptoms, such as diarrhea, sweating, and aching thruout the body, will serve as additional signposts for identification. Furthermore, the back and neck are more rigid than normal. While this manifestation may point to meningitis, stiffness of the upper region of the spine and marked weakness are fairly clear evidence that there is some trouble with the nervous system. Then it is that the physician will make a more critical examination, whereupon pain may be elicited by pressure over a nerve and tremors may be observed.

Strangely enough, in fully half the victims the appearance of paralysis is our first warning that we are facing this dread disease. There is reason to believe that more cases occur than are recognized or reported. Some are so mild that no loss of power ensues. The child may be indisposed or listless, with a distaste for food—perhaps shunning bright lights. But all this vanishes within 48 hours, and in another day or two recovery is complete.

One thing parents can look for is any change in the character of the breathing. If the rate is altered, if it becomes jerky or irregular—involving one side of the chest more than the other — the family physician should be called without delay. Sometimes there is difficulty in swallowing because some of the throat muscles have been rendered useless. It is in this form of the malady—when the function of the lungs is reduced—that the iron lung is so effective. The patient can be cared for adequately in a respirator and when his own muscles refuse to perform the act of breathing the machine will take over their work.

There is no specific serum that is curative altho blood taken from individuals who have pulled thru or who are convalescing has been used. In order to be really helpful the serum should be given long before the symptoms have become pronounced.

Should wasting come, the job of the physician is to maintain the contracting fibers in the best possible condition so that when the nerve regrows it may again carry on normally. The strong parts will tug and pull against those that are weaker and the injured group should be protected against abuse. This requires proper supports or splints.

The rôle of heat and gentle massage is all important and underwater exercises are valuable because of the lessened resistance afforded by the buoyancy of the liquid. Before we give up and assume that a muscle is beyond repair treatment must be persisted in for at least a year or two.

Naturally, if cases are known to be rife in the neighborhood, children must be kept away from crowds and isolated against any possible contact, with those who are ill. The infection may be conveyed thru discharges from the mouth and nose, and gargling with an antiseptic mouth wash is good hygienic practice at all times.

HISTAMINE.

S. M. J. writes: 1. What is histamine? 2. What is it used for?

REPLY.

1. It belongs to the group of chemicals termed "amines" and occurs in the skin. It is a powerful uterine stimulant and is one of the constituents of ergot.

2. It is employed in making tests for the production of hydrochloric acid by the stomach glands. A more recent application includes the treatment of peptic ulcer.

TREMBLING.

Mrs. C. K. writes: What is the "tremors"? Is there a cure?

REPLY.

You may refer to Parkinson's disease [paralysis agitans]. However, tremors occur in other conditions, such as toxic thyroid. Most of us will exhibit this symptom when overfatigued. Your physician can identify the cause and prescribe the proper remedy.

RADIUM.

Mrs. K. L. writes: What is radium used for?

REPLY.

Chiefly employed in the treatment of cancer. The short waves produced by this element have the power of penetrating the tissues deeply, with destructive effects.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Sept. 3, 1780

Henry Laurens, American representative to the Netherlands, was captured by the British off Cape Sable. Laurens was aboard the packet Mercury. When the British ship Vestal was sighted, Laurens' dispatches were weighted and thrown overboard, but the British succeeded in picking them up before they sank. His mission was to negotiate a loan from Holland and plan a treaty, and the discovery led to war between Holland and England.

CONFUSED BY WALLACE.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Will you please enlighten me? After listening to Mr. Wallace's speech Thursday night, I am confused. Is Hitler running for President? I sort of got the impression it was Roosevelt vs. Hitler.

Does that mean that if I disagree with anything F. D. R. does, I am a Hitlerite?

I hope not, for under such circumstances I would certainly feel that my privilege of "free speech" had been greatly hampered. BEWILDERED.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 29.—Henry Wallace is badly confused again, probably because so busy restricting crops and meat production and otherwise becoming the farmers' friend in a big, wholesome way. He now thinks Hitler is the associate nominee of the Republican party and all praise to the great Franklin as the lad to find it out. First down for Roosevelt, the prominent, three time nation saver, but another 15 yard penalty for his ball and chain running mate.

ANDREW COBURN.

PLEASED WITH THE CONTEST.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—I realize that you must be all encumbered with the many duties connected with bringing the American Fashion contest to a sensational conclusion. I do want you to know, however, how much I appreciate the gracious manner in which my inquiries, both oral and written, have been treated. The people to whom I spoke over the telephone were always sweet, and patient, and understanding, and the postcard, received Saturday, also conveyed the same fine spirit.

Irrespective of where I stand in the "final analysis" I shall look upon my participation in the contest as a very worthwhile experience—constructive and gratifying.

GET DOWN TO BRASS TACKS.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 29.—Good for you! You really got your dander up in your editorial, "Boss Hague's NYA." I pray that this is only target practice for you and that before the November election you really find the range and pour so much hot shot into the pants of these big league politicians that they all take to the bushes.

Personally, I wouldn't trust any one connected in any way with this New Deal machine as far as I could throw a Nebraska bull by the tail—and this goes for those at the top, right on down to the bottom. Let's get down to brass tacks about this thing and really go to town.

ABOUT THE JOADS.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—As to your article "Helping the Joads," I wish to say you should know the Joads before you write about them.

Did you ever work in the fields 14 hours a day, and sleep under the blue sky? Today we call them migrants. In my day we were called hobos. These people are willing to work and they are down to the last penny or they would not follow this life. Is it asking too much of their government to provide them protection against "chiselers" who want them to work for nothing, to provide them a camp where they can wash their clothes and have medical attention?

The price of food will never go up from the money the Joads earn.

M. A. MARTIN SR.

THE PULSE OF HIS PEOPLE.

Oak Park, Ill., Aug. 28.—Last Friday I interviewed our 6th district representative in congress, Mr. A. F. Maciejewski, at his office in Cicero. He talked about what the people of our district think on conscription. He explained that he personally thinks conscription is undemocratic. He opposed the idea before the house military affairs committee. Now, however, his mail indicates that 65 to 75 per cent of the people in the 6th district demand that a conscription bill be passed. He said that when he was at the Oak Park Lions club and at the Oak Park Rotary club the members of these clubs emphasized how strongly they favored conscription. So Mr. Maciejewski is bowing to the will of the people and working to secure the passage of the right sort of peacetime conscription bill.

Anxious to learn the merits of conscription I contacted several officers and members of the Oak Park Lions club and the Rotary club who have attended most of the meetings. It seems there is some misunderstanding. The congressman has not been to the Lions club in the last six years. Officials of the Rotary club say they have never seen him at any time. There is considerable uncertainty as to whether their members favor conscription at all. However, I think they will make their correct views known to the congressman. Just in case there should be any misunderstanding about the views of other citizens in the 6th district, it would be an excellent plan for them to stop and discuss the matter with him. He is their voice in congress. Callers are treated courteously; the sign on the door indicates that his office hours are 6 to 8 p. m., Monday to Friday. ROBERT THURSTON.

THE JEWS WILL DO THEIR PART.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—I read with interest Mr. Alfred Decker's appeal to Jews, urging them to participate in the armed forces of the United States in the event of war with Hitler.

Writer Decker need have no fears that such participation will be lacking. During the last war Jews contributed soldiers to the United States army all out of proportion to the ratio of Jewish population to the whole. And in the coming war, if it does come, they'll be there with a vengeance.

What Writer Decker should be more interested in is a movement against elements that encourage prejudices against loyal Americans because of their race, religion, color, or creed. C. S. L.

A MAN AMONG MEN.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 30.—Let us have an end of this discussion about Moon Mullins displacing the Gumps and securing No. 1 position in the Sports section. Many of us in Evanston think Moon is a "regular guy" and deserves his promotion. We say, "Long live our valiant hero," a man among men. IRVING KELLY.

CABINET APPOINTEES.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—In Walter Trohan's Sunday story from Washington about the Jones and Walker appointments to the cabinet, I note one of those false or semi-true implications your political writers use so adeptly. This time it was "President Roosevelt's ever changing cabinet."

In seven years and five months Roosevelt has made 19 cabinet appointments. Three of his cabinet officers have died and been replaced; another was appointed to the Supreme court.

Thirteen Presidents have served one full term plus part or all of another. In the average number of men appointed Franklin Roosevelt ranks behind Grant, Jackson, Theodore Roosevelt, Madison, Washington, Cleveland, Lincoln, Wilson, McKinley, Coolidge.

Of the group of 13, only Jefferson and Monroe have averages lower than F. D. R.'s.

The lowest number of cabinet appointments for a full four year term can be credited to Franklin Pierce: seven men for the seven government departments then in existence. This seems to be Pierce's chief claim to distinction, aside from the fact that Jeff Davis was his secretary of war. PAUL W. KEATING.

PHOTOGRAPHER ASKS A CHANCE.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—The small photo finisher is about "finished." He can't compete with tremendous price-slashing.

Could he be given a chance to show he is a professional business man knowing a trade that it is difficult to master?

Pictures are not to be treated as sets of tires or other quantity production made articles. Tailors make clothes; dentists, doctors care for the human body. So does a photographer produce something individual that requires skilful care. He should be given a chance to prove it. BOB OLSEN.

NO CAUSE FOR COMPLAINT.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—[Friend of the People.]—If you will send some one to No. 6140 of our block and have a look at the fire escapes on that building, I am sure you will be amazed. If anybody but an acrobat can come down that ladder please let us know. Remember when a fire starts all become panicky and those past middle age, men and women, would be unable to come down that ladder. I may be wrong, but I want somebody's O. K.

J. S.

The building in question is the northeast section of a court building, four stories high. This apartment building was erected about 1900. All the apartments in the building have access to two stairways and a ladder fire escape and complies with the requirements of the building code. Our inspector reports there is no cause for complaint.

MARSHALL FIELD & COMPANY

Your Silhouette

The slim, narrower lines that Paris began to use last May. Narrower but with ease given to the skirt with such functional details as low flounces, pleats, slits, drapery and front fullness. Note how fullness this season is either concealed or purely decorative.

Your Colors

Black first and very high fashion worn with smoky browns and beige. The whole taupe-castor-grayed brown range, exciting with pumpkin red. Black cherry—our choice of the subtle, muted colors. For something extra special wear lightest oatmeal beige.

Your Furs

Your Hats

The off-the-face line is the most important silhouette this season. Pompadour caps, large brims, large soft Bretons. The new elongated brim tremendously flattering. Lots of feathers . . . eagle, owl, peacock and marabou. A fur hat by all means.

Your Shoes

Pumps occupy first place. Simpler designs and less detail. Wear the new glass slippers for evening. Coming excitement . . . the new shoes of Vinylite. Expect a revival of slender evening sandals of interlaced straps. No exaggerated heels.

Your Jewelry

Your Bag

Large ones still most important for Fall. Black suede the number one material. Broadcloth, faille and ottoman silk make news. Tortoise and Luxite frames very imaginative. Alligator-grained calf new with antique finish. Velvet envelopes and pouches for afternoon and cocktail time.

Your Coiffure

For evening wear jeweled pins, flowers or feathers nestled in your pompadour. Or wear 10-inch velvet ribbon in a wired bow standing straight up on your head. Brush your hair up from the temples. Hide all your hair under a draped turban. Let a swooping feather circle your face.

Your Gloves

Special "likes"—four- and six-button pull-ons in taupe and castor to be worn with black as well as brown. One-button shorties return to favor, interpreted for dress wear. Many evening gloves with black jet and silk embroidery.

Your Sportswear

There is a whole story on your sportswear. Wonderful casual clothes, long the special forte of American designers, always independent of Paris. There are still English and Scotch woolens and grand contributions from the American fabric market. You'll like the way these casual clothes have moved from the country category into the most exciting of town fashions.

Lovely Lady GREET THE AUTUMN

As you would expect, the spirit of Autumn fashions is simple elegance that speaks quietly, subdued colors that never intrude. Even the silhouette is restrained. Beautiful fabrics and extravagant furs appear simply, beautifully handled . . . conspiring for smart understatement.

Color appears as a flash to enliven a costume, yet they are the colors you honestly expect . . . pumpkin red for the dull taupes and castor . . . ash rose or ash blue for black cherry . . . indefinable colors for black.

Compositely simple, the whole picture is rich and exciting, its greatest charm the absence of exaggeration and ostentatiousness. Marshall Field & Company salutes American designing that has employed its own innate originality, enthusiasm and verve.

Here at the beginning of Autumn we give you a résumé of the most significant changes . . . changes to enhance your charm and create a lovelier You.

AT MARSHALL FIELD & COMPANY you'll find a magnificent collection of American originals, and even while you are choosing we shall be at work, as we have been for months, assembling and creating new fashions for You.

JOHNSON TRIAL DEFENSE SEEKS SKIDMORE LINK

Moves to Show His Share in Gaming Houses.

drew Creighton. I am advised they discussed the matter on trial. I ask that he be called as a court's witness."

This was allowed. Cross-examined by Prosecutor Campbell, Nadherny, a bespectacled man with a soft voice, admitted he had been at Bon Air and had had "casual talks" with both Walt and Creighton.

"I met Walt first, at the bar," Nadherny testified, "and he told me he thought some of the testimony given last week was false."

The testimony referred to, Nadherny said later, was Goldstein's.

Construction Job Discussed.

Soon afterward, Nadherny said, he met Creighton, and their conversation concerned construction work at the Club Western. Nadherny drew the plans for the gambling house there.

"We talked about the subject that Creighton had paid some of the money for extra work done on the club, and also the fact that Skidmore had paid a portion of the money for the place," said Nadherny.

"Who brought up this subject?" asked Campbell.

"I would say Mr. Creighton," answered Nadherny. "He said something about my testimony, and I remarked that I never had mentioned the fact that Mr. Creighton had given me some money."

$6,000 Expenditure Told.

Under further examination, Nadherny said he had received $2,500 at one time from Creighton, and that in all Creighton spent $6,000 as his share in the Club Western.

Q.—[By Campbell.]—What was the total cost of construction of the club? A.—It was $22,000.

Q.—In what form? A.—In currency.

This was the first time, government attorneys said, that they had heard from Nadherny that Skidmore had handed out the money. The witness tried to explain that on previous occasions he assumed the money had come from Johnson altho it had been paid by Skidmore. Therefore, he said, he had indicated previously that Johnson had paid the money, altho actually Skidmore had paid it.

First Evidence of Share.

It also was the first time, the prosecutors said, that Nadherny had told of Creighton's share in the Club Western. The architect explained that by saying the district attorney's office never had asked him about such an item.

Nadherny told in detail of his work at the Bon Air club. The cost of the work was $130,000. His fee was $7,800. Again Skidmore's name was brought out.

"How were you paid?" Nadherny was asked.

"I received two payments," he replied. "I remember I mentioned the matter to Mr. Johnson, and he said to see Mr. Skidmore because he was going out of town. I saw Mr. Skidmore, and he gave me $2,500. I got the balance from Mr. Johnson."

Tax Expert Testifies.

The last witness yesterday was James J. Radomski, an income tax expert and former government employé, who admitted preparing the income tax reports of Johnson and seven of the co-defendants. The only co-defendant he did not assist was Stuart S. Brown.

Radomski said that he was "called" by Johnson to fix his tax report, and also called by some of the others. He did not seek their business, he said. Later he testified he had worked as accountant for Johnson and Wait in 1927 when they ran the Lawndale dog race track. The government will question him further this morning.

It is the government's contention Johnson hired Radomski to handle his and his henchmen's income tax returns so all would seem proper and in order in relation to his own.

The point is that the co-defendants filed income tax reports as owners of businesses which the government contends Johnson actually owned. In that way, it is charged, they enabled him to conceal the $1,887,864 in income taxes due.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

"They apparently were not even awakened by the fire," said their granduncle, Deputy Sheriff Andrew Adams. The victims were Ray Adams, 6 years old; Dart, 5; Fern, 3, and Elzina Arlene, 1½, children of Mr. and Mrs. Hyrum R. Adams. The father and mother were not at home when the fire started.

SOARING FLYER WINS CONTEST IN FINAL SPURT

Airline Veteran, a Glider Novice, Places First.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

J. Shelly Charles, a veteran air line pilot who took up motorless flying two years ago as a hobby, last night was awarded The Chicago Tribune trophy and grand prize of $400 as winner of the third annual American Open Soaring contest.

Charles and his German built Minimoa sailplane were a dark-horse team almost to the end of the ten day soaring meet, which ended yesterday. The event, sponsored by the Catholic Youth organization, was held at the Lewis School of Aeronautics airport, near Lockport. Thirty of the country's leading glider pilots competed.

Contestants in the meet were awarded points for altitude, distance, and duration achieved on their motorless flights. Up to starting time Sunday morning, 48 hours before the end of the contest, Charles trailed the two leaders—Stanley Corcoran of Joliet and John Robinson of San Diego, Cal. —by what seemed a hopeless margin.

Flights Amaze Officials.

His cross country flights during the last few days however, amazed contest officials. Sunday he soared his gull winged sailplane 138 air miles to Lebanon, Ind.

Yesterday he clinched the championship by two spectacular cross-country flights in his motorless plane. On the first he took off from Lewis airport at noon, bucked a strong northwest wind to Chicago airport, then returned to Lewis field. He completed the round trip of 41 air miles in slightly more than two hours.

Officials at the meet said the round trip set a national record for cross country motorless flight and return. For this Charles was awarded the Sears, Roebuck & Co. trophy and cash prize of $90 given to the first pilot to break an American soaring record.

Soars to Kankakee.

An hour later Charles again took off, announcing he would attempt to fly to Kankakee. At 5:20 p. m. he brought his sailplane to a landing near the airport there. This was a distance of 35 air miles from his starting point.

Altho Charles has more than 13,000 flying hours in motored planes to his credit, he still is considered a novice at motorless soaring. When he entered the meet he had fewer than 50 hours' flying time in sailplanes. Charles is 40 years old and a pilot for Eastern Air Lines.

Corcoran and Robinson made long cross-country flights yesterday in last minute attempts to regain the lead. Corcoran, flying a Frankfort Cinema single seated sailplane of his own design, soared 105 air miles to Lafayette, Ind., in five hours.

Corcoran was awarded the Chicago Times trophy and prize of $100, which went to the pilot flying the greatest distance in a single seated glider. The flight on which he won this trophy was made Sunday when he soared 106 air miles to Dolan, Ind.

Robinson soared his two seated Schweizer sailplane 66 air miles to La Crosse, Ind. His passenger on the flight was Miss Magdalene Pawling, 29, of Joliet, a gliding enthusiast.

Robinson won the trophy and $200 prize given by Commander Eugene F. McDonald, president of the Zenith Radio corporation, for attaining the greatest altitude over level country. He reached a height of 13,600 feet Saturday.

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, honorary chairman of the meet, presented The Tribune trophy and prize money to Charles at the contest banquet last night in the Woodruff hotel in Joliet.

SCHOOLS REOPEN TODAY; 764,500 RETURN TO BOOKS

Schools will open this morning and 764,500 pupils in Cook county will start the return to their books. Supt. William H. Johnson said Chicago public schools will have an enrollment of approximately 455,800, a decrease of 1,633 from last year. Again this year the decrease is found in the elementary department and is attributed to a decline in the birth rate. The following table gives the September enrollment for various public school departments last year and the estimate for this year.

Department—	1939.	1940.
Elementary	296,486	294,000
High schools	141,734	142,000
Junior colleges	6,567	7,200
Special schools, including teachers college	12,646	12,600

Noble J. Puffer, county school superintendent, estimated 104,726 will return to county schools, a 2,000 increase over last year. Parochial schools of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago are expected to have a 192,000 enrollment and the 122 Lutheran schools about 12,000 pupils.

14 OF GANDHI'S PARTY SEIZED FOR DRILLING

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 2 (AP).—Fourteen arrests were reported today at Cawnpore, where Indian Nationalist party volunteers are defying a government ban on drilling and marching.

There were persistent rumors that Mohandas K. Gandhi would visit Simla shortly to confer with Lord Linlithgow, viceroy of India, in an attempt to prevent the conflict between the government and the party from leading to civil disobedience.

The All-India Moslem league working committee adopted a resolution describing a British offer of dominion status after the war as "a considerable progressive advance" toward the league's viewpoint.

LIKE A SNEAK THIEF!

Unless promptly and properly treated, a venereal infection is certain to rob you of health and earning power!

GONORRHEA and syphilis require immediate and expert medical attention if their dreaded after-effects are to be avoided. To neglect either of these treacherous infections, or to depend on inefficient quack or self treatment, is to risk being robbed of your health, livelihood and possibly your life!

Syphilis, for example, may lead to heart trouble, blindness, deafness, paralysis and even insanity. And gonorrhea can cause a sight-destroying eye infection, crippling arthritis, stricture, sterility or prostate, bladder, kidney and other disorders.

What is more, venereal diseases are serious obstacles to successful motherhood. An expectant mother with gonorrhea may have her baby blinded at birth. And the woman with syphilis who is not properly treated during pregnancy is likely to bear a dead, deformed or feeble-minded infant!

So, if you know or suspect you have a venereal disease, don't run the chance of losing both your health and earning power. It's so unnecessary when you can take advantage of the inexpensive services of the Public Health Institute, which in the past 20 years has given over 5,000,000 examinations and treatments for gonorrhea and syphilis to more than 275,000 Chicagoans.

PRE-MARRIAGE EXAMINATIONS

With separate departments for men and women, the Public Health Institute is especially well fitted to make the medical tests which the law requires every couple to have before a marriage license can be obtained. A thorough physical examination, including all necessary laboratory tests, costs $3.00 per person. Those examined before 2 P.M. (at 159 or 169 N. Dearborn St.) can have certificates same day.

Because the Public Health Institute was founded by public-spirited citizens as a corporation "NOT-FOR-PROFIT" under the laws of the State of Illinois, its charges are remarkably low for the expert treatment given. A thorough examination for gonorrhea and syphilis, including blood tests, urinalysis and smears, costs little, while individual treatments are easily within the reach of every wage earner.

Furthermore, even those temporarily short of money can arrange to be treated without undergoing an embarrassing credit investigation or signing any papers whatsoever!

THREE LABOR DAY RALLIES BLAST WAR MONGERING

Legion Commander Cites Economic Losses.

War mongers were attacked on three fronts yesterday and last night in Labor day celebrations in Chicagoland.

1. Raymond J. Kelly, national commander of the American Legion, speaking at the St. Charles fall festival, called war a moral and economic carousal. He said the Legionnaires know war at first hand and want to do everything possible to keep out of it.

2. A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, said that "we must not give way to the false plea that in order to compete with dictatorship we must scuttle labor's rights and social legislation and 'temporarily' abandon the democratic way of life." His prepared speech was read to the third convention of the United Office and Professional Workers of America [C. I. O.] by his brother, Byrl, in the Morrison hotel. An accident prevented Whitney from appearing in person.

Opposes Foreign Links.

3. Joseph L. Best, 4316 Hazel avenue, attending a meeting of the Chicago Camp of the Society of the Fifth Division in the Morrison hotel, said the United States should stay out of foreign entanglements but be ready if the country is invaded.

"There is one all-inclusive reason for the Legion to urge the United States to stay out of any war overseas," Kelly told his audience of 15,000 in St. Charles. "We of our generation have seen the screaming headlines, soldiers marching, bands playing, the high wages, and quick fortunes of war times.

"We know also the dismalness of the national awakening the morning after, when the piper must be paid. It is not pleasant to arise with a bursting head and to discover that you have signed everybody's check at the big party."

Warns of Peril to Freedom.

Whitney's speech asserted that the American people—and labor first of all—are anxious to build up the strongest possible system of national defense.

"But," he continued, "to whip up war hysteria and, in the fever of the moment, to restrict freedom of speech and of the press, is to bring the nation that much nearer to Fascism."

He said labor haters are enrolled in the camp supporting the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill because they see the possibility of regimenting labor along undemocratic lines.

Best, who served in Company F of the 11th infantry in the 5th division, displayed the Distinguished Service Cross and the Croix de Guerre which he said he won at Dun-sur-Meuse.

The 5th division veterans, Chicago camp, went on record in favor of the draft. Thomas E. Dunn, 8032 Paxton avenue, said the sentiment expressed by Best was echoed by others attending the meeting.

Firemen Find Fires, Not Needles, in 2 Haystacks

You don't find needles in haystacks. You find fires. Capt. George O'Connor's firemen reported yesterday that they did, anyway, in one haystack at 58th street and Narragansett avenue and in another at 57th street and Mulligan avenue. The firemen said small boys started them.

GUARD WILL EASE FINANCIAL ROAD FOR SERVICE MEN

Helps Work Out Plans for Obligations.

National Guardsmen called into active service will be given expert advice regarding leases, instalment contracts, payments on loans, insurance premiums, and other personal business. Arrangements for this service, which will be available alike to the guardsmen and their families at all times, were announced yesterday by Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, commander of the Illinois National Guard.

A special office for advising the guardsmen living in and near Chicago will be opened at the 33d division headquarters, 7 South Dearborn street. Other offices will be opened at convenient points downstate.

The service will be extended to wherever the troops are sent after they leave Chicago.

Gen. Lawton said National Guard officers are anxious that the families of the guardsmen shall not suffer any hardship as a result of the mobilization call. Guardsmen with dependents or who hold essential jobs in industry are permitted to resign.

The advisory service, however, is expected to make it possible for many guardsmen who have obligations to work out a plan that will permit them to remain in the organization. Gen. Lawton said no financial assistance can be given, but that his men will be given every other possible aid.

The guardsmen have 20 days after mobilization, set for Sept. 16, in which they may resign.

The 202d coast artillery anti-aircraft regiment is the only Illinois National Guard unit included in President Roosevelt's mobilization call for Sept. 16. It is commanded by Col. Charles C. Dawes.

John Scott, City's 1st Negro Police Captain, Takes Post

Capt. John T. Scott, the city's first Negro police captain, took charge of the Stanton avenue station yesterday. His office was filled with flowers, congratulatory telegrams, and well wishers. Capt. Scott, who will be in charge of 122 men, about a quarter of whom are Negroes, was appointed to the police force in 1907. He became a sergeant in 1919 and a lieutenant in 1927. Capt. Scott is 60 years old and lives at 6428 Evans avenue.

PICK OKLAHOMAN AS CHAIRMAN OF PEACE GROUP

The Rev. John B. Thompson of Norman, Okla., was elected permanent chairman of the American Peace Mobilization as a three day meeting known as the "emergency peace mobilization" ended yesterday in the Chicago Stadium. It was decided to make the mobilization a permanent organization, with headquarters to be established probably in Washington. The delegates to the meeting, which was charged with having communist backing, voted to establish "peace committees" in their communities and to fight the conscription bill. They plan to hold a demonstration against the bill in Washington tomorrow.

GREEN PROPOSES HIGHER ARMY PAY IN LIEU OF DRAFT

Demands President Take Nation Into Confidence.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 2 (AP).—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today urged that President Roosevelt tell congress "the man power needs of the nation's military forces and recommend a definite program to fulfill these needs" before further action is taken toward conscription.

William Green.

Green proposed short term voluntary enlistments and higher military pay to build the nation's armed forces "in the traditional American way." Conscription, he added, should be employed only if other expedients fail.

"We say to our government: 'We do not know what this is all about. We are not obstructionists. We are patriotic Americans. Give us the facts. Show us frankly why conscription is needed.'"

Leads Parade, Then Speaks.

Green made this assertion in his annual Labor day address before the Western conference of the International Teamsters' union, largest of A. F. of L. affiliates. Address was broadcast nation-wide.

The A. F. of L. chieftain led Denver's Labor day parade before he spoke.

The labor leader coupled his attack on conscription with a plea for all possible American help to Britain "short of entry into the war." He pledged that the federation, realizing that "at a time like this industrial conflict would be stupid and dangerous," would assume its full responsibilities in the defense program. He also renewed charges that communists exercised influence and power in the rival Congress for Industrial Organization.

Hits Sponsors of Draft Bill.

Green assailed the pending Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill as a measure "sponsored by men who do not enjoy the full confidence of organized labor."

"It was not drafted by the administration, but by men who consistently have opposed the administration," he said. "The bill has been so widely amended from day to day that the American people have not been able to keep up with its manifold changes. . . .

"We have no more confidence in it than in its sponsors. . . .

"On a matter as vital as this to the nation's welfare, we feel it is the duty of the President of the United States to send a message to congress stating the manpower needs of the nation's military forces and recommending a definite program to fulfill these needs."

Asks Increased Pay.

Green predicted that "thousands who are now hesitant would flock to the colors" if they were offered enlistment for a year or a year and a half, a "guarantee that recruits will not be called upon to serve in a European war," and reasonable increases in military pay.

"At any rate, the position of organized labor is that voluntary enlistment should and must be given a fair trial first . . . then, if this system fails, the nation will without hesitation agree that the final expedient of compulsory conscription in time of peace is sound and justified and patriotic."

By aiding Britain, Green contended, "we are strengthening our own national defense."

"If Great Britain succumbs, the United States and her sister republics in the western hemisphere may be the next targets of the European dictators," he continued.

"We may face immediate war. The war may be an economic one at first, but it will be bitter and costly."

Green insisted that in the defense program "profiteering and exploitation must be prohibited" and "the creation of war millionaires must be prevented."

Lucille Ball as she rested in Chicago.

Lucille Ball and Maureen O'Hara, co-stars in the new RKO picture, "Dance, Girl, Dance," spent yesterday in Chicago resting from a series of personal appearances in connection with first showings of the film. They arrived from Columbus, O., on the Pennsylvania road and went to the Drake hotel. At 9:45 a. m. today Miss Ball will be interviewed by June Baker on the Home Management broadcast over W-G-N. The stars will leave later in the day for Cincinnati where they have another theater engagement tomorrow.

LEWIS DEFENDS LABOR

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2 (AP).—John L. Lewis, leader of the C. I. O., in a Labor day speech today denounced the circulation of what he called a "vicious falsehood" accusing American labor—as French workers were accused before the fall of France—of delaying national defense preparations.

At the same time he renewed his outspoken opposition to peace time conscription, demanded a greater voice for labor in defense councils and called for use of idle men and machinery to raise the national income by $25,000,000,000 annually. His address was broadcast.

Lewis blamed "men in high places in the nation" as circulators of the "vicious falsehood" about labor. They do not want labor, he said, to participate in the defense program because they know labor will oppose their "efforts to pervert the idea of national defense to the services of private greed."

The British empire, Lewis said, found it necessary to accept labor's aid, its policies and its statesmen, and he demanded the same recognition for labor in this country.

INDUSTRY DRAFT COVERED BY 1916 ACT, MAY ARGUES

Senate Provision Is Not Needed, He Says.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2 (AP).—Rep. Andrew J. May [D., Ky.], preparing to open house debate tomorrow on the conscription bill, expressed the opinion today that President Roosevelt already had power under the 1916 national defense act to take over plants of what he described as "recalcitrant" manufacturers.

Representative May.

Under the circumstances, he said, any such provision in the conscription bill is unnecessary and should be omitted.

May added that, if a majority of the house military affairs committee, which he heads, insisted upon including a stipulation of that character, he would demand that it guarantee workmen in affected plants the same wages received under private operation.

Adds to Controversy.

May's theory about powers granted under the 1916 law was tossed into the controversy raging over the Russell-Overton provision of the senate-approved bill to conscript the nation's young manhood for military training. This provision would permit the government to institute condemnation proceedings against, and then take possession of, "any existing manufacturing plant or facility" if the war or navy departments were unable to reach an agreement with its operators for a defense order.

The 1916 law provides that the President, "in time of war or when war is imminent," may take over a munitions or other military supply factory in case the operator refuses to manufacture articles desired for the army at a reasonable price or to give preference to military orders.

In such cases, the government would be required to pay "a fair and just" rental for use of the plant. At the same time, the operators might be imprisoned up to three years and fined up to $50,000.

Covers Situation, May Says.

May argued that the phrase, "when war is imminent," covered this country's present situation.

"Imminent," he said, "means that the sword of Damocles is about to fall, that something is impending or threatening.

"If war is not imminent, threatening, or impending, why are we appropriating 15 billion dollars for defense? Why are we calling out the National Guard and proposing to conscript the youth of the country? I think existing law already takes care of this situation."

The inclusion of the Russell-Overton provision, or a modification of it, in the house bill hinges largely on the action of May's committee tomorrow, in advance of the house session. Representative Overton Brooks [D., La.] already has offered the Russell-Overton proposal as an amendment to the house version of the conscription legislation.

Smith Has Proposal.

May argued that the amendment, be defeated but said the committee might approve a substitute proposed by Rep. J. J. Smith [D., Conn.], resembling the 1916 act's provision.

Instead of referring to the imminency of war, however, Smith's proposal would be in effect during the life of the draft.

May said he might not oppose Smith's amendment if it were modified to include the wage guarantee and a provision giving manufacturers the right to refuse military orders for "good cause."

Such "good cause," he added, would include the case of a plant which held contracts that could not be abrogated without forcing the firm into bankruptcy.

Leaves Title With Owners.

The main difference between Smith's proposal and the senate-approved provision, Smith explained, was that it would leave title to the "drafted" industries in the hands of the owners, instead of having the government acquire the properties by condemnation proceedings.

While asserting it was more drastic than the senate provision in that it would make refusal of defense contracts a felony punishable by fines up to $50,000, Smith said his amendment limited the power to manufacturing concerns whereas the senate language included "facilities" which Smith said might be construed to mean newspapers or radio stations.

HOMEBOUND CARS JAM HIGHWAYS LEADING TO CITY

Strain Traffic Capacity of Country Roads.

BY HAL FOUST.

An aerial survey of Chicagoland highways late yesterday afternoon found the web of concrete animated with streams of automobile traffic moving toward the big city in the center of this web. In a quarter of a million cars, the people were returning to their homes from this motorized observance of Labor day.

Between 4 and 7 p. m., incoming crowds were stalled on the outskirts of the big city and its contiguous suburbs.

The situation emphasized Chicago's need for superhighways, something comparable with New York's parkways and elevated highways. Even Chicago's outer drives lack connections with rural roads.

Another fault in the Chicagoland highway system, conspicuous in this aerial survey, is that the wide pavements narrow too close to the city. The four lanes do not extend as far from Chicago as the traffic demands.

South and west of Aurora, west of Geneva and St. Charles, and northwest of Elgin, there were queues of automobiles unable to pass occasional slow machines on the winding and dipping old roads that are little more than hard surfaced pioneer trails.

The program of widening as far west as the Fox river was adopted in 1930 after 10 years' of editorial advocacy by THE TRIBUNE. There has been no extension of the four lane highways west of the Fox, about 35 miles from the loop, in the last decade.

Narrow pavements of the Northwest highway northwest of Barrington and of Rand road north of Lake Zurich likewise were jammed. Skokie road, four lane U. S. 41 between Milwaukee and Chicago, was overcrowded. It has been outgrown by traffic within three years of its completion as the first extended superhighway in Chicagoland.

When you're singing the praises of a particular ale or beer, you can string together a lot of words a little fancier than the other fellow's. But there's a better way! Suspected Fifth Columnist.

That the warning to be on the watch for fifth columnists is having effect is indicated by an incident that occured recently in Appleton, Wis. William S. Schwartz, Chicago artist, who has had one man shows in many cities, has been on a sketching trip in Wisconsin. When he set up his easel in Appleton to paint a picture of the high banks of the Fox river, a police officer thought he was making a map or plan of the power plant near the Appleton bridge. Schwartz finally convinced him he was only putting on canvas the beauties of nature and the officer went away. The next afternoon when the artist returned to the river bank to finish his sketch the policeman returned with his superior officer. He was ordered to get out of town and to stay out.

". . . the crack of the whip Hitler handles in faraway Germany was felt in the Fox river valley," says the Oshkosh Northwesterns in an account of the incident. Painter Schwartz went on to Oshkosh and Portage on his sketching tour, after he had been ejected from Appleton.

Telling the Valet.

A distinguished Chicagoan recently went east to visit a friend who keeps a number of servants. He dislikes having his bag unpacked, so he locked it against the services of the valet he knew would be provided to attend him. He went to his room after chatting with his hostess and shortly after the man appeared and explained that he had been unable to unpack for him because the bag was locked. Self-conscious, because of his intense dislike of the attentions of servants, the man addressed the valet with dignity.

"It has been did," he said.

To the Jokesmith.

Like last year's hat,
Is very stale,
And mighty flat.
But clean, restyle,
Reblock it, tho,
I'll give the joke
A year to go.
It may not be
So much, at that;
But, better than
A last year's hat.

—Clara Edmunds-Hemingway.

American Citizen.

Elissa Landi, of the red-gold hair and the long, beautifully set blue eyes, who appears for the last time Friday evening in the Tribune's spy serial Wings for America, became an American citizen 10 years ago. There was some difficulty about it, however, for one must renounce a country before adopting a new one, and the authorities could not decide what country Miss Landi should renounce. She was born in Italy of Austrian parents, adopted by a British stepfather and married to a British citizen. After involved communications during which Miss Landi's mother came forward to prove she had been born—there was no birth certificate available—the now American, Miss Landi, who is an Austrian by blood, renounced Italy and England.

A Tennessee Democrat turned Republican. "If you should die first," he told his wife, "don't tell my mother about it."

Fifty-Four Young Women Are on List of Debutantes

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE start of the fall debutante parties this week finds the names of 54 young women on the list of buds of the current season. The majority of them will return to schools late this month, and come home in December for another hectic two weeks of parties.

The list follows:

Mary Adams	Helen Ruth Clayton	Margaret Houghteling	Beverly Roach
Jane Affleck	Patricia Cathcart	Merikay Howard	Ruth Rowe
Frances Amberg	Eleanor Daughaday	Marie Merrill Hubbard	Gertrude Scribner
Priscilla Armstrong	Lydia Elliott	Janet Jenkins	Clarinda Scudder
Nathalie Bell	Adrienne Ely	Angeline Johnson	Joanne Stenson
Harriet Bermingham	Evelyn Gardner	Isabelle Johnson	Martha Stevens
Peggy Boyd	Peggy Gratiot	Alice Clay Judson	Anne Strong
Carol Broome	Joan Gray	Marjorie Lindsay	Margaret Stuart
Elizabeth Broome	Lois Greeley	Joan Littlefield	Harriet Sturgis
Ruth Burrows	Eunice Hale	Muriel McChesney	Tanisse Twyman
Betty Butler	Jane Hardy	Miranda Randall	Barbara Warner
Harriet Case	Lucy Harvey	Joan Revell	Mary Ann Wyman

Jean Frances Matthiessen — Mary Jane Deere Wiman

Miss Stevens' elder sister, Miss Jane Stevens, has decided she does not want a debut, so her name has been withdrawn from the list. She was to have been presented with her sister at a tea Mrs. M. Simpson Stevens is giving at home in Lake Forest on Sept. 10.

Miss Peggy Houghteling Forgoing Formal Party.

"Peggy" Houghteling is not having a formal party in Chicago, for she was introduced to Washington society last year. She is being included in this season's debutante festivities here, however, for so many of her Winnetka friends are having debut parties at which Miss Houghteling has been asked to assist. Miss Houghteling's brother, James L. Houghteling Jr., who has had a job in New York this summer, has come home for the early parties before returning to his classes at Yale. Mr. and Mrs. Houghteling will return to Washington Sept. 14, but Miss Houghteling will go east two days earlier. She will be a sophomore at Vassar this year.

Another young Winnetkan who is not having a formal party but who is included in the debutante festivities is Miss Jane Shepard, Mrs. Seth Shepard's daughter. Miss Shepard is starting a business career and won't have much time for afternoon parties. She should be in great demand at charity fashion shows, however, for she had a year's schooling in fashion modeling after being graduated from Kemper hall.

Ruth Rowe's Party Plans Yet to Be Announced.

No plans have been announced yet for a party for Miss Ruth Rowe, whose parents, the Edgar C. Rowes, now reside the year around in Tryon, N. C. Miss Rowe is arriving Sept. 10 to enter the University of Chicago. She has two brothers here to beau her about, A. Loring Rowe and James L. Rowe.

Miss Alice Clay Judson has begged off having a formal debut party. She has had one large party already, a dinner-dance her uncle and aunt, the John T. McCutcheons, gave for her last June at the Shoreacres club, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Judson, have issued invitations to a large supper for her on Sunday, Sept. 15, at their home, Ragdale, in Green Bay road, Lake Forest.

Weather permitting, supper will be served in the log cabin which the Judsons procured from A Century of Progress when the exposition closed. At the fair the cabin was exhibited as "Lincoln's Indiana Home." At present, with a skylight in the north room, it serves as a sculpture studio for the debutante's mother, known professionally as Sylvia Shaw Judson, where Mrs. Judson is working now.

"Pre-Vue" Being Given for Two Debutantes.

Miss Patricia Hawley, daughter of the Don M. Hawleys of Geneva, is not having a formal debut either, but she and Miss Merikay Howard, who were roommates at school, both will be special guests at an unusual party Miss Hawley's uncle and aunt, the Jess Hawleys of Geneva, will give for them tomorrow evening at the Racquet club.

"Courtesy Pre-Vue! As a valued customer, we invite you to inspect some 1941 debutante models. Featuring Merikay Howard and Patricia Hawley and their assistants," begin the invitations. In true pre-vue fashion, cards are inclosed, and the 40 young guests will turn them in at dinner. Carla Hawley and Carolyn Kuehnle, 14 year old cousins of the special guests, will get in on the festivities as ticket takers. After dinner a "hot" Negro piano player will furnish music for dancing, and there will be fortune telling and a surprise or two.

Miss Hawley is going east soon to enter the Erskine school in Boston, where she will major in home economics. She has studied two years at De Pauw university, and before that was at the Kingswood school at Bloomfield Hills, Mich., with Miss Howard.

Miss Eleanor Daughaday's parents, the C. Colton Daughadays, have no definite plans as yet for her debut. The family still is at Northeast Harbor, Me. Miss Daughaday is a student at Vassar.

Miss Joan Revell First Debutante of September.

September's first debutante is Miss Joan Revell, who will be introduced to society at a small tea at the Lake Forest home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander H. Revell Jr., tomorrow afternoon. Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Starosselsky will entertain at dinner and dancing in their home for Miss Revell, who is to have yet another party this week, a luncheon at the Knollwood club on Thursday at which Mrs. Russell Stern will be hostess.

Miss Margaret McIlvaine of Burlington, Vt., Miss Revell's cousin, is arriving today for the tea. The two young women will be attending the Juilliard School of Music in New York this winter. Miss Revell was graduated from Dobbs Ferry last June. Two other young women are coming from away to act as assistants at the tea, Miss Tina Vaughan of Pride's Crossing, Mass., who will arrive tomorrow, and Miss Joan LeBoeuf of Long Island, who comes today.

The other pretty young ones who will be pouring are Miss Adrienne Ely, Miss Lucy Harvey, Miss Harriet Sturgis, Miss Barbara Hixon, Miss Patricia Cathcart, Miss Marie Merrill Hubbard and Miss Martha Stevens, all debutantes, and Miss Janet Cottrell of Milwaukee.

Mrs. Arthur W. Walsh Giving Luncheon for Deb.

Mrs. Arthur W. Walsh is giving a luncheon tomorrow for Miss Marjorie Lindsay, the Martin Lindsays' debutante daughter.

Miss Priscilla Blackett will entertain at a luncheon at the Racquet club next Monday for two Winnetka buds, Miss Lydia Elliott and Miss Eleanore Zeiss. Miss Blackett's guests will include some of her contemporaries among last season's debutantes.

Miss Isabelle Johnson and her mother, Mrs. Homer H. Johnson of Kenilworth, and Caroline, Homer, and Horton Johnson are expected at home next Sunday from the west. They have been in Jasper National park and Sun Valley.

Scores of Thousands Cheer Grace Moore in Park Concert

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Grace Moore, the little Tennessee choir singer who has come to know the stage entrances of some of the proudest opera houses on earth, appeared at the Grant park band shell last night before an audience which filled the spacious lawns between the drives and stretched south almost to the Field museum. She was supported by the Chicago Opera orchestra under Maurice Abravanel's direction.

Maurice Abravanel.

At one point in the evening Miss Moore confided to the scores of thousands of people in her audience that seldom in her career had she undergone so great an experience as last night. She was, without doubt, enkindled by the applause and the shouts of ecstasy which she heard from the darkness before her, but she saw to it that at least as much fire as she received passed back from her to the audience.

For Miss Moore was in magnificent form. She sang with an abandon and rapture and passion which must have convulsed the heart even of the stone Columbus toward the field's south end. There was something youthful and candid and generous in the way she gave of herself. Again and again during the evening she must have experienced what Henderson aptly called "the heat and joy of song," and her superb powers of projection were sufficient guarantee that nothing of what she was undergoing should be lost to the audience.

She exerted the full power of her sunny personality, too. That smile was no forced smile, but seemed to spring from genuine happiness. Miss Moore carried herself buoyantly, running gaily on and off the stage to acknowledge applause, fetch flowers, sing more songs, and in general have as good a time as the jolliest of her hearers.

Some high points of a high evening:

The lift and joyousness Miss Moore gave to the first measure of "Cielibiribin," and the terrific momentum she retained and even increased throughout the song.

The absorbed, deeply felt delivery of the "Depuis le jour," from "Louise," which was proof even against the maddening interruption of an airplane which chose this particular time to cruise over the band shell.

The exquisite lightness of the "Jewel Song" from "Faust," and the transparent tone quality which Miss Moore used in projecting Marguerite's girlishness and naiveté.

Her passion filled delivery of the climactic phrases of "Mi Chiamano Mimi," and the lovely ingénue quality of the song's close.

We do not often have at Grant park, nor anywhere else for that matter, such a display of flooding vitality and exuberance as last night's appearance of Miss Moore afforded.

Besides accompanying the singer, Mr. Abravanel and the orchestra gave richly colored, intelligently inflected performances of the overture to "Le Roi d'Ys" [Lalo] and Chabrier's rhapsody, "España." The conductor's Iberian blood or the general excitement of the evening (perhaps both) gave to the latter piece a tingle and an infectious quality which we do not usually associate with it. Both soloist and conductor, by the way, are scheduled to appear with the Chicago Opera company next season.

George Czaplicki, the distinguished Polish baritone who was scheduled to appear with Miss Moore, was unable to do so because of a heavy cold.

THE STAGE

With "Too Many Girls" established as a hit at the Grand Opera house by virtue of sellout performances from the opening, Lorenz Hart, who wrote the scintillating lyrics, felt safe in returning to New York yesterday. He and his collaborator, Richard Rodgers, who writes the music, are at work on the final draft of their next musical, "Pal Joey." George Abbott, who produced "Too Many Girls," will be the producer, and it is hoped that Vivienne Segal will agree to take the starring feminine rôle.

Meanwhile Mr. Abbott remains in Chicago. Even after the success of the opening performance Saturday, which Mr. Abbott himself agreed was very good [and he is the last one to be pleased], the cast could still be discovered rehearsing in the Grand Opera house Sunday afternoon.

Three Day Week-End Sets Records for Two Chicago Zoos

Cool weather over the Labor day week-end kept thousands of Chicagoans from going to beaches for swimming and sunning, but many of them spent an outdoor holiday in parks and forest preserves, and on golf courses, tennis courts, sailboats, and motorboats.

Two of the most heavily traveled holiday paths led to the Brookfield and Lincoln park zoos. Edward H. Bean, director of the Brookfield zoo, reported that Sunday's crowd of 40,441 was the largest of the year and that yesterday's total was expected to exceed this mark.

Bean said all the animals were getting a lot of attention, but that the two expectant mothers, Nancy the Indian elephant, and Minnie the giraffe, were the most popular.

Murder Is Not Mute

By Audrey Newell

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

SYNOPSIS.

Detective Doyle of New York is vacationing in a small town when, while walking the woods of the estate of Adolph Wunsch, wealthy ex-brewer, he stumbles upon a skeleton. Reporting to Truman Briault, Wunsch's brother-in-law, Doyle rejects Briault's bribe to keep quiet and goes to the police. Returning to the scene with Judge Blain and Policeman Madden, they find the skeleton gone, but by trailing fresh footprints they discover where it has been hastily buried. Dr. Blake, the coronor, pronounces the skeleton that of a girl between 18 and 25, murdered about a year ago. Suspicion as to the victim and the murderer, narrows to Wunsch's household, which consists of Wunsch, his pretty young second wife, Paula, her brother and her mother, his 18 year old daughter, Texie, her companion, Helen Voss, Wunsch's aged father, and his nurse, young Miss Doty, and Follins, the chauffeur. Helen, Texie, and Mrs. Briault have been absent for a little more than a year, Helen going to New York to take a business course at the same time Wunsch sent his headstrong daughter to Europe, chaperoned by Mrs. Briault, when he learned of the affair between Texie and Truman. The Texie was in love with Truman, there has been gossip about a romance with her and Follins, also. Each member of the remaining household is suspected in turn as the murderer. It is proved that Truman buried the skeleton. A watch clasp found near the skeleton is identical with one Paula wears, and Doyle learns that Wunsch gave Paula a watch for a wedding present and 13 months later had an identical one made for some one else. When Doyle tells Paula this she faints. When she wakes early in the morning she telephones Doyle and, just as he answers, a shot is fired from her balcony. Doyle arrives at 3 a. m. and begins an intensive investigation. Grandfather Wunsch is upset and mutters something about his cane. None has an alibi except Miss Doty, who wears a white uniform, and the figure on the balcony was dark. Doyle sits up to watch Paula's door, drinks some coffee and goes to sleep. Miss Doty tells him the next morning that she also went to sleep after drinking coffee and that they must have been drugged. Wunsch has been making nightly trips to New York, accompanied by Follins, and Paula has put detectives on his trail. Doyle waylays the detectives, rides with them on their pursuit, and learns that Wunsch has been visiting Helen Voss, going from her apartment to various night clubs. Doyle calls on Helen and, while she is in another room, a woman opens a door and hastily whispers that she is being held a prisoner. Doyle encounters Wunsch and confronts him with this information, and Wunsch admits the woman is Mrs. Briault and that Texie disappeared the day she was to sail for Europe, but that he has received numerous letters from her since asking for money. He has been visiting night clubs, hoping to find her. Doyle convinces Wunsch that it was Texie who was murdered. Follins admits driving Texie from the boat to the old brewery on Wunsch's place, where she was to meet Truman.

THE WELL.

INSTALLMENT XXXVIII.

Doyle sat down on the doorstep and motioned Follins to sit beside him.

"Now let's have the truth," Doyle suggested.

"I've told you all I know," Follins said doggedly. "She came here to meet Briault."

"Did you stay with her until Briault came?"

"No. She told me to go."

Doyle said astutely, "But you didn't. Did you?"

Follins answered haltingly. "Well, when I went back to the car she went inside the brewery. So when I saw that, I hung around a bit. So I was watching from where we left the station wagon today. And after a while I saw Briault come across the golf course. And Texie ran out of the brewery and into the woods to meet him. So I waited, expectin' they'd come back to the brewery. But they didn't. And then I heard Texie scream. And right on top of that I heard a shot." He gulped nervously. "So I ran into the woods, not knowin' which way to go. But it seemed like something guided me to them. Texie was lying there. In the bushes. Her head was all blood."

The chauffeur took out his handkerchief and wiped his forehead. His hands were trembling. "She was dead," he said. "And Briault was still there, bending over her."

"Did he see you?"

"Sure. I barged right into him before I knew where I was."

"What did he do?"

"He threatened me," Follins said promptly. "He said if I ever told about seein' him there, he'd swear he'd seen me kill her. But he said if I'd keep quiet, so would he. So what could I do?" Follins argued defensively. "It would be his word against mine. And he'd have rich relatives and influence that I wouldn't have."

Doyle sat there, silent, peering with a faintly puzzled frown into the young chauffeur's face. Follins' story dovetailed with much that Doyle already knew, but all at once Doyle saw the weak link.

"You tell me that when Texie ran into the woods to meet Briault, you waited, expecting them to come back to the brewery?"

Follins nodded. "That's right."

"Then she wasn't carrying the overnight bag," Doyle concluded.

Follins drew his breath in sharply. "I—I don't remember about that."

"Then we'll find the bag inside," Doyle said suavely. "And the money. And the jewelry."

He rose and pushed open the door. Follins just sat there staring helplessly after him.

Passing into the brewing room, Doyle saw the remnants of brewing equipment—an old fashioned mashing machine; near it a mash tun with a sparging machine mounted across it, and under it the copper into which the mash had been run for boiling.

Here, and in the shipping room, Doyle saw plentiful evidence of the raid of which Blain had spoken. The destruction had been senseless and thorough.

Poking among the debris for the bag he had no expectation of finding, Doyle suddenly recalled something else Blain had reported—the well water which was responsible for the high quality of Wunsch's beer. He began to open doors until, in a room adjacent to that in which the brewing took place, he located the partially covered aperture of the well. Rusty nails projected from the boards plied helter skelter across its brink. Some of the boards were still nailed in position. Others had been ripped up to uncover about a quarter of the well's circumference.

Doyle measured the space calculatingly. The opening was not large enough for a man's body to pass through. Had it been made to draw something out of the well? Or to throw something into it?

Seized by sudden conviction, Doyle called to Follins. The chauffeur made a quick stumbling entrance. His tone was falsely bright as he inquired, "Find it?"

"Sure," Doyle said. "In the well, where you threw it. What did you do with the money and the jewelry?"

Follins' eyes blinked rapidly. "I didn't throw the bag in the well," he blurted. "Briault did."

"You're a liar," Doyle contradicted. "What did you do with what was in the bag?"

The silence hung heavy. Then Follins mumbled. "I only took the money. Briault has the jewelry."

Doyle's eyes narrowed. "You'll land yourself in the chair with Briault," he said. "You conspired to hide a murder and share in the profits."

"My God, it wasn't like that!" Follins' voice held the high thin quality of hysteria. "Can't you understand I was afraid to tell on him? For fear he'd kill me. I got a right to protect my life."

"You make me sick," Doyle mumbled. You've got two fists, haven't you? And you're huskier than Briault."

"But he had a gun," Follins protested hotly. "And he forced the money on me to keep my mouth shut, to involve me. He—— "

"Wait a second," Doyle's expression was grimly triumphant. "Texie left the bag here. But Briault met her in the woods. And killed her there. At least that's your story. So how did he know there was a bag here?"

"Texie must have told him she'd bring it," Follins answered glibly. "I didn't tell him anything about it until he asked me where it was. He knew she'd brought it. There wasn't any use my lying to him. So we came back here and opened the bag. He gave me the money as—well, a sort of bribe, I guess you'd call it. And he took the jewelry."

"How did he dispose of it?"

"He swears he never dared to," Follins replied. "He keeps it hidden in his room. He told me so."

Doyle said suspiciously, "It doesn't make sense that Briault would let you know where there was incriminating evidence against him. Unless—" Doyle paused, revolving a new supposition in his mind.

He turned on Follins accusingly. "You've been blackmailing Briault, that's it. You've been after him for a share in the proceeds of the jewelry sale. You're in this up to your fool neck."

"He forced me in," Follins' tone was knife edged with fear.

"It's a damn fishy story," Doyle said. He put his big hand on the chauffeur's arm and pulled him over to the well. "Pull up the rest of those boards," he ordered.

"What for?"

"You're going down after that bag."

"I'm not going down there," Follins replied belligerently.

Doyle spoke in a gentle singsong. "Either you go down that well, Follins, or I'll throw you down."

After a moment the chauffeur began to tug at the nailed boards. Doyle dropped a bottle into the yawning darkness and listened to its shallow splash. There was an extension ladder over against the wall, in fair condition. The two men lowered it into the well. It dropped beyond reach but leaned in good position. Then the detective looked for something to serve as a grapple. The dismantled mashing machine yielded just what he wanted. It was an old fashioned model which had been equipped with iron rakes fixed on arms extending from the center of the tun, so that when the machine was in motion no portion of the mash escaped its revolutions. Doyle handed a rake section to Follins, who had sullenly removed his shoes and socks and rolled up his trousers.

Then the detective grasped the young man's wrists and lowered him into the well. The ladder teetered for a moment and settled squarely. Follins made the descent in good order and began to fish around with the grapple.

"Brace it against the wall," Doyle suggested.

Twice Follins raised the bag only to lose it again. Then he managed to seize it securely, and came up the ladder dragging the soggy mass.

The Housewife

Some of the best looking shower curtains on the market are of a material which resembles fine net and which has been coated with a patented protector. These curtains come in lovely pastel colors, either plain, or with stunning designs in self-tones and white. We liked the soft, light blue and white ones, and the plain blue. This material is, of course, waterproof, and it won't crack or stick together or dry out.

Good Morning!

This is fun, really. And, besides being fun, a surprisingly good little program movie—with the "surprisingly" meant to be taken literally. You see, the situation ISN'T—always—"just this," as business men like to affirm in reverse in their letters. Just as you're sure you know exactly what's coming—yoo hoo, April Fool! Which makes it nice, don't you think?

You wouldn't like mamma if she gave all the surprises away and I gotta be loved. BUT, no harm in telling you that Wayne Morris as a wealthy young rancher falls in love with a canny night club singer WITH a VURR' smart family and that when Wayne's best friend (Roscoe Karns) comes to New York from the middle west to be Wayne's best man, the smile fades from his face. WHAT a setup! . . . Mr. Karns sets some wheels to moving—which is all from me to you of the story.

You'll like all the players, I think, specializing a bit on Wayne Morris. You'll laugh and—I wonder—WILL a tear come to your eye when—a certain man—CRIES? But there I go, giving things away. . . . G'bye.

See you tomorrow.

On the House

If you have an ageing bathroom or kitchen wall to cover, there is a surfacing made of wood fibers which have been exploded and compressed into hard panels. These panels are large enough to cover a wall or ceiling in the average bathroom or kitchen without necessity of joining. Tile squares are imprinted on surface or surface can be obtained without tile pattern. This same material, easy to keep clean with mild soap and water, can be obtained in gay colors and used for cupboards, shelves and work table surfaces as well as for walls and ceilings.

Carrots are such common, ordinary vegetables that we seldom look at them with an appreciative eye, to admire their cheerful color and pretty shape. But if we couldn't find carrots when we went shopping for groceries, we'd begin to miss them terribly. They are one of our most useful vegetables, for they make crisp, attractive salads, to say nothing of their importance just as a cooked vegetable. They're even good in steamed puddings.

A tiny pinch of sugar in the carrot cooking water helps to bring out their true flavor. Carrots should be cooked in a small amount of salted water, so that, by the time they are tender, there's just enough left to serve them in. Add butter plentifully, a little pepper, and serve them up!

This method of cooking preserves vitamins and minerals which would be lost if the cooking water were discarded.

If you wish to cook carrots whole, steaming is a good method to use. Wash them, steam them until just tender, slip off the thin outer skins, and douse well with butter and seasonings.

GLAZED CARROTS WITH MINT.
[Serves 4.]

8 medium carrots, sliced lengthwise
½ cup sugar
¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons fresh chopped mint

Scrape carrots, slice, and boil in salted water for 5 minutes. Drain and place in shallow greased pan. Sprinkle with sugar and salt, dot with butter, and cover with the chopped mint. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes, or until carrots are glazed and tender. Turn once during baking. For plain glazed carrots, omit the mint.

Carrots also may be glazed with butter and sugar in a skillet.

[Serves Four]

2 cups cooked carrot balls or slices
1 teaspoon minced parsley
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon paprika
¼ cup butter
Juice of ½ lemon

Put carrots into a pan with other ingredients, and cook gently for 10 minutes, shaking the pan to coat the carrots with the glaze. Serve hot.

BAKED CARROTS AND CELERY.
[Six Servings]

2 cups cut carrots
1 cup cut celery
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk and cooking water
Salt, pepper
½ cup grated cheese

Cook carrots and celery together in a small amount of salted water until tender. Pour remaining cooking water into a cup, fill cup with milk, and use the combination as liquid for the white sauce. To make the sauce, blend butter and flour and add liquid gradually, stirring over low heat until sauce thickens and becomes smooth. Season with salt and pepper and pour over carrots and celery in a greased baking dish. Top with cheese and crumbs and bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees, until browned.

For the Young and Slim

MISS' JUMPER COSTUME.

For the young and slim there's nothing quite as attractive as the jumper costume. Perhaps this is because only the young dare wear it, and nobody older has any right to it! This outfit gives the jumper skirt a new touch here and there. Notice that the sides are cut down to reveal more of the blouse, and that the shoulder straps subscribe to the halter idea. The original of this bias-cut, flared-skirted model uses striped woolen for the skirt and makes the long-sleeved blouse of washable silk. A plain silk or woolen skirt is attractive, too, and the blouse, which may have short tailored sleeves, makes up well in cotton.

Style No. 3451 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material for jumper; 2⅛ yards for short-sleeved blouse; 2½ yards for long-sleeved blouse.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

The summer national championships held annually at Asbury Park, N. J., see an impressive gathering of masters from every part of the country. The recent tournament [Aug. 5 to 12] was no exception. Here is a sample of the sparkling play for "top scores."

North-South vulnerable.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 club	1 no trump
Pass	Pass	Pass

East's opening club bid was very light, but as a nonvulnerable bid in third position was in accord with accepted match-point tactics. Had South been on a basis of similar vulnerability with East his highest strategy would have been to pass as a trap, or to make a take-out double which might possibly be left in by North for penalties. But, vulnerability conditions being what they were, South's one no trump overcall [tanamount to an opening no trump bid] was eminently correct, as was the rest of the bidding.

West led the club seven. Dummy ducked and East won with the ace, then shifted to the heart jack. Declarer carefully won this in his own hand, cashed the king and queen of spades, then, after profound thought, boldly overtook his own spade jack with dummy's ace. On the surface this play looks rash, since if the spades fail to break 3-3 declarer has thrown away a spade trick. But declarer figured that if the worst happened and the spades failed to break he would be able to recapture the lost trick in another suit, whereas if he found a 3-3 break he would be in position for a coup which, on the bidding, had a splendid chance to succeed. Its success, however, depended squarely on retaining dummy's heart ace entry until the right moment, as we shall see.

To declarer's great satisfaction the spades broke. Now dummy's fourth spade was cashed, declarer discarding a diamond, then the club finesse was taken and the club king cashed. Now declarer set the stage for the big final scene. He cashed his remaining heart honor and led to the heart ace. At this point dummy was down to the club 10 and the Q-4 of diamonds. East had had to discard a heart in order to keep the club queen and the guarded king of diamonds. The lead of the club 10 made him acutely uncomfortable, since he had to win and return a diamond to the combined tenace in the North-South hands. Thus declarer made two overtricks which gave him top score on the board.

Favoring the Bright Child Wrong Policy

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

All the "successes" we admire in the world didn't get high marks in school. All the children who get high marks in school are not necessarily successes out in the world, nor are they necessarily successes in the art of living, of getting on with people, of swinging a marriage or handling their children. They may be successful in those ways, to be sure, but not necessarily so. And the one who didn't shine in mathematics or Latin may shine after classroom lessons and homework are a thing of the past.

Another comment I'd like to tuck in. It is that the I. Q. which was supposed to be static, isn't. Time was when, if your child's intelligence test rated him 98, he was to be forever no more than a 98. Now we've discovered [altho common sense should have told us] that intelligence, given the right chance, may develop just like any other function. Within limits, of course. So your small child with an I. Q. of 98 may, in high school, test 108.

In several families I know there are two children, and one of these children apparently is brighter than the other.

Whether one is actually brighter than the other, I don't know, or whether one has been treated so that he's merely developed better, I don't know. All I know is that one is apparently brighter, has a better school record, or is in a higher grade for his age than the other.

In several of these cases the mother and father have an obvious pride in the brighter child. When she's [or he's] successful they beam. When the other fails they turn their heads away. They emphasize the brightness of one and the slowness of the other.

This is a serious, a wrong thing to do. These less bright children, when they are treated so, are badly handicapped. They are likely to lose confidence in themselves in every direction. They feel "I'm too stupid to do that," even if it's something like learning a new game or a romping dance. They're paralyzed by the consciousness that they can't do it. Sometimes such a child will be just as bright as the other, but favoritism or mismanagement of some sort will cramp his development.

★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS ★

There will be a deluge of new makeup shades again this fall. Already they have begun to rain on the fashion and beauty world, and if there is a new variation of shading in the red tones it will be surprising.

As you undoubtedly know, the big colors on which the fashion people are concentrating this season are the browns, the rich greens and the benedictines—all colors that were once considered wearable by the few rather than the many. The makeups have changed all that. With the right lipstick, rouge and powder, any color is made wearable for any woman.

For example, the woman who loves the chocolaty browns but has always feared them because they seemed to smother her natural color has no problem nowadays. She just uses a makeup that does the wonderful trick of harmonizing with the costume color and dramatizing her own color so that the dreaded "dimness" is impossible.

Simple Cross-Stitch Design

Here is a simple cross-stitch design which would be equally effective as a sampler, tray cloth, or table cover, and is an ideal gift for any season of the year or for use in one's own home. The figures above the motto may be embroidered in any color choice suited to individual taste.

Looking at Hollywood
By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 2.—Having just previewed Kildare picture No. 5, Metro has begun on No. 6, to get a couple ahead so that Lionel Barrymore may go east to consult specialists at the Mayo clinic or at Johns Hopkins hospital. Barrymore's health has improved, but, having once fractured his hip, he still has a fear of falling and doesn't walk much. He has been going to a psychiatrist, hoping to iron out that falling fear. . . . Remember Virginia Lee Corbin, once one of the hottest of child stars? She's Frances Dee's stand-in in "Flotsam." . . . Signe Hasso, RKO's new import, left a husband and 4 year old child in Sweden. She can't be drawn out on conditions in her homeland during the war. "Just the same," she says, cryptically. . . . Roy Rogers, Republic's cowboy hero—whose real name is the villainous-sounding one of Leonard Slye—today was made mayor of Valley Village at a hot-dog-and-potato-race sociable at Barney Oldfield's.

Fred Astaire has had a letter from Jack Leach, British trainer who is caring for a horse owned by Astaire. Leach vetoed the actor's instructions to sell the animal, reporting that the war was "in the bag." "Of course there's no racing right now," he continued. "It was tough on the bookies for a while, but then the bally Germans started raiding us and that helped. The bookies are in Newmarket making book on the number of planes that will come over."

Description of Ciro's: "Looks like the inside of an Irish casket." . . . Capt. E. L. Benway, who came to Hollywood six weeks ago for a ten day stay in the interest of the Canadian air force, is still here, says the post may be practically permanent. Some of his southern California recruits have been ferrying bombers over to England. . . . Errol Flynn's next rôle will be in modern dress, with the great man playing a detective story writer who turns real detective. What'll you bet he carries a sword cane and has a duel with somebody? . . . At a recent afternoon's shooting of "The Californian" Tyrone Power was made to eat ten apples—one for each take—by Director Rouben Mamoulian. He finally squawked he was getting a stomach ache, was told the whole thing was a gag between Mamoulian and the visiting Nino Martini, and that a perfect shot had been obtained on the fourth take. . . . The Richard Macaulay-Jerry Wald "Ten Best Movies" book, which will be published next month as a companion volume to Burns Mantle's long-established "Ten Best Plays," is in the bag locally. First two Hollywood bookstores approached ordered nearly 600 copies between 'em.

It still goes that everybody, male and female, wants to be a song writer. Now I'm convinced that every female also wants to be a movie actress. Sample plea:

"I will take up my affair with you which I started with Sullivan. He helped Bette Davis get a job so will you please help me get a job like that too? See D. O. Selznick, J. Roosevelt, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Republic studios. Maybe Gene Autry can use me in a picture. Or see Warner Brothers, 20th Century-Fox, United Artists, well, yes, Universal—in fact all of them until this photo of me gets a job in the movies.

"I sing baritone also high soprano if asked for it. Have a form of Venus and pretty hands and arms. For legs I got Marlene Dietrich beat. Will get a new front tooth if they don't like the one I got. I got it on a pivot as I got a dislocated jaw once so just got one tooth from the dentist like Joan Blondell did when her baby hit her with a train."

Rosalind Russell, whose long, white, figure-clutching, hobble skirted evening gown is a 10 reel production all by itself, is being previewed twice tomorrow night. She's in "No Time for Comedy" at Warner's Hollywood and in Universal's "Hired Wife" at the Pantages. Warners pulled a fast one and advanced their date one night.

Joe Breen of the Hays office appears to be letting sleeping dogs alone or well enough lie probably because nobody has been turning in any squawks, which is all right with everybody. Some naughty stuff has been creeping into the movies. But it isn't the old style dirt; most of it is genuinely witty, all of it is funny or tries to be, and none of it tries to make too much of a good thing.

A list of the titillating 10 would include "The Great McGinty," "My Favorite Wife," "They Drive by Night," "I Love You Again," "The Doctor Takes a Wife," "He Stayed for Breakfast," "Turnabout," "The Primrose Path," "Torrid Zone," and "Panama Lady."

Boys Talking of Other Dates Offend Girls

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Dear Miss Blake: Would you please print something in your column about boys who come to see girls and talk about other girls? There is nothing so annoying!

"One of us girls wears a new dress, and instead of the customary compliments, she is greeted with: 'O, Sally has one something like that!' or 'Alice has a beautiful one in blue like that!'

"If we fix something to eat, the boys recall the hike they took and what delicious food the girls cooked for them! We girls are ready to scream every time another girl's name is mentioned!

"We refrain from talking about other dates, but unfortunately the boys are just the opposite. This habit they have bores us more than it makes us jealous.

"ONE BORED GIRL."

Read the letter again, boys. It presents a picture of yourselves that is not flattering, to say the least. Surely, all of you guilty of such poor technique will hasten to improve it before you evoke those screams the girls feel like giving.

We doubt, really, that you mean to make the girls feel the way they do about you. All you want to convey, we know, is the impression that you're not stay-at-homes, and are popular with other girls.

Give the girls a "break." Don't try to arouse their jealousy by reference to other good times. If you've ever run up against girls who have played the same trick on you, the chances were you dropped them quicker than they could bat an astonished eyelash. Compliment the girls by making them feel they're just about the best pals to be with by not mentioning other playmates.

Shoe and Belt Makers Join in Brown Parade

BY REA SEEGER.

New fashion variations on the theme of brown! "Coffee bean brown" in filmy chiffon hosiery to highlight dark brown footgear and matching bags. Finally, the bag and shoe and belt makers are clicking at the same time with exact shades easily repeating the tone tint or shade in every costume piece, a godsend for the easily bewildered shopper with a definite color sense to please!

"Bendictine brown" is a glowing brown to wear with topaz jewelry with this same color available not only in slim distinctive daytime clothes but in grand assortments of costume accessories. New "penny brown" is still another shade to reckon with . . . its dusky tawny glory, ideal for the first fall wardrobes. Hats, veils, gloves, belts, bags, and footwear all come in this coppery shade. It goes with beige, with neutral brown taupes, as well as the leaf brown and sepia tints.

Fascinating new dinner costumes, evening gowns, party dresses with wide full skirts, clever separate jackets of wool, silk or velvet, evening coats and fur jackets emphasize the fall glory of this particularly timely color.

WAR PLUMAGE WINS HANDICAP; KAYAK II. LAST

SOX TAKE TWO; INDIANS LOSE PAIR; YANKS RISE TO 2D

VISCOUNTY 2D TO 7-1 SHOT IN $32,400 RACE

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The long succession of catastrophies to Chicago race track favorites was climaxed yesterday when Kayak II., running at odds of 4 to 5, finished last in the Washington Park handicap, while a little brown filly named War Plumage was winning this $32,400 stake. Emerging from a rough stretch duel, Jockey Nick Wall drove War Plumage across the finish line three quarters of a length in advance of the Valdina farm's Viscounty, which was closing rapidly again after getting the worst of a crowding incident in the last furlong.

Three lengths farther back came the Shandon farm's Burning Star to capture third money. Tom Taggart's Yale O'Nine and Mrs. Marie Evans' Shot Put followed, after which Charles S. Howard's Kayak II. galloped ignominiously across the line to complete the field of six.

First Triumph of Year.

The winner, which went to the post at a little less than 7 to 1 odds, had been highly rated among the 3 year old fillies last season, having won the Coaching Club American Oaks and the Alabama Stakes at Belmont and Saratoga, respectively. She had been unable to get in the money in three starts this season, but one of those was a pretty tough event for a filly—the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap. She finished fifth to Seabiscuit on that occasion. In a trial race which was run over a very heavy track at Washington Park last Monday she was last in a field of four, 12 lengths behind the winner, Viscounty.

In his performance yesterday Kayak II. went thee way of Bimelech, Sirocco, Swain, Misty Isle, Attention, Advocator, De Kalb and Inscoelda, which were beaten after being established as favorites in previous stakes at Arlington and Washington parks this season.

Howard's Luck Fails.

This hoodoo broke the Howard luck. The Californian had won the American Derby with Mioland and the Washington Park Futurity with Porter's Cap, but neither of these was highly regarded in the betting. Getting a standout public choice in a big race was just too much for even his good fortune. He had already taken $75,680 as the winner's share of the American Derby and the Futurity and had been conceded an excellent chance of adding the $24,800 winner's share of the handicap. But this went to J. C. Brady of New York, owner of War Plumage.

Trainer Howard Wells conditioned War Plumage for her victory, his achievement being all the more remarkable because he sent his 4 year old filly out to run successfully against colts and seasoned handicap horses at a mile and a quarter.

War Plumage Pays $15.60.

War Plumage's prices across the board were $15.60, $5.20, and $3.60. Viscounty returned $3.40 and $3.20 for place and show. Burning Star's show tickets were worth $4.60. Over a fast track War Plumage covered the mile and a quarter in 2:04.

The Labor day program, which concluded the Washington Park meeting, drew a crowd of 30,000. This was the third largest of the season, being exceeded only by the attendance at Arlington Park on the Fourth of July and on the day of the Classic. Emergency parking spaces were brought into use. The spectators stood elbow to elbow on the terraces and an overflow crowd took up positions in the infield.

Under perfect weather conditions, the field paraded to the post for the Washington Park handicap. War Plumage got away alertly and led the way on the first trip past the stands, with Viscounty and Burning Star close up. All of the leaders were being stoutly restrained.

Going down the back stretch, Vis-

RIGNEY YIELDS TIGERS TWO HITS IN 4-0 VICTORY

Dietrich Outpitches Newsom in 1st, 2-1.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox, who shudder and shake at the mere sight of a Cleveland Indian uniform, but refuse to show concern about Detroit's Tigers, sheared the latter not once, but twice, yesterday in Comiskey park. Sparked by the brilliance of Bill Dietrich and John Rigney, Jim Dykes' dudes romped off with both ends of a double header, thereby dropping the Tigers to third place and easing the Yankees' movement into the notch just behind the leading Indians. The scores were 2 to 1 and 4 to 0.

After witnessing Dietrich's first game feat, a six hitter, Rigney stepped into action before 27,654 and set a far more dazzling pace than that of his predecessor. The River Forest right hander fashioned a two hit job for his season's 12th triumph. The first of the two hits came from Barney McCosky's bat in the fourth and this, except for a few passes, was the net total of the Tiger attack until the ninth when Charley Gehringer bounced a double off the right field barrier.

Sox Cool Off Newsom.

An added portion of bitterness for the Tigers, who now have been thumped 12 times in 19 tussles with the Sox, was that Buck [Big Shot] Newsom was dusted off. Buck went into action with a season's record of 17 victories and 2 defeats. He even had announced his foolproof plans for beating the Reds in the impending world series. Newsom, altho tough most of the way, fell in the eighth when Jim Webb and Julius Solters singled to get the winning run across the plate. Newsom yielded just six hits, the same number as Dietrich, but only two of the half dozen off the latter were paired.

Rigney drew Paul Trout for an opponent and for a major part of the journey was as tough as the illustrious Newsom. Trout kept the Sox away from the plate for five innings despite an assortment of five hits. But in the sixth the Chicagoans suddenly recovered some of their recently missing extra base power. Webb added to his honors by doubling. Joe Kuhel also doubled. Luke Appling cut in with a single and Taft Wright capped it with a triple. The assault netted three runs. The other tally was off Tom Seats in the eighth.

FIRST GAME

The Sox tripped Newsom with a pair of hits to start the scoring in the second inning of the first game. Wright singled past Gehringer with one out. Tresh singled to center, Wright reaching third ahead of McCosky's throw which Higgins fumbled, Tresh moving to second on the error. While Bartell was throwing out Kennedy at first, Wright scored and Tresh went to third. Mike's meandering ended there when Dietrich fanned.

Dietrich had only one perfect inning in the first four. That was the fourth when he set down Greenberg, York, and Higgins. But in the next he wabbled a bit and the Tigers picked up the tying run. Bartell singled to left after Sullivan had grounded to Kuhel. After Newsom filed to Kreevich and Fox walked, McCosky singled into center, Bartell scoring. Kreevich's throw, tho, cut down Fox in his attempt to reach third.

Webb Opens Winning Rally.

Webb touched off what proved Newsom's downfall by singling to center to open the eighth. Jim was pushed to second on Kreevich's bunt and Kuhel, being looked upon as too tough to handle, was given an inten-

Champions Split with A's; Browns Halt Leaders.

New York, Sept. 2 [Special].—The New York Yankees climbed into second place in the American league standings today when the Detroit Tigers dropped a double header to the Chicago White Sox while the world champions were dividing with the Philadelphia Athletics. The Yankees won the opener from the A's, 6 to 3, to extend their winning string to eight games, but lost the second game, 3 to 0. Johnny Babich, sliderball specialist, yielded five hits and no walks for the shutout. A holiday crowd of 69,940 attended.

The opener was decided in the first inning when the Yankees scored three runs on a single, three walks, a hit batsman, a wild pitch and a fly. They clinched the game in the second with their fourth run. Scores:

INDIANS BEATEN TWICE.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2 [Special].—The St. Louis Browns dealt a double jolt to the Cleveland Indians by sweeping a double header, 2 to 1 and 3 to 0, today before 52,491 spectators. The outcome left the league leaders only three and one-half games in front of the New York Yankees, who moved into second place by one point over the Detroit Tigers.

Vernon Kennedy yielded seven hits in the opener and collected three singles, exactly half of the Browns' total hits, as he put the winning runs on base. Then he halted the Indians' ninth inning rally, with one run in and Ray Mack on first, by striking out Pinch Hitter Clarence Campbell and getting Pinch Hitter Sammy Hale to fly to center.

CUBS LOSE FIRST TO PIRATES, 5-2; THEN WIN, 7-1

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 2.—Vern Olsen, who stopped an eight game winning streak for the Pirates when he beat them, 1 to 0, for the only Cub victory in a four game series here a month ago, today ended a five game losing streak for the Cubs, when he led the distraught Chicagoans to a 7 to 1 victory in the second game of a double header. Charley Root and the boys lost the first game, 5 to 2. A holiday crowd of 26,120 saw the split.

In addition to turning in a polished game of pitching, Olsen was the front man in a five run rally which broke a 1 to 1 tie in the eighth, and scored what turned out to be the winning run. Joe Bowman was the victim in this eighth inning uprising, which included Bill Nicholson's 21st homer with two on base.

The double header today wound up the Cubs' 1940 business in Pittsburgh. The Pirates are ahead, 10 games to 9, in the season series with three games coming up in Chicago the last three days of the Wrigley field season, Sept. 24, 25, and 26.

Olsen's triumph brought to a halt the string of setbacks which had seen the Cubs lose their last two home games to the Bees, the three they played over the week-end in Cincinnati, and the first game today. The outcome brought a measure of cheer, but left the Cubs four games under the .500 mark.

FIRST GAME

The Cubs, following their futile processes in Cincinnati by waiting until the late innings to start smacking, waited too long before they started smacking Sewell's pitches in the first game. In the first eight innings they made four singles and in the ninth they made a double, a single and a double successively after two were out. Inasmuch as the score was 5 to 1 going into the ninth, the belated rally, halted with one run in and runners on third and second, served only to prolong the contest.

Charley Root started after Jake Mooty, scheduled for the assignment, had complained of a sore arm. A homer by Vince DiMaggio in the fourth inning was the only damage

Nelson Defeats Snead, 1 Up; Wins National P. G. A. Title

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hershey, Pa., Sept. 2.—Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., today won the 23d national Professional Golfers' association championship by defeating Sam Snead of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., 1 up, in the 36 hole final match at the Hershey Country club.

So much for the 1940 record of eight days of bitter fighting in the toughest tournament pro golfers can win. So much for Nelson winning another major championship and Snead losing another one. But there were two triumphs today. One was that of Nelson on the scoreboard, one more proof of this tenacious Texan's competitive spirit. The other victory was Snead's.

For the full 36 holes, the 27 year old Virginian, who was trying to bring his bride of two weeks the title, gave the lie to the charge that he is a front runner. He finished only a shade back of Nelson, and there can be no higher compliment than that.

Snead Displays Courage.

Some example of Snead's courageous fight can be gleaned from the fact that he was as much as 3 down in the morning round, didn't square the match until the 30th, and went ahead for the first time on the 32d. Thru all of this, he had the edge in tee-to-green play, for Nelson was troubled with hookitis most of the day, but at least six of Sam's putts either grazed or hopped out of the cups.

Sam fought off Nelson's comeback at the 33d with a stymie. Then it was Nelson's turn. Byron made three successive iron shots that will stand with any ever made in the P. G. A. He whipped a No. 7 iron four feet from the 34th flag for a birdie. Snead's 14 footer for a half was in the cup, but crawled out. Nelson then fired a niblick to within six feet of the 35th hole, and got it down after Sam's eight footer skinned the hole. Nelson then hit a No. 3 iron six feet above the cup at the 190 yard 36th. His putt hung on the lip, but all he needed was a par three to match Snead and end the match.

Both Shatter Par.

Nelson finished the day with a medal card of 141, 5 under par, with a scoring card of 35—36—71 and an afternoon effort of 36—34—70. Snead was 6 under for the day with a 37—36—73 and a 33—34—67, lowest round of the entire tournament. This included a conceded deuce at the short 27th, where Nelson hooked to the water, and gave Sam a 20 footer for a two.

Thus, Nelson won the title which escaped him in last year's 37 hole final against Henry Picard, and gave him a record of victories in the P. G. A., the National Open, the Western Open, the Metropolitan Open, and the Masters' tourney. And Snead, while he didn't win the championship, earned the cheers of a gallery of 4,000 who revised their opinion of the lad who tossed away the last two national open titles and who gave up this same P. G. A. title in an 8 and 7 defeat by Paul Runyan two years ago.

The cards:

Three Morning Stymies.

The first of the three morning stymies Snead laid Nelson occurred on the first, where Byron, with a six foot opening for a birdie, found himself blocked by Sam's approach putt. Each was on the second in two and putted up dead for his par. Both were in the rough at the 565 yard third, with Nelson almost buried in the deep grass. Nelson played a wedge second out to the fairway and then whipped his third on, 17 feet from the cup. Sam was 16 feet away, and his putt laid Byron a dead stymie. The latter took a niblick and flipped it into the hole and over Sam's ball from less than a yard.

Nelson was on the front fringe of the fourth green with his second shot, and still had a four and a half footer left, but sank it for a half. Then Snead showed he could work out a pretty good half himself at the 212 yard fifth. Nelson was on with a 4 wood, while Sam elected an iron, which caught the lower right bunker. His recovery was 15 feet short, but he holed out.

Snead Misses 2 Foot Putt.

Nelson won the first hole of the match at the 579 yard sixth. It appeared he had missed his No. 4 wood second, but later said he had a terrible lie. His third was on about 18 feet, and he dropped the putt for a birdie, Snead just missing a 25 footer for a half. Nelson pulled his second to the eighth, but got a half, when Snead missed a 9 foot attempt for a birdie. Nelson also missed the Boston, Mass., Sept. 2 (AP).—The Boston Bees ran their winning string to six straight today by whipping the Brooklyn Dodgers, 7 to 6, in 11 innings in the opener of a double header, but dropped the second game, 6 to 2, before a crowd of 23,719. The starting pitchers, fat Freddie Fitzsimmons and Dick Errickson, were yanked in the first inning of the opener after each had given up four runs. Al Javery took over for the Bees and held the Dodgers to three hits in 10 2-3 innings. Sibby Sisti won the game in the 11th by scoring Gene Moore from second with a vicious drive thru Coscarart's legs. Curt Davis held the Bees to eight scattered hits in the second game. Scores:

PHILLIES WIN TWICE.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 2 (AP).—Danny Litwhiler, the Phillies' rookie outfielder, sparked his teammates to a double victory over the New York Giants today, 11 to 2 and 6 to 5, before a crowd of 13,325. The second game lasted 10 innings. Litwhiler drove in six runs with three hits—one of them a homer with the bases loaded—in the opener. In the second game, his triple in the sixth inning scored two mates and tied it up at 5 to 5. Then Shortstop Bob Bragan, the first man up in the tenth, hit a homer to give the Phillies the edge. Kirby Higbe limited the Giants to six hits in the opener. Scores:

Knott to Face Hutchinson and Detroit Today

Because rain eliminated one game from their double header Aug. 10 the Sox and Tigers will have to work this afternoon instead of enjoying the vacation originally granted them by the schedule makers. Jack Knott will be on the mound for the Sox and Fred Hutchinson for the Tigers.

When Paul Trout stepped out to start the second game he was wearing a white sweatband under his black cap. The umpires asked the Sox manager if he objected and Jimmie Dykes pointed out that rules are rules. So Trout was ordered to discard the article. If it had been black instead of white there probably would have been no protest.

Bill Dietrich's performance in the first game was this third neat job in succession, but he won only two of three. He lost to Washington, 3 to 2, in 13 innings, and in the second of the three starts defeated Boston, 3 to 2.

SENATORS WIN TWO.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2 (AP).—Lefty Grove lost a 13 inning pitching duel to young Sid Hudson, 1 to 0, today as the Washington Senators won a double header from the Boston Red Sox. Ken Chase hurled the Senators to a 5 to 4 victory in the second game, halted by darkness after six innings. Grove in the opener made his first start since injuring his foot early in July. The Grove-Hudson duel took 2 hours and 55 minutes and was a pitching masterpiece. Rookie Jack Sanford ended it in the 13th when he singled with the bases loaded. Three Boston errors and a passed ball helped the Senators win the second game as Chase outlasted three Red Sox pitchers. Scores:

Kuhel Makes Unhappy Tigers Unhappier

tional pass. The strategy didn't work because Solters lined a single to left, Webb scoring the winning run. Appling then looked at a third strike and Wright tapped to Gehringer.

Dietrich didn't get thru the ninth without a struggle. The first two pitches to Greenberg were wide and when the next came over, Hanky Panky banged it against the left field wall for a double. The remainder was easy for bespectacled Bill. York popped to Webb, who also threw out Higgins. Then Sullivan filed to Solters.

SECOND GAME

The Sox had Trout on the line for the first time in the third inning of the second game, but Umpire Joe Rue wouldn't allow them to use the net. Rigney singled to right with one out and went to third on Webb's single to the same sector. With a 3 and 2 count, Kreevich ignored the next pitch because it looked wide to him. It didn't look wide to Rue, so Mike was out on strikes and Webb was doubled on his way to second.

All the Tigers could do to Rigney in three innings was represented by a pass, but the opening of the fourth brought 'em a hit. McCosky singled to center and was immediately doubled on Gehringer's grounder to Appling, after which Greenberg looked at a third strike.

Trout was hooked when Webb opened the sixth with a double into the left field corner. Kreevich furnished a sacrifice and Kuhel followed with a two bagger to right, Webb carrying in the first run of the game. Kuhel stole third while Solters was fanning and scored on Appling's single between Higgins and Bartell. Wright then tripled to score Appling. Turner couldn't do anything to help Wright.

The Sox run in the eighth came easily and quickly. Solters greeted Seats with a triple to right and Appling singled to score Rosenthal, who ran for Solters. With two out in the ninth, Gehringer doubled to right for the second and final Tiger hit, and Greenberg walked. On the next pitch York popped to Webb to end the game.

Savage also entered the doubles finals, along with his partner, Louis Mitchell. They will play David Deans and Herbert Weath of the West Side club Saturday.

PACKERS BEAT REDSKINS, 28-20, IN MILWAUKEE

15,000 See Green Bay Win Exhibition.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 2.—The Green Bay Packers brought to State Fair park today the same technique employed against the college All-Stars in Chicago. In a National Football league exhibition game against the Washington Redskins, Cecil Isbell and Arnie Herber threw long passes and Don Hutson caught them. With the help of assorted veterans and rookies, they emerged triumphant, 28 to 20, before 14,978.

Passes twice brought the Packers from behind in the second period, after a scoreless first quarter, and in the third period the champions turned loose Clarke Hinkle and Andy Uram for overland excursions thru a Redskin secondary that was major league only offensively. Hinkle ran 37 yards for the touchdown that broke a 14 to 14 tie and Uram went seven for the score that assured victory. Washington got its last touchdown on an 11 yard pass, Frank Filchock to Dick Todd, shortly before the game ended.

Rookies Get a Test.

The game was to be a test for Packer rookies and holdover reserves. They did right well, altho kept on the defensive thru the first quarter and most of the second.

Washington started the scoring early in the second quarter when Todd slipped inside of the Packers' right tackle and cut back in a seven yard sprint to the corner of the end zone. Tackle Bo Russell added the extra point. This touchdown was set up by Wilbur Moore, who intercepted Herber's pass on the Packers' 21 yard line late in the first period.

The Packers received the ensuing kick-off and did not surrender the ball until they had tied the score. Joe Laws scored the touchdown on a 23 yard pass from Jimmy Lawrence. Ernie Smith kicked the extra point.

Washington went back on the march a few minutes later when Don Irwin intercepted Lawrence's pass on the Packers' 26 yard line. Roy Zimmerman and Bob Seymour, rookies, hammered away at the Packer line until they had reached the 11 yard line. Then Zimmerman flipped the ball to Bob Masterson, veteran end, for a touchdown. Masterson put Washington ahead 14 to 7 with a place kick for the extra point.

Hutson Does Quick Work.

Up until then the Packer stars had been on the side line. Herber came in to take the kickoff back eighteen yards and before Washington again had the ball the score was tied. Herber passed eleven yards to Lawrence and fifteen yards to Weisegarber to the Redskins' 35 yard line. Uram and Hutson then entered the game. After Uram had made three yards, Hutson made a circus catch of Herber's pass for a ten yard gain. On the next play he went into the end zone behind Todd and took Herber's pass for a touchdown. Ernie Smith again tied the score with a place kick and Hutson left the game.

Isbell and Hutson were in the Packer lineup at the start of the second half and teamed up long enough for Isbell to fire a 54 yard pass to Hutson, who made a diving shoestring catch to give Green Bay a first down on the Redskins' 35 yard line. This foray came to an end when Hinkle's 41 yard place kick bounded off the upright.

An exchange of punts ended with Isbell returning Spirida's kick twenty-six yards to the Packers' 49 yard line. He attempted to pass on first down, but, finding himself trapped, reversed and ran fifteen yards to the Redskins' 37 yard line. A pass by Isbell hit Blood in the chest, but Blood, in the clear, could not hold it. Hinkle then ran wide around the Redskins' right end for thirty-seven yards and a touchdown. Hutson added the extra point.

Fumble Proves Costly.

A missed signal in the Washington backfield led to a fumble two plays later and Gantenbein recovered on the Redskins' 22 yard line. Laws picked up three yards, then Hinkle went twelve to the 7. Uram split the guards for the remaining distance for a touchdown. Smith again kicked the extra point.

Late in the fourth quarter, Lawrence's poor kick put the Packers in a hole. Hinkle got off a 63 yard punt, but Green Bay was caught holding. His next kick, from the 6 yard line, went out of bounds on the Packers' 43 yard line. Filchock ran eight yards, then passed nine to Perdue, and fifteen to Todd to make it first down on the 11 yard line. He went back to pass, found no receivers, and headed up the field. At the line of scrimmage he pitched the ball over the Packers' heads to Todd for a touchdown. The lineups:

Gloriant Wins Noble Trophy in Yacht Race

Gloriant, Anthony Herrmann's Racine [Wis.] Yacht club racing sloop, won the Commodore F. H. Noble trophy yesterday by leading a fleet of 65 yachts from Michigan City, Ind., to Jackson park harbor on the last leg of the annual triangular race. The yachts raced without time allowances. The fleet was the largest ever to start simultaneously in the history of yachting on Lake Michigan.

Winning time for the Gloriant was 6:54:32. Revenge, Chicago Yacht club cutter, owned by Blair Walliser and Ken Griffin, defender of the Noble trophy, was second in 7:15:08. Gloriant also won in its class on corrected time.

Yankee, Tahuna Major Winners.

Yankee, Ed Schnabel's R class sloop, and Tahuna, Joseph Moller's and Henry Babson's 48 foot yawl, were major winners in the three day series. The Yankee regained the Dreadnaught trophy, which it lost to Hornet last year, with the highest point score for the three legs.

The Hamilton trophy for the cruising division title, won last year by Wind Song, was captured by Tahuna with three straight victories in class B. Yankee and Tahuna fly the Chicago Yacht club burgee.

Breeze Wins in Class C.

Breeze, Sumner W. D. Scott's 40 foot ketch, won in C class yesterday. Skipper Scott fitted a new boom to the yacht's mainmast only a few minutes before the start off Michigan City.

Twin Star, L. M. Pirie's Sheridan Shore Yacht club sloop, won the annual shipping board trophy series for star class sloops yesterday off Belmont harbor. After winning yesterday's 10 mile race, last of three sailed over the week-end, Twin Star took the trophy with a total score of 48 points. Step-N-Fetchit, the Otter brothers' entry, and Glider, the Bingham-Clay-Floyd syndicate star, tied for second with 45 points each. Fifteen stars competed in the series, sponsored by the Chicago Yacht club.

Dry Sue Wins Two Races.

Dry Sue, Kenneth Schmid's and George Lawver's snipe class sloop, won two races held yesterday by the Chicago Corinthian Yacht club off Montrose harbor. Dry Sue took the club's final lady skipper's race of the season with Mrs. Schmid at the helm and her husband as crew. The two then changed places and the sloop won the club's point score race. Mrs. Richard Hess captured the lady skipper's race for lightning class sloops in her husband's entry, Yocky. Fleet Capt. Warren Hatch won the lightning point score event. Martin Cassel won a special match race among three snipes, three lightnings, and three 110 class sloops in his Chicago Yacht club 110 class yacht Petrel. Summaries:

And It Goes to Mr. Nelson!

county moved up alongside War Plu-eighth green to the left but chipped up to a yard and holed out for his par four. Both were on the 191 yard ninth with their tee shots, and Byron went two up when Sam missed a second putt of about two feet.

They halved the 10th in par fives, each missing birdie putts of approximately 15 feet. Snead drove the rough at the 11th and made a timid recovery to the corner of the green. His chip shot nearly stymied Nelson, but the latter, who was on in two, ran down a nine footer for the birdie three that sent him three up. Nelson had a 10 foot birdie try on the 12th, but couldn't negotiate it.

Recovers for a Birdie.

Byron then came thru with a grand half in birdies at the 522 yard 13th. His hooking tendency, which had become apparent at the eighth, sent his drive into the rough and under a tree. When he reached the ball, he tried a number of swings with three different clubs, but couldn't complete any without striking the tree branch back of him. He took a No. 4 wood, a No. 1 iron, and finally a No. 3 iron, hitting a superb shot to within 30 yards of the green. He then chipped up to four and a half feet to match the birdie Snead had gained with a wood second that left him 20 feet above the hole.

Snead, who had skinned at least three cups earlier, grazed another with a 15 foot try for a deuce on the short 14th. Samuel finally won a hole at the 15th, where Nelson came down with his only bogey of the morning. Nelson's second squirted to the right and almost into the bunker guarding the green there. He made a nice recovery to within less than five feet, but couldn't curl around the stymie Sam's putt laid him.

Snead had another chance on the 16th, only to hit the cup again, from seven feet. He had a 12 footer at No. 17, but the grain of this green, the most difficult on the course, and the same that had cost Ralph Guldahl his chance to square his semi-final with Nelson, balked him. They halved the 18th in regulation threes.

Match Squared at 30th.

Snead went to work on the 19th hole, first of the afternoon, holing a 15 foot birdie putt. He had another chance on the 21st, where he was only six feet away, but missed that while Nelson was winning with a 10 foot birdie effort. Nelson blew a 5 foot attempt for a win on the 22d, but gained a half by charging in a 25 footer at the 24th. Sam then holed one from 15 feet at No. 25, but a mud coated ball cost him three from the back edge of the 26th, and he was two down again. He retrieved that on the 27th, where Nelson's hooked tee shot struck a tree, the road, and eventually the water.

Byron missed birdie putts of 6 and 10 feet on the 28th and 29th, and Sam finally caught him with a 6 foot putt on the 30th. Nelson then showed himself the fighter he is on the 31st, where both drew birdie four. Their seconds were bunkered on opposite sides of the green. Nelson's was eight feet away, while Snead laid his a yard from the cup, but Nelson matched his putt. Sam finally gained the advantage with a six foot deuce putt at the 189 yard 32d, and then came the final four holes.

Aron's Weight 152 Pounds for Mamakos Bout

The stipulated weight for Milt Aron's scheduled 10 round bout against Steve Mamakos, Washington, D. C., welterweight, in Marigold outdoor arena next Monday will be 152 pounds, five more than the division limit, Promoter Irving Schoenwald said yesterday.

This high poundage has caused fans to wonder whether Aron, who is recognized as No. 1 welterweight contender, can still make the class mark without weakening himself. Jack Begun, Aron's manager, insists Milt is not having weight trouble, that he still is a legitimate welterweight and can make the required weight whenever necessary.

Aron, who has not made 147 pounds in more than a year, scaled 150 when he held Mike Kaplan of Boston to a 10 round draw in Philadelphia on Aug. 12. Mamakos, who will be making his first Chicago appearance against Milton, also carried 150 pounds in his last start, a 10 round defeat at the hands of Izzy Jannazzo in Washington April 10.

Weights of three other matches of 10 rounds on Monday's program follow:

Torsten Ahlbeck, Northwest Athletic club lightweight, will be in quest of his 12th consecutive victory in a five round amateur contest against Jerry Pittro of Rils park in Legion stadium, 6440 North Western avenue, tonight. Supporting matches include:

Ralph Holbrook vs. Walter Kanzler, 175. Richard Stone vs. Bill Johnson, 118. Gene Casey vs. Bob Cox, 135. Wendell White vs. Bill Jordan, 135.

Farrow Takes Both Dashes in Toronto Track

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 2 (AP).—Track stars from Washington, D. C., and Elberon, N. J., won four of the nine open events on the International Labor union's annual track meet at the Canadian National exhibition today.

Thomas Fields took the one mile open handicap event and James Kehoe the 1,000 yard open handicap race for Washington's two victories. Gilder Farrow of the Shore Athletic club of Elberon captured first place in the 100 and 220 yard open handicap dashes.

Fields was given a 10 yard handicap and was able to beat out the highly rated Joe McCluskey of New York. He was clocked in 4:26.2. Kehoe took his race in 2:15.8.

Farrow won the century dash in 9.9 and the 220 in 21.8. Harold Brown of the Toronto West End Y. M. C. A. took second place in each race, with Eulace Peacock, former Temple university sprint star, third in the 100 and John Borican third in the 220. Peacock and Borican ran under the colors of the Shore A. C.

Stella Walsh, Cleveland Polish Olympic club sprinter, won the 100 yard open dash for women, beating Janett Ellicott of the Toronto St. Clair A. C. to the tape by five yards. She was timed in 11.6. Miss Walsh took the open 100 and the invitation 60 yard dashes at the C. N. E.'s annual track meet Saturday.

SURPRISES MARK OPENING PLAY IN NATIONAL TENNIS

2 Seeded Players Lose; Alice Marble Extended.

New York, Sept. 2 (AP).—Two major upsets and a narrow squeak for Champion Alice Marble marked the belated first day's play in the 39th annual national singles tennis tournament at Forest Hills today.

Hal Surface of Kansas City ousted ninth seeded Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., 7-5, 6-4, 6-3. Then young Jack Kramer of Belvidere Gardens, Cal., who teamed recently with Ted Schroeder to win the national doubles, beat Gil Hunt of Washington, D. C., 3-6, 8-6, 8-6, 8-6, in a match that must have made Bobby Riggs, the idle defending champion, wonder about his laurels. Kramer's fine speed, depth, and his ability to outmaneuver the nation's ninth ranked player stood out sharply in a day when most of the matches were dry as dust.

Alice's Game Is Rusty.

Alice Marble, who is seeking her fourth national title, had a difficult time with Barbara Strohbar of Philadelphia. Alice, her game rusty on the fairly slippery turf, was down 1-3, in the first set before she rallied and won the match 6-3, 6-4.

Pretty Sarah Palfrey, now of New York, also had a tough time with Mary Arnold of Los Angeles before she could punch out a 3-6, 6-3, 6-1 victory. Pauline Betz, another Californian who may take over Queen Alice's diadem some time, found a courageous foe in Milly Hirsh of New York, who bowed stubbornly, 6-2, 9-7.

Guernsey Beats Shields.

The two old timers who are now in the laundry business in New York after years on tennis' big wheel—Frank Shields and Sidney Wood—split even. Shields bowed to Frank Guernsey, the intercollegiate champion from Rice institute, 6-4, 10-8, 5-7, 6-0, while Wood stopped Bob Decker of Boston, 6-1; 6-1, 6-2.

All in all some 30 matches were played before an enthusiastic crowd of about 5,000 who were forced by rain to wait four days for the tourney's opening, originally scheduled for last Thursday.

HAWTHORNE SET FOR OPENING OF 28 DAY MEETING

Sprinters Race Tomorrow in Inaugural Handicap.

The Chicago area's racing center will shift to Hawthorne tomorrow, where a 28 day meeting will be held. For the first time in many seasons there will be a lapse today in the Chicago racing schedule.

Two feature events of the week at the Cicero track are the six furlong $1,500 Inaugural Handicap tomorrow and the $5,000 added Hawthorne Handicap Saturday.

Prairie Dog, Mrs. Emil Denemark's 6 year old gelding which won the Geneva Handicap at Washington park yesterday, is among the field in tomorrow's handicap. Other sprinters expected to go to the post are Silverette, Court Dance, Forever Prince, Potranco, Predicate, and All Lizzie.

Charles S. Howard's Advocator, winner of the Stars and Stripes at Arlington park on July 4, heads the list of distance runners entered in the mile and an eighth Hawthorne Handicap. Others eligible for the race are Shandon stable's Burning Star, which finished third in the Washington Park Handicap yesterday; Mrs. M. Evans' Shot Put, Mrs. E. Oros' Bucking, Paul Kelley's Memory Book and Kings Blue, Friedburg and Axton's Bala Ormont, Manie O'Hara, Predicate, and Montsin, Mrs. E. Haughton's Bobs Boy, B. F. Masterson's Busy Morn, E. E. Haygard's Rude Awakening, and Mrs. J. Grossman's Valdina Star.

Since the new drainage system was installed the Cicero plant has boasted one of the fastest drying tracks in the country. The drain has proven valuable during the last week's rains, the strip drying out rapidly after each heavy downpour.

Three Drivers Are Killed in Holiday Races

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 2 (AP).—Rex Mays of Glendale, Cal., climaxed a nine year quest with victory in the 100 mile national automobile championship race today and clinched the national racing drivers' championship for 1940.

Mays' time for the 100 laps around the dirt track was less than two minutes away from the world record established by Billy Winn in 1937, despite the fact that 20 laps were run under the yellow caution flag because of two accidents, one of which was fatal.

Lou Webb of Los Angeles lost his life when his car careened across the track into Kelly Petillo's car on the 17th lap. Webb was dead when he reached a hospital. Petillo, also from Los Angeles, was forced out of the race by the accident.

MacQuinn Cracks Up.

Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis cracked up on the 91st lap and the last nine laps were run under the rules that prohibit passing.

By winning the race in one hour, 10 minutes and 22.68 seconds, Mays rolled up a season's point total of 1,225 points in A. A. A. competition, giving him the national championship over Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis, who earned 1,000 points thru his Memorial day triumph at Indianapolis.

The first five finishers were: Mays, George Robson, Tommy Hinnerhitz of Reading, Pa., George Connors of San Bernardino, Cal., and Shorty Cantlon of Indianapolis. Unofficially other drivers crossed the finish line in the following order: Emil Andres, Chicago; Hal Robson, Los Angeles; Ted Horn, Hollywood, Cal.; Floyd Davis, Chicago; Paul Russo, Chicago, and Al Miller, Indianapolis.

Albert Putnam injured yesterday in a trial spin was reported to be still in critical condition.

MOTORCYCLIST KILLED.

Langhorne, Pa., Sept. 2 (AP).—One driver was killed and three others were injured today as Ed Kretz of Wilmar, Cal., roared to victory in the national 100 mile championship motorcycle race at the Langhorne speedway. George Matheson, 32 year old Paterson, N. J., racer, was killed when his machine skidded on the turn coming into the stretch on the second lap.

KILLED AT ALTOONA.

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 2 (AP).—Ammon Kelchner of Lebanon, Pa., was killed today during the 30 mile main race at the Altoona speedway when his car skidded, lost a wheel and overturned three times. Buddy Rusch of Dallas, Tex., trailing Kelchner, hit the rear end of the skidding machine but escaped with slight injuries and finished second in the event.

HIRSCH JACOBS IS WASHINGTON PK. LEADING TRAINER

Hirsch Jacobs was the leading trainer of the Washington Park meeting which closed yesterday. Johnny Adams was the leading jockey and Billie Thompson topped the apprentice riders. Jacobs won both the $1,0000 prizes awarded the outstanding trainer during the first and second periods of the meeting. Altogether he saddled 24 winners.

Jack Richard was the foremost jocky during the second half of the meeting, but was unable to overtake the big lead Adams piled up during the first half. Thompson pulled away from the apprentices afted Wendell Eads, leading apprentice in the first half was suspended.

The leading jockey and apprentice for each period received $500 each, with $250 going to the second place rider and $125 to third. The outstanding trainer, jockey and apprentice for the meeting each received a gold watch.

War Plumage Wins Handicap at Homewood

mage and it was a struggle between these two all the rest of the way home. Swinging around the turn approaching the home stretch, Jockey Nunzio Pariso let Viscounty step away to a clear lead. Then, as they straightened out for the run to the wire, War Plumage came on again, racing on the outside.

In midstretch they were neck and neck. War Plumage began forging ahead and as she did so she gradually bore in, impeding Viscounty. She got into a clear lead in the last sixteenth and went on over toward the rail. Then Pariso drove Viscounty up on the outside. The Valdina color bearer was gaining steadily, but could not get up in time to win.

Prairie Dog Scores.

Mrs. Emil Denemark's Prairie Dog went to the post as the 6 to 5 favorite in the Geneva handicap, a seven furlong dash, which was the secondary feature on the program. In justifying the confidence of his backers, this 6 year old gelding was forced to keep on running all the way. Under Al Bodiou's handling, he got home half a length in advance of Soup and Fish, which came charging up with a strong challenge in midstretch. Friedberg and Axton's Montsin beat J. R. Neville's Sky Ball by a neck for third place.

Prairie Dog galloped with the leaders thru the seven furlongs. One by one his rivals tired but he kept going right along. Montsin, Plowshare, and Black Brummel joined with Prairie Dog in setting the early pace. Black Brummel began giving way on the turn and Plowshare tired as the stretch run began, but Montsin hung on. Then new rivals came up to threaten Prairie Dog. Soup and Fish and Sky Ball entered the running and made a strong chase of it all the way home. The winner returned $4.40, $3.60, and $2.80 across the board.

John Marsch's Drumont and C. R. Allen's Anark got the afternoon started with a $178 daily double. Despite the fact that Drumont was making the first effort of his career, he was held to odds of a little less than 10 to 1. He scored handily enough, keeping close to the pace set by Señorita Negra, taking command approaching the stretch and withstanding Sunday Punch's closing bid to win by three quarters of a length. Joan T. was third. Drumont paid $21.60, $9.40, and $6.40.

Anark Closes Fast.

Anark, running at odds of a little more than 4 to 1, was forced to work hard to account for her share of the daily double. After getting away slowly, she found herself running second last in the dash to the far turn. Jockey Bill Thompson was forced to take her out and bring her around the entire field. She worked her way up steadily, got to the front in the last 50 yards and drew out to win by a length. Marbold, which had saved ground while taking command on the turn into the stretch, saved second place and High Landmark was third. The winner returned $10.40, $5.60, and $4.20.

The stewards yesterday delivered a ruling on Jockey Jimmy Ashcroft's case, which they had under consideration since Saturday. The boy was fined $100 for failure to keep Kings Blue straight in one of Saturday's races. After causing interference in the stretch, Kings Blue won, but was disqualified.

Henderson, Ky., Sept. 2 (AP).—Quero Greenock, two year old colt belonging to the Glad Acres farm, and ridden by Jockey P. Martinez, won the A. F. of L. purse, feature event on the Labor day card, closing day of the 26 day Dade Park meeting. Mothers Girl finished strong to take second money and Kitchie Manitou was third. Quero Greenock stepped the five furlongs in 1:00 2-5 and paid $6.20 straight, $4 to place and $2.80 to show.

GATTI-CASAZZA, EX-DIRECTOR OF N. Y. OPERA, DIES

Known as "Sphinx" in America.

FERRARA, Italy, Sept. 2 (AP).—Giulio Gatti-Casazza, for 27 years artistic director and fiery impresario of the Metropolitan opera in New York, died here today in his birthplace. He was 71 years old. His second wife, Rosina Galli, 44 years old, former première danseuse and ballet mistress of the Metropolitan Opera company in New York, died of pneumonia last April 30 in Milan, Italy.

Giulio Gatti-Casazza.

KNOWN AS THE SPHINX.

Giulio Gatti-Casazza, impresario of the Metropolitan Opera house in New York from 1908 until he retired at the end of the 1934-'35 season, was known as The Sphinx because of his silence and dignity. He was credited with doing for the Metropolitan what he had done previously as director of the famed La Scala in Milan—making it financially successful.

During his New York régime he presented some 5,000 performances and introduced many American singers and much American music. He produced 15 American works, 13 of them operas and two ballets. He introduced little known singers, some of whom became stars, including Lawrence Tibbett and Lily Pons.

Among those who attended a special gala performance held in Gatti-Casazza's honor in February, 1933, was Arturo Toscanini. They had had a disagreement in 1913, when Toscanini resigned as conductor of the Metropolitan, and did not speak for 17 years. The cause of the disagreement never was known, but when they again clasped hands in friendly greeting, both wept.

Born in Udine, Italy.

Gatti-Casazza was born Feb. 3, 1869, in Udine, Italy, the son of Stephano Gatti-Casazza, a former member of the famous Garibaldi's Thousand. He attended Polytechnic college of Geneva and was graduated in naval engineering in 1890 because his family desired it, but he had no love for the sea.

His father had been chairman of the Teatro Communale in Ferrara and when the elder Gatti-Casazza became a senator the son, who loved music, succeeded his father as the theater manager, becoming at 23 years of age the youngest in the world to hold such a job at that time.

Introduces German Opera.

The Teatro Communale prospered under his direction. On the strength of his work there he was made impresario of La Scala, where he attracted attention by popularizing German and French operas on a stage where little but Italian opera had been heard before.

Two years after he came to New York as impresario of the Metropolitan, Gatti-Casazza married Mme. Frances Alda, Australian prima donna, who now is in New York. She divorced him on a charge of incompatibility in 1928, two years before he married Rosina Galli.

LA SALLE BANK PLANS 50 PCT. STOCK INCREASE

Offer Shareholders Purchase Rights.

A special meeting of stockholders of the La Salle National bank has been called for Sept. 12 for the purpose of voting on a proposal to increase by 50 per cent the bank's outstanding common stock, Laurance Armour, chairman of the board, announced yesterday.

Laurance Armour.

The bank now has 8,000 shares outstanding and when the increase is approved it will have 12,000 shares. The stock is $50 par. When completed the new financing will give the bank a capitalization of $840,000.

Armour said the stockholders will be given an opportunity to purchase one share of the new common stock for each two shares now held. The offering price is to be $75 a share, the same price paid by the group now owning a majority of the outstanding stock when controling interest was acquired last January.

Formerly National Builders.

La Salle National formerly was known as the National Builders Bank of Chicago. The name was changed to La Salle National in January.

Armour said that all the directors of La Salle National have subscribed for their proportionate share of the new stock and that any of the new stock not taken or subscribed by the present stockholders already has been spoken for by others.

"The purpose of increasing the capital structure of the La Salle National at this time," Armour said, "is to take advantage of the enlarged opportunities which are anticipated when the bank is located in its new quarters in the Field building at La Salle and Adams streets. Satisfactory progress is being made by the Field estate in preparation of the bank's quarters and it is thought that they will be ready for occupancy by the latter part of October."

Capitalization to Be $840,000.

When the new stock is sold capitalization will consist of $600,000 representing the $50 par capital stock, $100,000 preferred stock and $140,000 surplus, a total of $840,000.

C. Ray Phillips is president of the bank, now located at La Salle street and Wacker drive. Directors, including Armour and Phillips, are: G. E. Rose, vice president of the International Harvester company; Wade Fetzer, president of W. A. Alexander & Co.; Carl L. Writzel of the Marshall Field estate; John R. Nicholson, general counsel; George Griffiths; John V. Farwell III.; and George Overton, president of the Reuben H. Donnelley corporation.

EXPRESS GROUP IS GIVEN POWER TO CALL STRIKE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2 (AP).—A committee was empowered to fix the time for a nation-wide strike at a meeting today of district chairmen of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, called to consider the breakdown of negotiations with the Railway Express Agency over a 44 hour work week.

George M. Harrison, union president, said after the day long meeting that the chairmen "left authority in the hands of the negotiating committee to make the strike effective at a date and hour deemed advisable."

The brotherhood and the agency failed last week to agree on how to establish the 44 hour week for about 30,000 members of the clerk's organization who now work 48 hours. The 44 hour week was recommended by an emergency fact finding commission named by President Roosevelt in July to avert a threatened strike.

Big Expansion Is Stymied by 'Dictator' Bill

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 2 (AP).—Maj. Reuben H. Fleet, Consolidated Aircraft corporation president, said today that announcement of "vast future expansion was being withheld because of a senate bill authorizing conscription of industry."

Speaking at ceremonies dedicating the corporation's new $2,500,000 addition, Fleet criticized nationalization of the aircraft industry, citing the failure of French industry.

He expressed confidence the aircraft industry would be able not only to protect America from attack but could carry the war to any enemy attacking this country.

Expand in California or Texas.

The aircraft executive said the announcement which was being withheld covered expansion "here or in Texas." Fleet declined to amplify his statement as to the type of expansion planned.

"The bill recently passed by the senate authorizing peacetime commandeering of industrial plants which may fail in any respect to please a high official of our government, makes us hesitate, much as we have been striving with all our might as a private enterprise to do our bit," Fleet said.

"Nationalization of her aircraft industry by France was so disastrous that that country's production fell down terribly, and even tho she frantically resorted to foreign help at exorbitant expense, she collapsed as a nation and probably never will recover.

Fears Labor Regimentation.

"We hope our government will not make this mistake, which would be the beginning of labor regimentation, the emasculation of labor unions which our President has stated cannot strike against the government, and the end in this country of free enterprise."

Decision to withhold announcement of the future expansion will not affect that part of an enlargement program now under way and for which contracts have been awarded, Fleet said. This phase of the program will cost $2,500,000.

REFUND TO GAS USERS AWAITS ORDER BY COURT

Circuit court authority to begin refunding $6,377,242 to more than 850,000 Chicago gas consumers will be sought tomorrow by the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, officials said yesterday. The company is ready to send out the first refund checks as soon as the court signs an order for the distribution.

The refunds are for the period Feb. 5, 1938 to March 31, 1940. During this interval the company had a rate increase of 32 cents a month in effect for Chicago residential customers and was seeking to have the boost upheld in the court. The company lost its fight for the higher rate last April 1 when the United States Supreme court refused to review a decision of the Illinois Supreme court denying the increase.

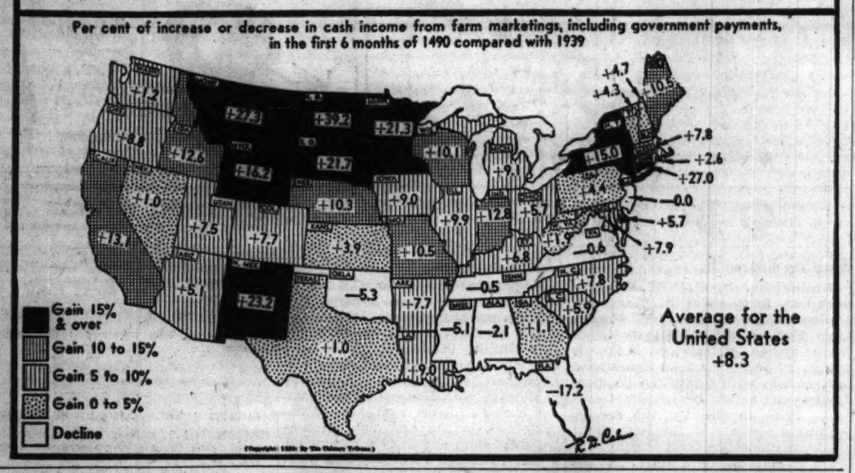
Since April the company has had a staff of 400 clerks computing the refunds and preparing checks. The court has directed the company to mail 100,000 checks a month until the refunds are completed.

Argentina to Pay Farmers 36c Per Bushel for Corn

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2 [Special].—The grain board of Argentina has been authorized to buy corn from farmers at prices based on 36 cents a bushel delivered at Buenos Aires, the department of commerce reported today. The Argentine corn surplus available for export was estimated at 283 million bushels. Altho the European war has reduced exports considerably, the government program assures farmers better prices than they had been receiving so far this year, it was said.

Trend of Cash Income of Farmers During the 1st 6 Months Varied Widely

Per cent of increase or decrease in cash income from farm marketings, including government payments, in the first 6 months of 1490 compared with 1939



Vast Increase Predicted in Plane Output

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2 [Special].—Current production of "roughly 1,000 airplanes a month" will be increased to 2,000 monthly early next year, and to 3,000 by the end of 1941, the national defense advisory commission asserted in a report issued today.

No information was given on how many of the planes being produced or planned are bombers, fighters, and trainers.

Forecasts Gain in Spring.

The report asserted that by next spring mass production of general defense materials will be "developing rapidly," and said that automobile factories, for the present, will not be "turned over" to the manufacture of airplanes.

The report placed the commission on record as favoring "voluntary coöperation of government and industry" with regard to aircraft production until "it appears that more authoritative measures are necessary."

"Tooling up will take all the fall of 1940," the report said, "but by the beginning of next year, material should begin to roll into the arsenals. By the spring of 1941, production should be rising rapidly."

Need Autos for Defense.

Explaining why automobile plants will not be used for airplane manufacturing for the present, the report said that "the country still needs automobiles for private use," and that "we are going to need plenty of automobiles and truck units for our national defense program."

Because automobile factories turn out engines of 100 horsepower or thereabouts, while airplane plants produce engines of 1,000 horsepower, need for machinery would delay plane production in auto factories, the commission said. It added, however, that "companies specializing in the manufacture of valves can turn out airplane valves in addition to their present automobile valves."

Rule Lodging Must Figure in Overtime Computations

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2 (AP).—The Wage-Hour administration said today that when employers furnish board or lodging in addition to cash wages, the actual cost of such facilities must be considered as part of the regular pay rate in computing overtime wages. The ruling modified the previous policy which did not contemplate consideration of board or lodging in overtime computations when the minimum wage was paid in cash.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT BONDS HIGHEST SINCE BEGINNING OF THE WAR

LONDON, Sept. 2 (AP).—Security prices held firm in the market today in the face of timid speculative interest and air raid warnings.

Government bonds rose to around the best prices since the war started last September. The war loan 3½s added as much as ¼ point at one time, altho in late trading the advance was pared.

Textile and tobacco issues were favored and coppers closed higher. The last apparently benefitted by rumors the government made a deal with Rhodesian copper producers to extend an agreement to take substantial tonnages for another year.

Oils moved ahead over a broad front but industrial leaders were spotted with losses. Rubber shares were evenly maintained.

A cheering item to the market was the annual report of Wardle & Davenport, silk and hosiery company, which announced the best year since 1929-1930.

Liverpool Cotton Gains.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 2 (AP).—Cotton futures advanced 2 to 11 points today under the influence of better New York and Bombay advices. Offerings came out slowly and the trade upped bids to obtain contracts.

Houston Gulf Gas Calls 2 Issues for Retirement

New York, Sept. 2 [Special].—Houston Gulf Gas company $4,238,000 first mortgage and collateral 6s of series A, and $1,850,000 convertible 6½ per cent debentures, both due in 1943, have been called for redemption on Oct. 1, at 101. This action represents retirement of the entire publicly owned debt of the company. Plans for a $75,000,000 refinancing program of United Gas corporation, which controls Houston Gulf Gas, are expected to reach definite form later this month. Retirement of several other subsidiary debt issues is to be provided for in the program.

Britain Expected to Take Less American Tobacco

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2 [Special].—Reduction of United States tobacco exports to Britain is expected because of wartime controls imposed by the British government, the department of agriculture reported today. In the past about 99 per cent of all cigarets sold in the United Kingdom have been made entirely of flue cured tobacco, coming mostly from the United States. Beginning next year, however, all mixtures must contain 4 per cent of Turkish or Greek tobacco.

Franklin Life to Unite with Texas Concern

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 2 (AP).—Merging of the major resources and business of the Great American Life Insurance company of San Antonio, Tex., with the Franklin Life Insurance company of Springfield was announced today by Charles E. Becker, president of both companies.

Becker said the Franklin company would acquire more than $30,000,000 of additional insurance thru the partial merger, making it a $200,000,000 institution.

The announcement said the Great American company, founded 10 years ago, would remain in San Antonio as a separate unit specializing in industrial business and with approximately $10,000,000 of industrial insurance in force.

Several months ago the entire capitalization of the Franklin company was acquired by the Great American organization. Becker said that under the unification program stockholders of Great American would become stockholders in the Franklin company thru distribution of Franklin stock on a share for share basis.

Becker said the unification was developed to effect "maximum economy and important tax savings."

MEAT COMMANDS HIGHER PRICES DURING AUGUST

Increased consumer demand for meats and somewhat smaller supplies added up to higher prices for all classes and grades of live stock during August, the Institute of American Meat Packers reported yesterday.

During the month, hog prices were up about 15 per cent, steers 9 to 13 per cent, and calves about 21 per cent, according to the institute's survey. Wholesale meat prices also advanced.

Meat production was smaller than in July but slightly larger than during August, 1939, with pork production showing the largest increase, the institute said. Marketings of live stock, with the exception of hogs, remained on about a par with last year.

REPORT GAINS IN STOCKYARDS, UTILITY PROFITS

American Power Net Is $2,269,740.

Net income of American Power and Light company, New York, large utility holding company, and its subsidiaries in the three months ended July 31 was $2,269,740, the company reported yesterday. Income in the parallel 1939 period was $2,019,187. For the 12 months ended July 31 consolidated net income was $12,348,756, against $9,577,779 in the preceding 12 months. American Power controls utilities operating in 14 states, mostly west of the Mississippi.

Consolidated net income of United Stockyards corporation and its subsidiaries was $249,535 in the nine months ended July 31, C. F. Topping, president, announced. Earnings in the 1939 period were $244,434. United, which has offices in Chicago, operates stockyards in a number of cities.

After All Expenses.

Topping said the figures are after all expenses including provision for taxes and a nonrecurring item of $40,470 in the 1940 period, which was a premium of 3 per cent on the $1,349,000 5 per cent sinking fund gold bonds of the Saint Paul Union Stockyards company, a subsidiary, whose bonds are being refunded Oct. 1, 1940.

In the 12 months ended June 30, Vick Chemical company, New York, and its subsidiaries had net earnings of $2,792,165, or $4.05 a share, compared with $2,795,897, or $4 a share in the preceding 12 months, K. E. Prickett, vice president and treasurer, reported.

Reserve for War Losses.

The 1940 figure was after providing for taxes, depreciation and other charges and after reserves for undetermined losses caused by the war, Prickett said. The company has extensive distribution of its medicinal preparations in foreign countries.

CUBAN PRESIDENT REQUESTS LOAN OF 15 MILLIONS

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 2.—President Federico Laredo Bru today sent a message to congress asking authorization to negotiate a $15,000,000 loan with a Cuban or foreign bank.

The amount is necessary for government expenses, the president said, because of a decrease in revenue brought about by the low price of sugar and the general economic crisis affecting the country. The message suggested that bonds be issued for a period of not more than 25 years at 4½ per cent interest, to be paid by means of a tax of 8 cents a bag on sugar.

Sugar producers now are paying a tax established in 1930 to liquidate the sugar stabilization bonds which will be amortized in the near future.

Altho no official figures are available, it is reported that a deficit of about $8,000,000 already is apparent in this year's budget of $75,000,000.

Ban 'Runaway' Boom in Costs, Says Roosevelt

Emphasizing that the prevention of any "runaway" rise in the cost of living is an important phase of national defense, President Roosevelt has indorsed National Retail Demonstration week, Sept. 16 to 21, the Illinois Federation of Retail Associations reported yesterday.

In a letter to the National Retail Dry Goods association, sponsor of the event, the President wrote that "all of us can look back with pride now on the business statesmanship displayed by the nation's retailers last year in preventing a price boom. I am delighted that the retailers of this country are keeping defense foremost in their celebration of the national retail demonstration. Prevention of any runaway rise in the cost of living is an important phase of total national defense."

Joseph T. Meek, secretary of the Illinois federation, said stores will go "on parade" in a number of cities in the state during the week in demonstrating their importance as purchasing agents of the public, as taxpayers, employers, wagepayers, and "all-round good citizens." In Illinois, according to Meek, there are 98,000 such store owners who pay out $270,000,000 annually in wages to about 250,000 workers.

TINY ROAD, NEVER 'IN RED,' PAYS OFF LAST OF ITS DEBT

Whippany, N. J., Sept. 2 [Special].—The 11 mile Morristown and Erie railroad, which meanders contentedly from Morristown to Essex Falls, its 40 year old locomotive stopping at grade crossings to let automobiles pass, enjoys an enviable if not unique record in the railway field. It is entirely clear of debt.

Mauritius Jensen, auditor of the tiny line, proudly announced today that the final payment of a $300,000 mortgage has been made. This mortgage was issued in 1903 when railroads were booming. It matured in 1933, when a 10 year extension was granted. The final $15,000 was paid off three years before the deadline.

The road has paid dividends the last four years, and has never been "in the red." Last year it hauled 190,000 tons of freight [it gave up passenger business in 1928], but in boom years hauled 317,000 tons.

The little line has $400,000 of stock, 44 stockholders, 27 employés, including a lone engineer, four freight cars, and one passenger car. Its biggest customer is a paper mill here operated by the principal stockholders of the line, the McEwan family.

TRACTION PLAN DRAFT NEARING FINAL STAGES

Some Hurdles Still to Be Cleared.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

The drafting in legal language of Chicago's proposed traction unification ordinance will be virtually completed this week by the joint committee of city and transit attorneys.

Philip Harrington.

Philip Harrington, city traction commissioner, announced this yesterday. He said, however, that a number of sections will be left blank because three major questions remain to be settled by the companies and several minor points are still in dispute between the city and the lines. If these minor points cannot be ironed out jointly the city probably will write its own version of them. Harrington said.

Major Hurdles Listed.

The three major hurdles to be settled by the companies were listed by Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the council transportation committee, as:

1. Adoption of a pension plan agreeable to representatives of the 21,000 transit employés.

2. Agreement between the transit lines and the Chicago Motor Coach [bus] company on terms for buying or leasing the bus properties.

3. Terms of a proposed federal loan of 53 million dollars to be made to the new unified company by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The lines and the employés' representatives are still far apart on a pension agreement. The employés' spokesmen have asked a temporary plan providing pensions of $50 a month for each employé over 65 with 20 years or more of service. The lines' counter offer is to pay such employés amounts which together with federal social security benefits would total $50 a month. Under this

For Your Wife . . .

Does your insurance program include a policy on your wife? . . . a definite sum of money, payable to her when she is 55 or 60?

Every well planned life insurance program should include such provisions. Aside from insuring her future security, should she be taken first, it provides a definite sum to defray last expenses . . . thereby eliminating a burden on you or the children.

INDEPENDENTS' PROSPECTS GAIN IN MOTOR FIELD

Nash Enters Low Price Automobile Market.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2 (AP). — The forthcoming model year in the motor car industry, says Ward's Automotive Reports in its current issue, "appears to be another year in which the independent companies will at least hold their share of total business, if they do not improve.

"In the past year it was Studebaker, with its small car, and Hudson, with its renovated lines, which provided the margin of gain," the publication said. "This fall Nash is appearing with a low priced competitor."

Production Shows Gain.

Discussing production last week, which it placed at 27,645 units, compared with 23,732 in the preceding week, the trade paper says:

"Further delays in moving assemblies at Plymouth and Dodge held up volume for the industry as a whole. However, advances by various General Motors divisions, combined with several independents to bolster the total."

Of employment in the motor industry, Ward's comments:

"Some weeks ago it was generally expected that the end of tooling programs for the new models would be followed in rapid order by a shifting of craft workers to arms equipment production. There had been a considerable shortage of skilled men in the Detroit area after drainage by the aviation plants, and the auto shops were making every effort to keep their men working until the defense requirements were released.

Try to Hold Workers.

"As a result something unprecedented is now happening—the craftsmen, where possible, are being put on top pay assembly jobs and others so they can be held in readiness against the day they will be needed to get the auto industry's share of the defense business moving.

"A committee is planning to go to Washington, it is understood, to try to hasten the defense program and avert the necessity of layoffs which might accelerate the out of town drift of the craftsmen and further complicate the expected labor shortage in the tool and die field."

plan, the new company would pay only about $20 a month, the remainder to come from social security benefits.

Purchase Negotiations Snagged.

Negotiations for purchase of the bus company were snagged early last month when it became evident that congress would pass an excess profits tax bill. The excess profits tax would require the Omnibus corporation, owner of the bus company, to pay a tax of about 40 per cent, including income tax, on any excess received over the value of $2,750,000. This is the value of the bus company's stock as carried on the Omnibus books, and it is conceded that the properties will sell for several million dollars more than this figure.

To avoid payment of a tax which might run into millions, transit and Omnibus officials plan to work out a lease arrangement instead of an out right purchase.

Commitment for the RFC loan was made last month by Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, but final conditions of it depend on some provisions of the traction ordinance. For example, the RFC as a prospective creditor wants to know how much rental will be paid for the bus company and how much outlay will be required for employes pensions.

It Enters Political Picture.

Another problem of the RFC loan is its relation to the national political situation. City officials concede that a traction referendum will not be held before December at the earliest. This means the RFC loan will not be advanced until about a year later, after the new unified company has had time to be organized and start operating.

Transit experts say that if the Democratic national administration is defeated in November, the RFC loan offer may be changed completely. If a Republican administration puts new men in control of federal lending, the loan problem might be tackled all over again. A large loan from the RFC or elsewhere is needed to help put thru 102 million dollars worth of transit improvements under the ordinance.

Minor points of the ordinance still disputed by the city and the lines include whether North Shore Line trains should be allowed in the city-owned subway, whether the Wacker drive "L" stub should be torn down, and the transfer points between bus, street car, elevated and subway lines.

BUSINESS FAILURES.

Answer: A "business failure" occurs when an enterprise is unable to meet its obligations. The degree of insolvency varies. A business enterprise may have total assets that exceed all its outstanding liabilities but at the same time may lack sufficient cash and other quick assets to meet immediate obligations. An enterprise is completely insolvent when the total value of all assets is less than the face amount of its debts. As customarily used, bankruptcy is the legal recognition of insolvency. In bankruptcy proceedings the court may appoint a trustee to take possession of an insolvent company's assets for reorganization or liquidation.

FARGO MOTOR.
